Joins party, blasts corruption

Wheeling Plan Comr. Gilbert Monoson Wednesday night joined the Wheeling Improvement Party (WHIP).

In a blistering attack on corruption in village government, Monoson told WHIP members he decided to join the party because he feels WHIP is "the only vehicle for reform in the village."

He said nepotism, conflict-of-interest, extortion, bribery and special interest groups dominate Wheeling government, and pledged that as a member of WHIP he will work to eliminate the abuses.

"IT IS MY SINCERE desire that you will let me work with you and for you to secure the reform that this great village pleads for and deserves," Monoson told the audience.

The WHIP meeting was the first of several in preparation for the April 1975 municipal election. About 40 WHIP supporters were in attendance.

WHIP, which has been a political party for several years, ran a full slate of candidates in the 1973 municipal election, but captured only one seat on the village board.

Monoson refused to say whether he will run for village trustee on the WHIP ticket in the next election.

"I just joined the party and I think it would be premature to make a statement on that at this time," he told The Herald.

Monoson was a member of Wheeling's Citizen Action Program (CAP), a would-be political party, but resigned from CAP last May, saying that CAP had restricted his freedom to speak openly on village issues.

HE ALSO SAID he left the group because of its failure to take stands on important village issues because of a reluctance to "embarrass village hall or step on toes of certain individuals."

He was particularly critical of CAP for not taking stands following the indictment of six former and present Wheeling and Cook County officials in Wheeling's zoning-extortion scandal.

The indictments followed a year-long probe into shakedowns of Wheeling developers. Four of the six have pleaded guilty and two are serving time in federal prison.

CAP members include Village Trustee William Hein, Plan Comr. Jack Metzger, Park Comrs. Hugh Wilson and Frank Schnatmann, and Police and Fire Comr. Michael Moran.

Since its founding, CAP has been linked with political kingpin James Stros, one of the two now in federal prison. "If you have any intelligence or integrity at all, it doesn't take much to determine who are the good guys and who are the bad guys," Monoson said.

School elections in April

General Caucus to start looking for candidates

The Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 General Caucus will start looking for candidates next month for the April school board election.

The search will begin three months earlier this year than in the past "because we thought we should have more time to look for qualified people," said Geraldine Camp, caucus corresponding secretary.

"This will give the screening people more time and a better idea about what they're looking for," she said. "This will give us time to do a really good job."

THE CAUCUS PLANS to hold its first meeting in early November and is looking for organizations interested in participating in the caucus system.

Last year 54 local organizations were represented in the caucus of about 100 groups contacted. Organizations will receive information about the caucus next week. If a group interested in sending a delegate is not contacted, it should contact Mrs. Camp at 394-5887.

The change in the meeting schedule followed the group's study of other caucus by-laws in the Northwest suburban area. Of the seven responses the caucus received, six of the groups started looking for and screening applicants earlier than the Dist. 21 caucus.

LAST YEAR THE caucus was criticized for only endorsing one candidate although three candidates were running for two board positions.

The caucus can endorse as many candidates as its delegates believe are qualified to hold the positions. The two candidates not endorsed last year were board members seeking reelection. The caucus did not make any public statement about why the two incumbents were not considered qualified for their endorsement.

Other revisions in the caucus procedures include inviting the school board president or a board member not up for reelection to speak to the caucus about board issues and business.

Retention basin on parks agenda

The Wheeling Park Board tonight will discuss and attempt to establish a timetable for improvements to the Heritage Park west retention basin.

Two weeks ago park board members called for speedy action on improvements to the 20-acre basin. They are considering a lawsuit against the Metropolitan Sanitary District and the Village of Wheeling for failure to complete the work.

Land for the basin was donated by the park district in 1969 with the understanding the retention lake would be used for boating and fishing. The basin never has been used for recreation because of its depth and size, and park board members describe it as a "mudhole and eyesore."

Roger Bjorvik, attorney for the park district, said there are sufficient grounds to sue the MSD and village over problems connected with the basin. The 1969 easement agreement states the village "will construct, operate, maintain and enlarge the basin."

In other business tonight the park board will:

- Consider final approval for the 1972 referendum budget.
- Consider the purchase of office equipment.
- Review a proposal for installation of a gasoline pump at the park district maintenance garage.
- Review several annexations that will bring additional areas into the park district.

The meeting will begin at 8 p.m. at Heritage Park, 222 S. Wolf Rd.

AN IRONIC MOMENT for orderly and conscientious objector Dave Zabler as he wheels a Vietnam War veteran through a hallway at Northwest

Community Hospital. Zabler is content with his decision not to leave the country. "They made their decision and I made mine," he said simply.

'Doing their duty'

by MARILYN McDONALD

They didn't want to go to war. Instead, they chose 24 months of alternate service at Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights.

The 12 men are conscientious objectors who sought and received a waiver of military duty and now work as janitors and orderlies, supervisors and specialists. Theirs is the same service that will face draft-dodgers and deserters under President Ford's conditional amnesty plan.

Their months of mandatory duty have brought mixed reactions. They say their lives have been disrupted but not as dramatically as if they had been in the military. Some believe their careers have been stopped and they are already behind those who didn't have to serve at all. Others want to continue their hospital work after their obligations are completed.

Kent Prodie, 22, Woodstock, is now a sanitation specialist at the hospital, but originally applied for a job in a Head Start day-care center in Peoria. He lost the job when red tape tied up his application.

BRODIE HAS ONE month of service to go, but doesn't feel bitter about his two years because it was his choice. He said he had been in college with no particular direction when the draft seemed imminent. He decided to apply for his conscientious objector classification because he did not want to be in the military but "I felt I owed my country two years for the privilege of living here."

Scott Kimbell, 24, Rock Island, says he "scrambled" for his conscientious objector's status when his induction letter arrived the day after college graduation. Now left with "106 days, I counted on the calendar" as a storeroom assistant, Kimbell hopes to pursue his original intention of going to law school.

Mark Gonzalez, 22, Chicago, sought his military exemption for religious reasons (he is a member of the Jehovah's Witnesses). He left a job at Illinois Bell that he had held for 2½ years and now has until Nov. 10 to serve as a maintenance man at the hospital. He says that he can't understand how his job at the hospital is helping the country. "I'm making the same amount of money here that I was making there. If they didn't have me for the job, they'd get someone else," he said, shrugging his shoulders.

Utility pole must go for road widening

A Commonwealth Edison Co. utility pole in Hoffman Estates had to be dismantled Wednesday after workers widening Jones Road paved around it and the pole stood in the middle of the roadway. The project is being completed between Golf and Higgins roads.

Boil water, residents urged

Residents of the Northeast section of Mount Prospect have been advised to boil all drinking water because of possible contamination resulting from a severe pressure drop in Citizens Utilities Co. water mains. Mount Prospect officials said they may take action against the utility company by filing a complaint with the Illinois Commerce Commission.

'Woodfield 76' shortcomings told

Schaumburg Village Engineer Joseph E. Zgonina has estimated the village would have to invest at least $75 million in public improvements toward the Woodfield 76 development. A seven-page report prepared by Zgonina pinpoints shortcomings in the developers' cost estimates for sanitary sewer and water distribution systems. He described the overall $250 million project as having "merit" and, with "proper execution," could provide benefits to the village.

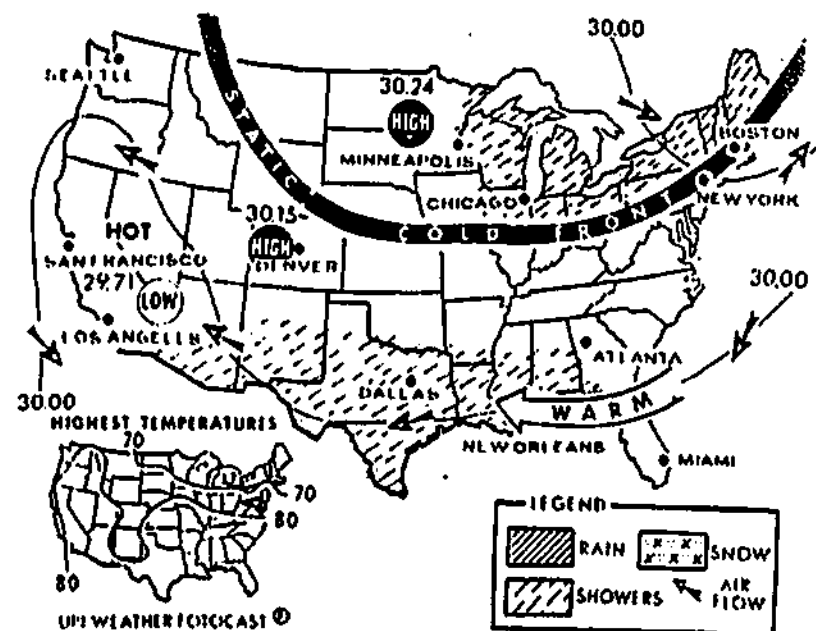

Solve furnace woes: village

Centex Homes Corp. officials have been given until noon Monday to come up with a solution to widespread furnace failures in Elk Grove Village. Village Pres. Charles Zetek angrily rejected a $4 do-it-yourself repair kit offered by the company. Village Building Comm. Thomas Rottenbacher disputed the company's claim that the kit, which includes a larger furnace-room door grille and a chimney vent cap, would help solve problems for an estimated 1,700 homeowners with defective furnaces.

CTA offers bus service

The Chicago Transit Authority has offered to operate a suburban bus service within the boundaries of the North Suburban Mass Transit District. The CTA would either provide a manager for the bus operation or take over the role of providing bus service. Des Plaines is holding off on a decision to begin local bus service through the North suburban district until a decision is made on the CTA offer.

pital is one of several hundred state approved facilities where alternative service may be done, according to Capt. Thomas Hornada, operations officer in the Illinois Selective Service Bureau headquarters in Springfield. An approved facility must serve the national health, safety or interest. Ninety per cent of the approved facilities are hospitals, he said, with the University of Chicago's Billings Hospital being one of the state's largest employers of alternative service workers.

Other hospitals in the area which employ conscientious objectors are Alexian Brothers in Elk Grove, Holy Family in Des Plaines, and Evanston Hospital.

Alternative service workers have 60 days to find their own job. If they are unsuccessful, they will be assigned to the selective service to an approved facility. They receive the same benefits, vacations and pay as civilian employees.

The hospital is required to make reports on each alternative service worker twice yearly to the state Selective Service Bureau. Otherwise, no special records are kept on the alternative service workers, according to Ann Finney, public relations director for Northwest Community Hospital.

A FORMER CONSCIENTIOUS objector who did his alternative service at the hospital but chose to stay on after his two years were up is Bob Galizia, 28, now supervisor of house-keeping services. Galizia obtained his conscientious objector rating in 1969, before student deferments were abolished and before getting an exemption was an "accepted thing to do." Now, Galizia values the five years of management experience he's gained at the hospital, but wishes he had the benefits that ex-GIs enjoy.

Galizia said that conscientious objectors are still subject to military law and prosecution if they avoid their alternative service. Yet, when their two-year service is over, the conscientious objector is not eligible for the educational or housing assistance that veterans enjoy.

All the men doing alternate service are young. Galizia believes it is easier for young, single men to disrupt their life for two years and then go on with school or a career. Older men, like those returning from Canada or other refuges, may find it harder to take an alternative service job if their careers or families have already been established.

HOW DO THEY feel about deserters or evaders who now have the chance to come back and do alternative service?

"I feel sorry for them," said Brodie.

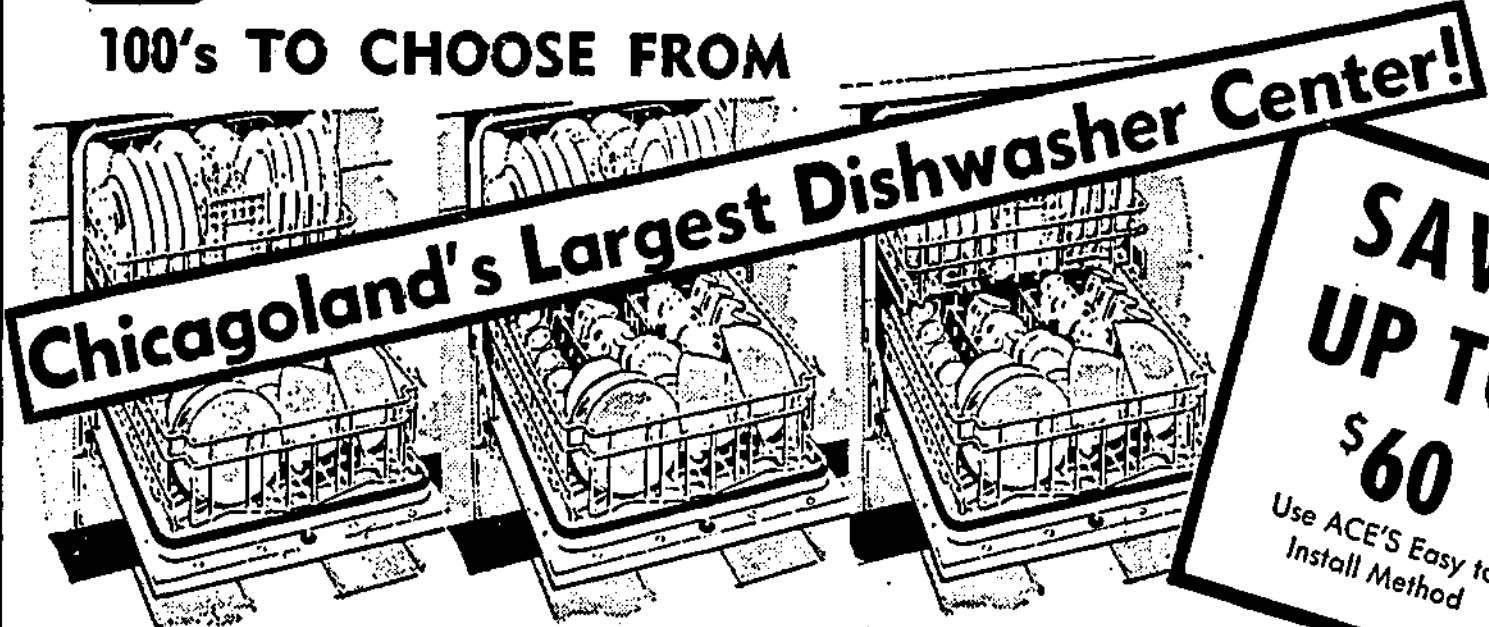

On the other hand, Brodie and his co-workers agree that an unconditional amnesty decision by President Ford would have been a mistake. They said that the turmoil in the country following the pardon of former President Nixon is an example of how the parents of soldiers killed in action would react if deserters or evaders got off scot-free.

Ford vows U.S. will help fill world's food needs

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — President Ford pledged Wednesday that the United States will do its best to help fill the world's needs for food, and challenged the Arab countries to cooperate on answering the demands for oil.

In his first major foreign policy address, to warmly applauding delegates to the 20th session of the U.N. General Assembly, Ford said the twin crises of food and energy now "demonstrate the extent of our interdependence."

"The United States recognizes the special responsibility we bear as the world's largest producer of food . . . The United States will not only maintain the amount it spends for food shipments to nations in need, but it will increase this amount," he said.

"Now is the time for the oil producers to define their conception of a global policy on energy to meet the growing need — and to do this without imposing unacceptable burdens on the international monetary and trade system."

Declaring that "energy is required to produce food and food to produce energy — and both to provide a decent life for everyone," Ford said the nations of the world should realize that: "Failure to cooperate on oil, food, and inflation could spell disaster for every nation represented in this room."

Ford received a standing ovation when he was introduced.

In his speech, Ford made passing reference to various foreign policy concerns — continuing conflict in Cyprus, Indochina and the Middle East; determination to bolster U.S. partnerships with its traditional allies plus willingness to "seek out and expand" relationships with old adversaries, and the requirement to prevent nuclear war.

Ford departed from his prepared text to give Kissinger a pledge of strong support. Stifling speculation that Kissinger might be replaced, Ford said:

"It should be emphatically understood that the secretary of state has my full support and the unquestioned backing of the American people . . ."

But the thrust of his speech was to the worldwide shortage of food and fuel, and the inflationary impact of the shortage on the economy of all nations.

The President proposed the following points he said should guide a global approach to the food and energy crisis:

- All nations should increase production "substantially."
- All countries must seek a level of prices which not only provides an incentive to producers but which consumers can afford.
- All nations must avoid abusing fundamental needs for the sake of narrow national advantage.
- All nations must assure that the poorest among them are not overwhelmed by rising prices of the imports necessary for their survival.

For its part, Ford said, the United States will respond again to human emergencies as it has in the past to help developing nations realize their aspirations to grow more of their own food and that the United States is prepared to join in a worldwide effort to negotiate, establish and maintain an international system of food reserves.

New heights in grocery prices seen

From United Press International

Food prices are on the upswing again, nudged in part by spring floods and summer droughts. Grocers predicted Wednesday they may reach new heights in six months.

A spot check of 10 cities from Pittsburgh to Seattle and Los Angeles by UPI showed an irregular but general upward trend.

"Prices have been roller-coastering in the past few months but the trend is definitely upward on almost everything," the spokesman for one Chicago area grocery chain said. "And the major shortages caused by the drought haven't hit yet."

Grocers in Pittsburgh and two southern Illinois cities complained about price hikes in food products such as margarine, cooking and salad oils.

"Groceries are up — margarine, salad dressing, cooking oils — those items affected by dealings in futures," said Mack James, owner of supermarkets at Carbondale and Marion, Ill. "I think groceries will go up for six months."

Bread prices generally moved higher across the country during the past six months, although they remained stable in some cities. Increases of about 5 cents a loaf were evident in Chicago, Los Angeles and Atlanta.

Beef prices in Chicago were up from 9 to 20 cents a pound at stores checked, and chicken up 20 cents a pound at some stores.

U.S. deal offered Allende

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Nixon administration offered Chile "an incredibly generous economic package" in 1970 to enable the former government of Marxist President Salvador Allende to compensate three nationalized U.S.-based firms, it was learned Wednesday.

The U.S. offer was disclosed by Edward Korry, former U.S. ambassador to Chile, who said Allende rejected it. Korry also said the United States refused a request from Allende for a $1 million contribution to his 1970 presidential campaign.

Korry made the statement at an Aug. 15 seminar at Georgetown University. UPI obtained a copy of the statement in the wake of a disclosure that the CIA had been secretly funded to "destabilize" the Allende government.

"To reach an accommodation," he said, "the U.S. offered Allende a deal which could only be described as the most incredibly generous package we have ever offered any government in an economic relationship."

He said Washington proposed to underwrite Chilean bonds with "the full faith and credit of the American Treasury, if the Allende regime would negotiate a settlement with ITT and the two copper companies."

Korry said Allende rejected the offer "for ideological reasons," fearing that he would have lost support for his Marxist-Socialist government by accepting help from the U.S.

He also said that during the 1970 Chilean presidential elections, the U.S. embassy was approached for contributions to "high-level fund raisers" of all three candidates. He said Allende's fund-raiser asked for $1 million.

"The U.S. government made no contributions to any of the candidates," Korry said. "This was a departure from the policy of the Kennedy and Johnson administrations which, during the campaign for the 1964 Chilean election, provided considerable support for the election of President Eduardo Frei."

Study rules for fuel economy claims

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Trade Commission said Wednesday it will try to draw up rules to protect consumers from questionable new-car fuel economy claims by the automobile industry because of the energy crisis.

The agency said there has been a dramatic increase in miles-per-gallon claims in car advertising — so much so that one out of every three ads was making a fuel test claim of one kind or another earlier this year. But the usefulness of such information, it said, "is open to serious question."

"The tests are not comparable," the FTC said in a statement. "Some tests were conducted on interstate highways at or near the speed limit; others were on test tracks, at varying speeds, still others were simply termed 'city,' 'suburban' or 'highway' tests, without further description."

"The disclosures were not sufficient to enable the consumer to determine the relevance of the claimed fuel economy figures to his own likely experience . . . and variations in the tests render comparison by the consumer of competing mileage claims impossible."

J. Thomas Beech, director of the FTC's Bureau of Consumer Protection, said the agency will first attempt to determine whether a common test procedure meaningful to car buyers is feasible. If it is, rules will be put in place in time to cover 1976 model cars — those that will be coming into showrooms one year from now.

Beech said extensive negotiations with the automobile industry in the past few months, aimed at a temporary rule covering '75 model cars, failed because of widespread disagreement in the industry over test methods.

In other developments:

• Treasury Secretary William E. Simon told an investigation subcommittee of the Senate Government Operations Committee that world oil production is running nearly a million barrels a day above demand and there is the potential for a daily surplus of up to 5 million barrels.

• The Commerce Department reported that the nation's soaring oil bill has sent the balance of payments into deficit by $900 million for the first half of 1974. Commerce said a second quarter deficit of $2.7 billion wiped out a $1.8 billion surplus in the first quarter, adding that petroleum imports which have quadrupled in price were the primary cause of the sharp change.

500 eligible for amnesty plan in state

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UPI) — About 500 Illinois men are eligible for processing under terms of President Ford's conditional amnesty program for draft evaders, a state Selective Service spokesman said Thursday.

His 500 figure does not include deserters, he said.

Response from the eligible men, though, was slow.

Vic Pilolla, an assistant U.S. attorney in Springfield, said his office had had "only a handful of inquiries from families and no direct contact from eligibles."

He said he has sent notice of the availability of amnesty "to the best addresses we have for the violators we know of" but "it's a little bit early to expect much response. I expect we'll get correspondence on it."

In Washington, the Bureau of Prisons announced it has freed all imprisoned draft evaders eligible for amnesty except one man who refuses to leave without a full pardon.

Moving quickly to honor Ford's request that imprisoned evaders be given priority treatment, the bureau said it had furnished 83 of the 96 persons still in jail on such charges by the end of business Tuesday. It ruled another 12 ineligible because they had been sentenced on other charges in addition to draft evasion.

Meanwhile, the Pentagon reported that military officials had received only 86 phone calls and one letter from deserters interested in amnesty by Wednesday morning. Thousands of war resisters living abroad continued to ignore the President's conditional amnesty offer.

Emmett Kay ends his captivity in Laos

• Saying he felt fine and was treated very well, Emmett Kay emerged Wednesday from 16 months of captivity in the hands of Laotian Communists. Kay

— a civilian pilot working for the government whose plane was forced down May 7, 1973, — talked at a stopover at Clark Air Force Base in the Philippines. He confirmed what is generally believed: that he was the last American POW in Laos, even though some 700 U.S. servicemen are still listed as missing in action.

• Employees at Florida's Kennedy Space Center heard a surprising announcement over the public address system Wednesday: Dr. Kurt Debus — a veteran of 30 years in the rocket and space programs and director of the center since it was established in 1962 — was quitting. A historic figure in the space race, German-born Debus supervised the launching of America's first satellite Jan. 31, 1958. He made the PA announcement himself, saying at age 65 he was taking an early retirement.

• The problem in the world today — said Pope Paul VI in his weekly general audience Wednesday — is weakness and cowardice. It's spreading through society "like a fatal epidemic" on all levels at a time when society requires strong will.

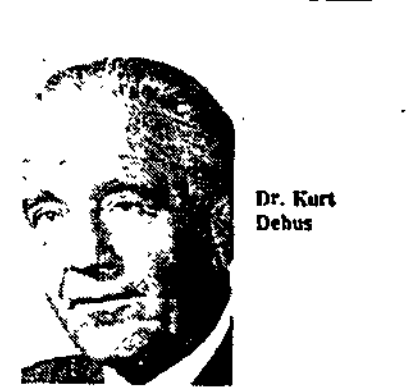

• Sick list: Margaret Trudeau, 26-year old wife of the Canadian prime minister, is in a Montreal hospital "under psychiatric care for severe emotional stress," but said herself that she is "recovering" . . . Alabama Gov. George Wallace, suffering a low fever, was ordered by his doctor to rest for the remainder of the week and cancel a planned trip to Tallahassee, Fla. . . . jazz musician Lionel Hampton was improving at a New York hospital after surgery to arrest massive bleeding of his colon.

• Actress Claudia Morgan, best known for her radio role as the witty Nora Charles on NBC's "The Thin Man" detective series, is dead at age 63. Miss Morgan also appeared in more than three dozen Broadway plays, including "The Man Who Came to Dinner."

• An Australian housewife — Patricia Mary Stoll — swore in a Melbourne court Wednesday that she has royal blood. Specifically, that of the late Duke of Windsor, who she says was her father and she has a handwritten statement by him on her adoption papers to prove it. There was no word on who was the mother, and no comment from the magistrate on her claim, but he did fine her $600 on charges of using bad checks to buy clothes.

She had just won a judgment of more than $22 million from an attorney accused of defrauding her and her late husband, Marty Melcher, in a variety of business ventures. Former Dwyer School chief to fight for right to work

by WANDALYN RICE

John Whipple, former director of Dwyer School in Arlington Heights, Friday will fight for his right to continue working as a school psychologist in a public hearing in Springfield.

Whipple will confront officials from Cook County School Supt. Richard Martwick's office in the hearing before the Illinois Teacher Certification Board. Martwick suspended Whipple's school psychologist certificate last August after charging that Dwyer School was improperly operated under Whipple's direction and that Whipple worked as a private psychologist without a state license.

Under the law, a certificate allowing a teacher, psychologist or administrator to work in Illinois schools may be suspended or revoked for evidence of "immorality, a condition of health detrimental to the welfare of pupils, incompetency, unprofessional conduct, the neglect of any professional duty or other just cause."

Whipple has asserted his innocence of the charges made by Martwick and shortly after Martwick's action asked for the hearing before the certification board. The board, which passes on the credentials of school employees, could reinstate Whipple's certificate, suspend it for one year or revoke it. Without the certificate, Whipple could not be employed as a psychologist in any public school in Illinois.

AFTER HEARING Martwick's

charges and a defense by Whipple in closed session in July, the Northwest Education Cooperative governing board, which runs Dwyer, transferred Whipple at his own request to the Center for Child and Family Studies, an outpatient treatment center for children with learning and behavior problems.

Whipple has been working at the center counseling students and supervising other psychologists since the start of school earlier this month. He has been able to continue working because no suspension of a certificate can go into effect until after the certification board hears an appeal.

Officials for Martwick's office said this week they are preparing for the hearing, but had not formed up a list of witnesses to be called. Some officials in Martwick's office have complained that because the hearing Friday will be public some parents whose children were abused at the school may be unwilling to testify.

Among Whipple's accusers are teachers who claim he harassed them and gave them poor evaluations under the NEC merit salary plan. All but one of those making the charges have resigned from the staff of Dwyer School.

THE SPECIFIC CHARGES listed by Martwick against Whipple are:

- Permitting or causing child abuse where handicapped children were exhibited to public view, physically thrown against the school wall or paddled.
- Charging fees for the private practice of psychology without a valid license.
- Instituting and operating personnel practices and procedures that are unprofessional, abusing teachers by harassing them and threatening to give them a poor job reference.
- Terminating the employment of certificated personnel, freezing salaries or transferring them out of the school.
- Hiring and firing teachers without an administrative certificate.
- Violating law by serving in an administrative capacity without an administrative certificate.
- Employing persons who do not have valid teaching certificates as provided by law.
- Refusing to attend meetings in Martwick's office called under Martwick's authority under the Illinois law.

To correct perceptual problems

Learning disabilities class on the 'beam' at Kilmer

by JUDY JOBBITT

A hunk of wood has turned into a useful instructional tool for students in the learning-disabilities classes at Kilmer School.

Last week a balance beam was installed for use by students with perceptual difficulties.

"There's no end to all the things you can do with it," said Mrs. Katsura.

MRS. KATSURA took the initiative to follow through on a letter she received from the school District office last spring notifying her that the woman's club wanted to donate something to the district.

"I called them immediately and knew exactly what I wanted," she said. "They hadn't even raised the money yet, but I was first in line."

She said she was thrilled when she received the beam from the club. "It's the first time I've received anything like this," she said looking back on her 18 years of teaching in the district.

For the past eight years, Mrs. Katsura

has taught learning disabilities students at Kilmer, 655 Golfview Dr., Buffalo Grove. She said most of the students have difficulty concentrating and retaining directions and instructions.

THE BALANCE BEAM lets her work with students to develop both of these areas as well as their physical coordination.

She said the children have average or above average intelligence, but have difficulty screening out distractions that interfere with their school work.

"These children are not dumb children," They just need extra attention and time devoted to them to allow them to develop their academic abilities, she said.

The area she stresses most with students is ego-building. "I'm interested in their ego even before their academics," she said. "There should be a section in all education for ego-building. There must be a time for them to shine."

She said she tries to teach her students to be "good human beings. If you feel good about yourself, you can be a wholesome human being."

Mrs. Katsura works with 19 children from kindergarten through sixth grade at Kilmer. She considers the children diagnosed for learning difficulties "fortunate." "There are many others that need the attention but don't get it. The 'LD' kids are fortunate. They've been identified."

SHE SETS HIGH goals for the students and works with them to achieve the most they can. "My expectations are as though they are going to college academically," she said.

Although she said she realizes all of the students will not achieve that goal, she doesn't want to restrict them or limit them in her own mind.

Two of her former students have placed on the honor roll at high school.

Most students don't resent coming to her classroom and she encourages them to bring their friends for group study, she said.

Just as she believes there is always a new goal for her students to strive for, she also continues to study and learn new methods of teaching the youngsters.

And with the newest addition to her classroom — the balance beam — her students are doing just that.

BALANCING THE BEAM requires good coordination the Buffalo Grove Junior Woman's Club for use in Frances Katsura's learning disabilities classroom to teach students concentration and perception.

'But pressure's not off

Village's money picture is slowly getting better

by JOHN MAES

Buffalo Grove is slowly pulling itself out of a precarious financial position, but the village will have to keep a close watch on its finances for some time, said Village Trustee James Shirley.

"We're doing somewhat better than anticipated," Shirley said Wednesday. "Some things are beginning to take care of themselves by actions we've already taken, but the pressure's not off and we can't relax."

The village recently paid off $2,000 of a tax anticipation warrant debt. Last July, the sale of $140,000 in warrants was approved by the board of trustees on the 1973 tax levy to meet various expenses.

If reasonable weather conditions allow construction in the village to continue into late fall or early winter the village may "gain a little" through revenues that come from building permits, inspections and other required fees, Shirley said.

HE SAID CONSTRUCTION of the Grand Spaulding Dodge dealership and stores in the Plaza Verde Shopping Center, both on Dundee Road, could bring in such revenue if work is not held up.

Delayed construction caused by the cement truckdrivers strike hurt the village because building revenues were not coming in as expected, he said.

Shirley also said tax collections will be speeded up due to new measures recently begun in Cook and Lake counties and tax revenue receipts will be "evened out over the year," rather than coming in late as they did this year.

Tax revenues to the village that were delayed several months were a major cause of financial trouble in Buffalo Grove, according to officials.

Another financial boost may come in the form of an increased share of motor fuel tax and state income tax funds if the upcoming village census shows large enough population growth, Shirley said.

Village officials expect the census will show the village has grown to 19,000 residents since a previous 1972 count.

LATE LAST MONTH, there was some fear among village leaders that money in the village general fund would hold out only until the beginning of October and that additional tax warrants might have to be sold around December of this year.

That need was combatted however by deferring expenses that were considered "not absolutely necessary," and Shirley said existing funds are now adequate to carry the village beyond that time, but he would not say how long.

If the village is able to keep expenses to a minimum, Shirley said the financial picture "will get progressively better."

Board of Education to meet Tuesday

The Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 Board of Education will meet at 8:15 Tuesday, Sept. 24, in the district office, 999 W. Dundee Rd., Wheeling. A meeting will not be held on the regular date, Sept. 26, because of the Jewish holidays.

Minor damage caused by two fires

Two fires were reported in Wheeling late Tuesday night, but both caused only minor damage.

A fire at Misco International, a chemical company, 1021 Noel Ave., originated in a stack of cartons, Wheeling firemen said.

A second fire occurred in a second-story storage room at Loch Lomond apartments, 880 Old Willow Rd. Firemen said damage to the storage room was moderate and only a few wood planks and electrical wires need to be replaced. No damage estimate has been made on either fire.

Prospect Heights library board hires librarian

The Prospect Heights Public Library Board has hired a librarian to replace Rose McDonald, who was fired in June.

The new librarian, Joyce Emmons, Arlington Heights, began work this month. She holds a master of library science degree from Rosary College, River Forest, and a bachelor's degree in history from Rockford College.

Her past library experience includes being assistant librarian at the Rockford Public Library from 1971 to 1973.

"We're very pleased so far," said Mrs. Robert Lusk, library board president. Miss Emmons' annual salary is $9,600.

Mrs. McDonald was fired because she was more interested in being an administrator than a working librarian and did not fulfill the library's needs, Mrs. Lusk said in June.

Hints more officials to be indicted

Gilbert Monoson explains switching to WHIP party

Editor's Note: Following is the text of Gilbert Monoson's statement released Wednesday:

It was May 1972 that my family and I moved into our home in the Village of Wheeling. I felt that in order to be an active part of the community I should become involved in one of the many civic organizations available to young men in our area.

I was solicited by the Wheeling Jaycees and became a member some months later. Among the first Jaycees that I came in contact with was Mr. Harold Fagan. Hal, being a very concerned member of our community and an astute politician immediately tried to educate me to the corruption which plagued this village.

He spoke of nepotism, gross conflicts of interest, extortion, bribery and special interest groups. Quite frankly, I found it incredible to believe that this type of situation could exist today in that magnitude outside of the City of Chicago.

I ignored Hal's pleas and even though I felt deep respect for him I did not support the entire WHIP ticket. After the election of 1973 I applied for and was appointed to the Wheeling Plan Commission in September of the same year.

ABOUT THE SAME time, I was asked to join a new group of interested citizens to combat local problems that affect us all and also to work for the betterment of village government. This group was named the Citizens' Action Program (CAP) and was headed by Trustee William Hein.

It was after joining CAP that I realized that Hal Fagan and his fears concerning village government were incorrect. The corruption in Wheeling was far worse than even Hal had thought it to be.

As the indictments came down from the U.S. Attorney in January I felt CAP should take a most definite stand with reference to James Stavros and the other individuals involved. This, of course never happened.

The unwillingness of my fellow CAP members to take positive stands on numerous issues over the next several months because to do so would either embarrass the village hall or "step on toes" of various individuals prompted me to sever my relations with CAP in the spring of 1974 at approximately the same time I made a decision to gather as much information as I could and take it to the state's attorney's office in the hope that the probe initiated by the U.S. Attorney would not end with the few convictions that were eventually effected.

AS ONE MIGHT expect due to the class of people inhabiting our incumbent government I was attacked in the most disgusting and vile manner imaginable with only one thought in mind, total character assassination. You see, no one quits the machine, let alone starts an investigation into their dealings without paying for it dearly.

I am happy to say that it did not work. I am still involved with the state's attorney's probe and am most happy to tell you tonight that after talking with the state's attorney on Monday of this week I was informed that the probe is in full swing and that "indictments are imminent." It should also be mentioned that the immunities from prosecution granted by the U.S. attorney to James Stavros and others were for federal crimes only. It appears certain that those convicted already will have additional time added to their sentences and that many new names will be placed on the penitentiary membership rosters where they belong.

I have tonight become a member of the WHIP Party. It is my sincere desire that you will me to work with you and for you to secure the reform that this great village pleads for and deserves. I am confident that the only vehicle for reform in this village is WHIP.

GILBERT MONOSON joined the Wheeling Improvement Party Wednesday night with a blistering attack on corruption in village government. He said WHIP is "the only vehicle for reform."

Arlington woman reports car stolen

An Arlington Heights woman reported her car stolen Monday after she came out of MacArthur Park Pub, Wheeling, and saw a man driving the car away.

Karen Melcher, 2626 N. Dryden Ave., told police she remembered she might have left her keys in the car about 10 minutes after she arrived at the pub, 530 W. Dundee Rd. She went out to the parking lot to check and saw a person she recognized driving off in her car, police said Wednesday.

The woman told police she knew the person as "Dave" but did not know his last name or address, police said. The auto theft is under investigation and Miss Melcher will sign a complaint if an arrest is made, police said.

Soo Line sued for $1 million in fatal crash

The Soo Line R.R. Co has been sued for $1 million in connection with a fatal accident June 19, 1973 near Morrison Avenue in Wheeling Township. The suit was filed Tuesday in Circuit Court.

Killed in the accident was Margaret Rogers, 62, a widow and former missionary to Chad, Africa. She was killed when a freight train struck her car as the car was crossing the tracks at a private driveway crossing.

The train's engineer, Robert Acord, of Fond du Lac, Wis., said the car paused on the tracks for unknown reasons and he was unable to stop the train in time. Mrs. Rogers apparently was returning home after a visit with her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. David Wunsch, 150 Morrison Ave., sheriff's police said.

Mrs. Rogers was a linguist and, according to the suit, was translating the Bible from English into Mbal, a language of Chad, at the time she was killed. She had been a missionary in the country for 35 years.

4 persons injured in auto crash

Four persons, including three members of a Buffalo Grove family, were admitted to Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights, after a two-car accident Wednesday night on Dundee Road at Cambridge Drive in Buffalo Grove.

Admitted were Sharon Trickett, 31, of 1035 Cambridge Dr.; with head injuries; and her two children, Andrew, 2, and Geoffrey A., 4, both with possible concussions; and Elizabeth A. Ghan, 36, of Deerfield, with head injuries. Treated and released was David E. Trickett, 30, driver of one car.

Buffalo Grove police charged Miss Ghan with improper lane usage in the 6:40 p.m. accident. She will appear Oct. 15 in Arlington Heights branch of Circuit Court.

Police said Miss Ghans' auto was east-bound on Dundee Road and the Trickett car was northbound on Cambridge Drive when the crash occurred.

Four public meetings scheduled

Buffalo Grove to explain purpose of fire referendum

by JOHN MAES

Buffalo Grove fire officials will conduct four public meetings to "explain the purpose" of the proposed referendum to transfer the Lake County section of the village into the Wheeling Township Rural Fire Protection District.

Trustee Edward Osmon said the sessions have been tentatively set for Oct. 3, 10, 17 and 24. Officials are hopeful the referendum will be held Oct. 26.

Osmon is chairman of a committee impaneled by the village board last year to study the transfer of districts.

SOME AREAS OF the community experience a high residential turnover and too many people are unaware where their fire service comes from, Osmon said.

He said the presentations will include a "statistical analysis of each department," and will be open to "any and all questions."

Two meetings will be conducted in the Cook County section of Buffalo Grove while two other presentations will be put before residents in the Lake County portion of the village.

The 4,000 to 5,000 village residents in Lake County are the ones who must vote on the fire transfer issue. The Long Grove Fire Protection District serves the Lake County section.

At a meeting of the special committee Tuesday night, Osmon asked David Grupp, a Long Grove fireman if his department would be interested in participating in the meetings to tell residents about the services provided by Long Grove.

GRUPP SAID, "There is a need for the Long Grove Fire Dept. to take part in these meetings so there are no unanswered questions."

Although Cook County village residents will not vote on the issue, Osmon said it also will be important to present the matter in Cook County. "They deserve the opportunity to know what we're doing with their district," he said.

Long Grove officials to meet public tonight

Long Grove fire officials will meet at 8 p.m. today with interested citizens on the proposed fire service referendum in the learning center of Twin Grove School, 1072 Ivy Ln.

Tony Berg, a trustee for the Long Grove Fire Protection District, said the meeting will be about the district's fire service. Department members will also bring some of their firefighting equipment for the presentation.

If the referendum passes, the entire village would be served by one fire department rather than the present three. Long Grove and Vernon fire districts serve the village north of Old Checker Road, while the remaining sector, which includes 12,000 residents, gets fire protection from the Buffalo Grove Fire Dept., a branch of the Wheeling district.

Village officials support the transfer, saying one district serving the entire village is a vital first step toward the formation of a municipal fire department at some future date. "You can't form a fire department with half a town," said Buffalo Grove Fire Chief Wayne Winter.

FIRE AND AMBULANCE calls in the area are increasing to the point where volunteer or paid-on-call firemen would not be able to handle them all, Winter said. With a municipal fire department, however, enough full-time men could be hired to answer alarms for ambulances and small fires.

The Buffalo Grove department has 5 full-time and 45 volunteer firefighters.

The department also could provide adequate fire protection to the area now being covered by Long Grove if the referendum is approved, Winter said.

Long Grove fire officials say they are not opposed to the formation of a Buffalo Grove Municipal Fire Dept., but are against the transfer of the area from one fire protection district to another.

TONY BERG, A trustee for the Long Grove district, said the shift is not necessary because the department can provide adequate protection to the northern section of town.

"It's much easier for us to answer calls there because we're closer. There's no way they (Buffalo Grove) could compete with us as far as response time," Berg said.

"We're giving adequate service for less money," he said calling the shift of districts a "duplication of services that is not needed."

The 31-man volunteer Long Grove department serves approximately 20-square miles in unincorporated Lake County. Berg said the area in Buffalo Grove represents about one-half the district's tax base.

PETITIONS HAVE BEEN circulated in the Lake County area for the last few weeks as a first step in setting up the election. One per cent of the registered voters there must sign the petitions before a referendum date can be set in Circuit Court.

Winter said 38 of the approximately 50 necessary signatures have been obtained.

Officials were unable to say when they would approach the Cook County Circuit Court for approval of referendum plans, but said Village Atty. Richard Rayas would be seeking a hearing date soon.

Vandals spray liquid cement on automobile

A Prospect Heights man reported Tuesday that his car was vandalized while he was shopping at the National Food Store, 901 W. Dundee Road, in Wheeling.

Robert Charles, 1019 Drake Terr., Prospect Heights, found the passenger's side of his car splattered with liquid cement, Wheeling police said Wednesday. Charles told police he was in the store for about 10 minutes.

For at least one dealer, lottery shine has worn off

DOWN IT COMES. John Owen, manager of a 7-Eleven Food Store in Des Plaines takes down sign advertising the sale of Illinois Lottery tickets there. Owen has decided to stop selling the money making tickets because it's a "bother."

by LUISA GINETTI

The novelty and interest in the Illinois Lottery apparently has worn off for John Owen, manager of the 7-Eleven Food Store at 822 Elmhurst Rd., Des Plaines.

Citing the "hassle and bother" of getting tickets and reporting sales to officials, Owen has decided to stop selling the state's new elements of chance.

"I had a lot of trouble getting my allocation of tickets from the banks during the first several weeks," Owen said. The store manager added that banks with which he was required to deal for the sale of tickets were changed several times.

"By the time I got the ticket-supply situation straightened out most of my customers lost interest so I just quit selling them altogether," Owen said.

APPARENTLY OWEN IS the only local merchant in the city who has decided to relinquish his license to sell lottery tickets according to a random survey conducted by The Herald. However, licensing officials in Springfield admit that some small business owners throughout the state also have decided to stop selling tickets.

A licensing supervisor in the Lottery's Springfield office who did not wish to be identified, said no licenses to ticket agents have been revoked but "a relatively small number of licenses have been relinquished voluntarily."

He explained that licensing officials

Winning lottery numbers will appear in Friday's Herald have decided not to remove these agents from computer printouts so they may reclaim their licenses in the future without having to pay another $10 entry fee.

The licensing spokesman added that several ticket agents who surrendered their licenses have asked to have them back after a few weeks.

SEVERAL CITY ticket agents other than Owen contacted by The Herald gave a different version of their experiences with the Lottery.

Pat Hafez, owner of the Day and Nite Food Store, 1185 Elmhurst Rd., said the sale of tickets has brought in "extra profit" to his grocery. "It's a drawing card and a conversation piece," Hafez said. "We've had a winner every week."

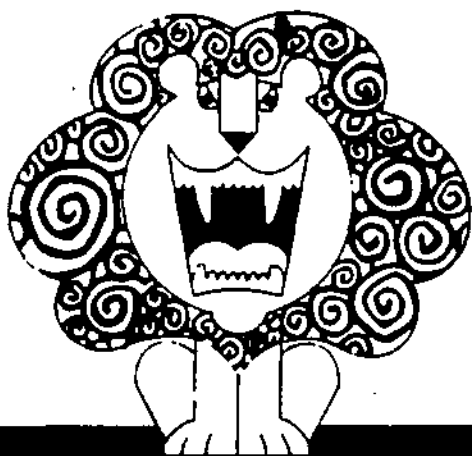

Hafez also said his ticket sales have increased in recent weeks with last week's sales among the highest. Ticket sales for last week totaled more than 500, which is about 200 more than he sold the previous week, Hafez said.

Similar stories were conveyed by officials at The Beacon Tap, 1374 Lee St., and William's Self Service Liquor Store, 840 S. Elmhurst.

JOHN ZUB, MANAGER of Beacon Tap, said his tavern has maintained a good quota of sales since the first week of the lottery averaging about 1,250 tickets per week. A spokesman at William's Self Service said sales have averaged about 1,000 tickets per week.

One spokesman at the Colonial Plaza Pharmacy, 654 Algonquin Rd., admitted that ticket sales have tapered off in recent weeks causing the store owners to discuss the possibility of dropping out as lottery agents.

Einar J. Edfors, a pharmacist at Colonial Plaza, said ticket sales last week were about 350. Expressing his own opinion, Edfors said he believes the lottery tickets help lure people into a store but if less than 200 tickets a week are sold they become "a nuisance."

IMA asks change in Clean Air Act

by LEA TONKIN

Fuel and other energy-related shortages have hurt hundreds of Illinois manufacturers and caused layoffs, cutbacks in production and short shifts affecting thousands of workers, according to a report issued recently by the Illinois Manufacturers Assn. The figures, based on an IMA survey of its 5,000 members, indicated that more than 450 Illinois firms have initiated energy-conservation programs with energy savings of up to 10-15 per cent.

Criticizing faulty government policies for energy-related problems, the IMA called for a change in the U.S. Clean Air Act. The proposed change would allow the plants to burn coal and high-sulphur oil and to defer the installation of stack gas-cleaning systems until 1980.

Campaign law to be discussed

Discussion of Illinois new campaign-disclosure law will highlight the Illinois State Chamber of Commerce political action seminar next Tuesday, Sept. 24 at the Holiday Inn East, Springfield. The outlook for fall elections and issues to be considered by the fall session of the Illinois General Assembly will also be discussed.

Bankers plan golf outing

Annual golf outing is planned Sept. 25 by the Northern Cook County Federation, Illinois Bankers Assn. The event will be held at Nordic Hills Country Club, Itasca. For added information call 827-1191.

Personnel departments topic

Personnel department productivity and effectiveness were discussed by guest speaker Seidon Robinson at the Sept. 18 meeting of the Northwest Industrial council held Wednesday in Schaumburg. Robinson is head of the industrial relations for the University of Wisconsin.

Catalytic converters 'no danger': UOP boss

Catalytic converters present no danger to the public health, said John O. Logan, president of Des Plaines-based Universal Oil Products Co., at a Monday press conference in Chicago.

"Catalytic converters add no more sulphur to the air than is already in the gasoline that cars burn," he said of the emission-control device installed on 1975-model autos.

"The fact is," Logan said, "that the only sulphur compounds that can come through the converters are those that already are in the gasoline being used.

Presently, sulphur compounds from gasoline today account for less than 1 per cent of the sulphur compounds emitted into the atmosphere from all sources."

Logan said that the use of the catalytic converter — coupled with recommended lead-free gasoline, higher compression engine ratios, engine tuning and octane ratings of 96 — should result in a total energy gain of 9.9 per cent as well as a cost savings to motorists of 3 to 5 cents per gallon due to improved mileage and reduced maintenance of engine and exhaust systems.

North Western's profits expected to show big hike

Commuter profits for the Chicago and North Western Ry. are expected to increase dramatically for 1974 because of three rate increases granted in the past year.

James Macdonald, director of public affairs, said the increase from last year's $588,000 to the expected $2 million this year is not as high as it appears because last year's profits were stifled by a delayed rate hike.

The C&NW had asked for a rate increase that was delayed 11 months, so 1973 profits were the lowest since 1968, when the margin was $2.4 million. The C&NW actually was granted only two rate hikes, the delayed increase and a new step that was split in two by the Illinois Commerce Commission. The ICC allowed an increase of 2.9% to cover increased railroad pension costs that went up Jan. 1, but the remainder of the 7.5 per cent hike came in the spring.

Revenues also were boosted this year by the gasoline shortage in the winter, which caused some motorists to take the train instead, and by opening of the Sears Tower in Chicago, which brought new workers to the downtown area, Macdonald said.

Macdonald said the high level of profits may be jeopardized next year by an expected union request for 34 per cent pay hikes.

Correction

A U. S. Supreme Court Cook County vehicle tax ruling is expected in October, an attorney for unincorporated-area homeowners said Wednesday.

The Herald incorrectly reported Tuesday that attorneys for the Prospect Heights Homeowners Assn. and the Cook County Council of Homeowners had not filed an appeal to the U. S. Supreme Court.

An appeal, seeking a court hearing to test the constitutionality of the tax, was filed June 26, said attorney Don Kriezer.

The court, which meets in October, could deny or grant a hearing to decide the vehicle tax issue.

The environment

by LEA TONKIN

Got snowmobiling on your mind? The Illinois Dept. of Conservation wants to hear from you at a public hearing slated for Thursday, Sept. 26, in St. Charles. Director Tony Dean plans the session as an opportunity to discuss state policy and funding proposals for snowmobile trails.

The issue of snowmobiling in public parks is a "delicate" one, said a department spokesman. Environmentalists object to the use of these and other off-road vehicles in many parks, while ORV enthusiasts want the use of trails on park land.

The Sept. 26 hearing will be conducted at 101 S. Second St., the Baker Community House auditorium.

A seed harvest for science

Unique seed harvest is planned by the Prairie Restoration Committee at the Fermi National Accelerator Laboratory, Batavia, for the first weeks of October. Fermi lab is seeking volunteers to aid in collecting the seeds of authentic prairie plants growing within 70 miles of the laboratory. The seeds will be found along railroad tracks, and scattered prairies remnants, and seed gathering is planned at the Morton Arboretum 10-acre restored prairie. Signup for the harvest is slated at the laboratory Sept. 26 at 7:30 p.m. in the auditorium, adjacent to the central laboratory. Additional information is available by calling Margaret Pearson at 840-3331.

The program is the initial stage of a 10-year project to duplicate the landscape which existed in the Midwest before the westward settlement move of the 1800s.

The prairie disappeared as ground was broken for farming and other purposes. Modern ecologists now see the prairie as a complex, interrelated community of plants and animals.

At the Fermi lab, a small plot of land has been planted to demonstrate the prairie plantings. Ten acres of the larger project will be planted in the spring of 1975. When completed the project will include 664 acres of land in the center of the laboratory's four-mile circular main accelerator.

Death trap on the Chattooga

Unknown threeseekers face a death trap as they ride the wild Chattooga River's whitewater rapids at Woodall Shoals, Ga. The rapids are part of a six-mile stretch rated by experts as one of the most hazardous whitewater runs in the United States. Of the six persons who have died on the river popularized by the book and movie, "Deliverance," three have lost their lives at the shoals.

The attraction of natural beauty and remoteness is drawing an increasing number of enthusiasts who take to the river in rafts, kayaks and canoes. The danger of Woodall Shoals and other rapids on the river is underestimated by many novice "river rats," resulting in the deaths and many injuries. The U.S. Forest Service — which has jurisdiction over most of the river — has prepared tough restrictions aimed at preserving the safety of adventurers and the primitive nature of the river.

PEP meeting set for Sept. 25

Coming up: the next Pollution and Environmental Problems meeting will be held Sept. 25 at the Palatine Village Hall. The session will begin at 8 p.m.

Bill veto 'slap in the face'

"A slap in the face to both houses of the General Assembly" — that's how the Illinois State Chamber of Commerce describes Gov. Daniel Walker's recent veto of the Senate Bill 589, which would have required the study of the economic impact of proposed pollution-control regulations. The chamber announced a campaign to call for an override of the veto this week.

How the child with a 'learning disability' can be helped

This is "Learning Disabilities Week," or so I'm told by a nice man who came into the office the other day with some information on the subject of learning disabilities.

The fact that this is a week set aside for thinking about learning disabilities makes it an appropriate subject for this column. But, right at the beginning, it is important to note that for people directly involved, the subject of learning disabilities is not something that only occupies one week of the year.

In the Northwest suburbs a group called the Council on Understanding Learning Disabilities (COULD) has a continuing program that runs from September to May on the subject. They invite speakers, hold panel discussions and share problems. Many of those involved in COULD are parents of children with learning disabilities. Others are teachers or doctors who work with children with learning disabilities.

THE TERM "learning disabilities" is applied to a wide variety of learning and behavior problems that young children have. Many experts believe learning disabilities are caused by something called minimal brain dysfunction, a problem in the way a child's brain receives information that may be too slight to show up on standard brainwave tests, but severe enough to cause the child problems, particularly in school.

The diagnosis of minimal brain dysfunction still is relatively new. Before doctors and educators came up with that diagnosis, children with learning disabilities were often considered retarded, emotionally disturbed or, sometimes, just plain stupid.

A case from my own elementary school experience may illustrate what that means.

When I started first grade, there was a boy in my class named Lynn. He and I sat together and, as first graders will do, he spent a large amount of time trying to convince me to "go steady" with him. But it didn't take long for everyone in the class to realize that Lynn had a problem. While the rest of us were cheerfully learning how to read with the help of Tom, Betty, Susan and their dog Flip (my school didn't have Dick and Jane) Lynn fell behind.

COORDINATION AND BALANCE are two of the things that can cause trouble for a child with minimal brain

HE WASN'T retarded. In fact, there were a lot of things Lynn could do quite well. But as the year progressed and he never got out of the first reading book, he became more and more discouraged. Sometimes when I was trying to study, he would interrupt me. He started causing trouble and disturbing the other children in the class.

My school, in the mid-1950s, had some special classes for "gifted" children. But it had almost nothing for Lynn. After first grade, my most vivid memory of him was the time I was assigned to tutor him, since I had finished most of my work. We were in fourth grade and Lynn was still struggling with a second-grade reader. And, as his tutor, I could tell he didn't really want to try very hard anymore.

At the distance of some 20 years, I can't be sure that Lynn had what today is called a learning disability. But, from everything I have seen and heard about the problem, I'm almost willing to bet that was his problem. Because no one ever suggested that he was retarded and couldn't learn. Instead, they called him stupid and lazy.

I DON'T KNOW what happened to Lynn. He dropped out of sight after we graduated from sixth grade. But today a child with Lynn's problems probably would get help. He would be assigned to a learning disabilities teacher, skilled in diagnosing exactly why he couldn't learn. He would be tested and, with luck, would succeed.

That doesn't mean, however, that no one would ever thoughtlessly call him "stupid." Because some people still don't know about learning disabilities and neighbors and relatives can sometimes be a problem for a family with that problem.

Here is a list, taken from a publication of the California Assn. for Neurologically Handicapped Children, of the symptoms of minimal brain dysfunction. Maybe the

by Wandalyn Rice

list will help someone. The symptoms are:

- Abnormal motor activity. The child may be overactive or he may be unusually slow in everything he does.

- Poor coordination. Clumsiness. The youngster has trouble making his eyes and hands function together. He may have trouble with buttoning, drawing or writing or he may be slow learning to walk, ride a bicycle or develop skill in sports.

- Impulsiveness. He is unpredictable, unmanageable.

- Short attention span. He is easily distracted. Some children can become "locked" in an activity and repeat it over and over.

- Perceptual disabilities. A child does not see or hear what others see or hear. He may not have the same sense of space or size as others.

- Specific learning problems.

- Emotionally high-strung.

- Language disorders. The child may be slow to talk and hard to understand.

- "Soft" neurological signs. He may be cross-eyed, have poor eye-hand coordination. He may not be clearly right or left handed. He may have a history of head-banging, teeth-grinding or bed-wetting.

- Irregularities in an electroencephalogram.

Persons involved with learning disabilities problems worry that a child with these signs may still be misdiagnosed and put in a class for retarded or disturbed children. At the same time, however, I've talked to some educators who fear that schools now may be going to the other extreme, and deciding that children have learning disabilities who may in fact have other problems.

The problem of overdiagnosis is one that parents and teachers will have to guard against. But the fact that learning disabilities have been discovered and schools are now able to help children is probably one of the most promising developments in years.

I'm sure my friend Lynn would agree with that.

Plain old simple good play

Thirty years ago the little old ladies were afraid to open a notrump. Today they love to. If they have 16 to 18 high-card points, they don't let such things as a worthless doubleton stand in their way.

When they get around to playing the dummy, they aren't likely to come up with complicated squeezes and end plays. But when it comes to standard, basic good play they are right there.

We watched one of them play today's hand. She took the first diamond and saw that it was up to her to go after hearts. At least we assume that is what she saw, because she called for dummy's deuce of hearts.

Her eight lost to West's queen and a second diamond was led. She won in dummy, cashed the last good diamond since she needed that trick and called for dummy's 10 of hearts.

It didn't matter whether East covered or ducked. Actually East ducked. South let the 10 ride; played a third heart; and made the three heart tricks she needed.

Note that if South had called for the 10 of hearts at trick two and East had ducked South would only have been able to take two heart tricks.

Letters to the Editor are a daily part of the HERALD's friendly concern with community affairs. Let's hear from you.

Herald opinion

A press secretary? How about Jerald terHorst?

Jerald terHorst, the short-lived press secretary in the new administration of President Gerald Ford, provided a breath of fresh air in a White House long clouded by a lack of credibility.

It was the nation's loss that terHorst departed the job which he held for barely a month. But his action in quitting a prestigious post in the most powerful office in the world provided an object lesson which, if heeded, could benefit both the White House and the American public.

TerHorst's reason for resigning was simple enough. He refused to lie.

Further, he refused to let himself become the patsy who passed on false information from other White House staff members to the press and the public.

In asserting his loyalty to the truth, terHorst set an example which should make it plain to the occupant of the White House — as well as occupants of other lesser offices throughout the nation — that the people of this country are in desperate need of straight talk from their elected officials.

Jerald terHorst walked out of the White House because a close aide to the President misled him on Ford's intentions regarding a pardon for former President Nixon. He realized, as the last two presidents apparently never understood, that having once given false witness to the public that he would never be fully believable again.

TerHorst had brought to his job as the President's spokesman a reputation as an accomplished and trustworthy newsmen. Without such a reputation, it is difficult, if not impossible, for a press secretary to expect the national press corps to accept the White House version of the news.

The problem which his resignation creates is that of persuading a man of similar caliber to accept a position in which he might be expected to pass out half-truths, deceptions, even lies, to the American public.

It will be difficult now for the Ford administration to induce another man of terHorst's qualities to assume his duties. Men of his ilk will recognize that their pronouncements from the White House will always be open to question.

We believe there is one man who could succeed Jerald terHorst, with the assurance that he would be believed by the press and the public.

That man is Jerald terHorst.

If he were to consent to returning to the President's staff as press spokesman for the administration, the people could be confident that they were getting the news from a man more interested in truth than in power or prestige.

The pardon: 'Too much of a price'

They say the American public has a short memory and will soon forget Watergate, and by pardoning all involved it will hasten the erasure from our minds. (In political lingo, it is called "healing the wounds.") I disagree. The details may become blurred with the passage of time, but the price that the American people will pay in terms of the caliber of people in public office will be most dear.

After this past week of unbelievable events, I doubt if there are many Americans left who believe a political career is a noble one — one that draws our country's finest men and women — men and women who were brought up to believe that a position of public trust is a sacred one and carries with it the responsibility, of even stricter moral values and conduct, rather than license and immunity from the law.

I worry now that young people of such high moral character as we need to be our political leaders will shy away from a public career because they see no hope of accomplishing anything worthwhile once they step into the quagmire of political favors, cover-ups, misuse of public office, etc. etc. And the only politicians we shall see in the future will be the most clever and least honest.

While our leaders 200 years ago chose not to have a monarchy, I do not believe that they meant also to throw out the motto, "Noblesse oblige." How shocked they would be to learn that, instead, our government, as represented by our new

Fence post letters to the editor

President, believes that politicians can do as they please, including lying to the public over and over again, and if they get caught, can say they are sorry, be pardoned, and receive $840,000 for allowances and expenses!

To make the future appear even bleaker, I do not feel that the Democrats are all knights in shining armor. They haven't been caught recently, but I do remember the Billy Baker scandal, and I certainly plan to remember Chappaquiddick when we are given the "choice" between Ford and Kennedy in 1976.

'President Ford owes us an apology'

It is my belief that President Ford, our Congressmen and Senators owe the citizens of this great country an apology for what they have done and are doing.

When President Ford speaks of mercy, compassion and forgiveness for our former President, saying that he has suffered enough, I can't help but think of the thousands of white crosses that cover this earth and the men that lie beneath them wondering if in fact Mr. Nixon has suffered enough for betraying the trust these men died to give him.

When I recall the smugness of the Ehrlichmans and the Mitchells, the lack of contrition on the part of Mr. Nixon, I cannot bring myself to accept the plea of mercy so readily nor extend the hand of forgiveness so easily.

When I consider what inflation is doing to my family and the majority of the people in this country, coupled with the fact that our ex-President will never be made to account for his deeds while enjoying a pension large enough to keep him living in the style to which he has become accustomed, it makes me wonder why any normal thinking man whose taxes pay for all this stupidity tolerates it.

Probably the most disappointing revelation to come out of the so-called Watergate affair is the realization that men we thought to be great and honorable leaders have proven to be nothing but illusions of greatness. I speak not only of Mr. Nixon but men like Senator Goldwater and Governor Reagan who sacrificed their loyalty to country for loyalty to their party. These men and others like them had the power and the prestige to do their country a service but chose to shirk their obligation by inaction. If you recall it was these same men that saw fit to chastise and condemn our country's young men who felt in good conscience the need to resist or desert our country's call to duty, yet later kept refusing to condemn or chastise their leader and his subordinates for actions not done in good conscience but under the guise of good politics.

As a final note I would like to say to those citizens who have lost loved ones in past wars (declared or otherwise) and to those citizens whose loved ones carry the scars of war (the amputees, the shell shocked and stigma of desertion) that as one who believes in God I equally believe in there being a judgment day and the fact that we all will have to own up to our sins. There will be no executive privilege, no Presidential pardons, no pleading of the Fifth Amendment, just the truth and when you consider that the penalty can be for eternity it makes it once again possible to accept the phrase of "equal justice for all," if not today someday, Judgment Day.

'Need Nixon trial'

Those who favor amnesty for ex-President Nixon say he has been punished enough. I don't recall anyone even slapping his money and power grabbing fists. Yes, I know mental anguish, but what mental anguish did he indulge in when he was dishonoring the office of the President of the United States?

Do we have one set of laws for the rich and powerful and another for the poor and unknown in our land of the free? I believe a full trial should be conducted so we can arrive at all the facts. It must not be recorded in history as immunity to justice in high office for the future generations to wonder about.

Bob Lahey's column

What is 'best interest'?

by BOB LAHEY
Political Editor

If it weren't for the fact that W. Clement Stone had been on Kup's show the night before, I might not have been disturbed so much by the particular phrasing of the President's remarks.

Stone, of Positive Mental Attitude and multimillionaire fame, kept assuring Kup and Albert Jenner (chief counsel of the House Judiciary Committee), the other two guests and me that President Nixon had acted "in the best interests of the nation." If you thought, as I did, that Jenner was beginning to get a little impatient before the session ended, then we could agree that a good many of us viewers were beginning to climb the walls at the repetition of that dictum.

For our enlightenment, Stone then explained that "kings, emperors and secretaries of state" live by a moral and ethical code which we mere mortals who never were elected President or made several million dollars selling insurance would never understand.

(It seemed that his reference to secretaries of state was intended in the European sense and not to include Henry Kissinger — we may hope.)

I regret that nobody ever got around to pointing out to PMA Stone that Richard Nixon was neither a king, an emperor, nor a secretary of state (in that other sense). Or that this country was born of rebellion against the particular moral and ethical code of a certain British monarch.

But that is digressing.

What concerns this space at the moment is the recurrence of that "best interest" remark in President Ford's press conference the following night. The activity ties of the CIA in Chile (reputedly having cost $11 million in the past 10 years) "were in the best interest of the people of Chile and certainly in our best interest," said the President.

Are we then to conclude that the President, with the wisdom of kings and emperors, can adopt any moral and ethical code convenient in order to assure what he perceives not only as the best interests of our nation, but of others as well?

"I'm not going to pass judgment on whether it's permitted or authorized under international law," said the President. Moral and ethical codes need not apply?

Besides, said the President, he has reliable information that Communist nations spend a lot more money pursuing their own interference in the affairs of other nations than we do.

I think it's fair to assert that they also spend a lot more money and effort in the suppression of freedom of speech, freedom of assembly and freedom of religion than we do. If there is a logic to defend the subversion of foreign governments without the knowledge or consent of the American people, then that is assuredly not it.

What Ford describes as "the intelligence field" has been greatly distorted in justifying the activities of the CIA and other covert governmental arms, at least since World War II. The covert gathering of information about your enemy's (or your ally's) capabilities and intentions is one thing. The destruction of a foreign government by violent means is another.

It is one thing for Macy's to send comparison shoppers to Gimbels. It is something quite different for Mr. Macy to have Mr. Gimbels garrotted in a dark alley.

There is no definitive knowledge to be had from me about just what happened in Chile. I, like most, must simply hope that the President understands it.

But I'd feel better if he knew how to pronounce Allende.

Pageant coverage lauded

As nursing supervisor at the Magnus Farm Nursing Home, I would like to express my appreciation for the fine news media coverage of the Golden Age Beauty Queen Pageant held at the Randhurst Shopping Center Saturday, Sept. 7. It is most gratifying to see the elderly receiving some recognition in the papers and community.

The nine contestants represented a cross-section of the nursing homes in our area, and I believe the most important message, not mentioned in your coverage, was the positive statements made by all these ladies in regard to their respective nursing homes. Having had so many brickbats directed against nursing homes over the years, almost invariably not true, we appreciate a bouquet on occasion. For instance, each candidate expressed their pride and satisfaction at being the representative from their home. They were enthusiastic and portrayed a healthy mental attitude.

In answer to questions asked of them about their homes, almost without exception they said they were proud of their homes, and enjoyed the association of the other residents. They all spoke of the good food, clean kitchens, numerous diversional activities, kindness of the attendants etc. and in general indicated that they were quite happy. In other words that they considered their nursing homes to be their "home away from home."

You disproved the fallacy that nursing home residents are unhappy, discontented, neglected and with little or no interest in their surroundings — that nursing homes are a place to go to die.

Thank you for your enlightening approach, it was most refreshing.

First signs of worldwide food shortage surfacing

by FRAN HECKART
Herald Food Editor

In 1972 grave shortages in areas such as Africa and India and our own spiraling food prices set off a flurry of controversy among experts, consumers, writers and government officials. But these problems are only the first surfacing signs of what could easily become a worldwide food shortage, agreed a panel of experts who discussed the world food outlook at a recent meeting of U.S. food editors in Hawaii.

We are finally being forced to face the inevitable results of world population increasing at a rate far beyond present or estimated food production. Opinions on causes, solutions and even the severity of the situation varied among the panel members. But the underlying theme that an already critical situation will certainly worsen without corrective measures on a worldwide basis was not disputed.

The existing problems did not develop overnight, nor does it seem they will be solved any more quickly.

DR. GEORG BORGSTROM, professor of food science and human nutrition and geography at Michigan State University, believes that we are already in the midst of a worldwide food crisis and that constructive action is of extreme urgency. Essential adjustments in the types of Food is the next world crisis the experts say. Just as the demands for world energy occupied us last winter, so will the increasing demand for food — especially protein — become a serious world problem. Herald Food Editor Fran Heckart recently attended a seminar for food specialists in Hawaii. Her report on the growing anxiety concerning food abundance is presented here and in today's food section of The Herald.

foods produced and a more equitable distribution among rich and poor nations are greatly needed, he said.

"The most critical aspect of the food crisis is that the developed world used its economic power, as mirrored in growing purchasing power and growing affluence to further enlarge and strengthen its food empire," Borgstrom told food editors attending the seminar in Honolulu.

sources, overpopulation and shortsightedness have helped create a situation of extreme urgency with few options, he declared.

"We talk about feast or famine for the future billions," Borgstrom said. "Very few realize that right in the midst of this crucial crisis we in the affluent world threw the most lavish banquet the world ever saw," he said in reference to the export of U. S. reserves of wheat, soybeans and peanuts.

Ways sought to feed world's hungry

"We took a sprightly jump up the ladder of nutrition. All three of the key realms of the protein empire (Europe, USSR, Japan) were, however, almost the exclusive beneficiaries..." said Borgstrom adding that never in his lifetime had he seen a period so devoid of common sense and foresightedness.

With wheat reserves at their lowest in 27 years we are putting faith in the weather and this year's wheat crop, he said. This, he added, reflects "critically on the horrendous lack of providence with which the world handles its common affairs but still more stupendous is the fact that in this glorious 20th Century, the world almost in its entirety is dependent on weather and in effect is only a year or two from universal food shortage."

THE POPULATION explosion is another source of his contempt. Energy crisis, depletion of resources, environmental contamination, food shortage, over-congestion of cities and social unrest are a few of the problems confronting today's world which "have their roots in the population explosion in one way or another," according to Borgstrom.

A finite earth cannot sustain an endlessly expanding population, he noted. "Time is running out and choice for action is narrowing steadily. It's high time mankind put to use its wisdom to avert massive killings by epidemics, famines and warfares that have frequented history."

Considering realities, Borgstrom recommended that mankind establish a feeling of togetherness and put "quality above quantity of population."

"The supreme test the world is currently facing is not the hypothetical future billions but the needs of those now living on earth and of the one billion more which will be aboard our spaceship by 1985," he concluded.

DR. SAMUEL GOLDBLITH, professor of food science at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, believes that the role of food processing and preservation will increase available food supplies for the growing world population.

"Science and its handmaiden, technology, are, to a large measure, the cause of change and the hope of the future in improving the well-being of all mankind," he said.

If energy prices, which include not only those of agriculture but other parts of the system such as transportation, processing, packaging, warehousing and retailing, continue to increase, it will become too expensive to produce animal protein. The switch will be toward more efficient land utilization of vegetable protein, primarily soybeans, Goldblith suggested.

He believes that the energy crisis in the U.S. plus galloping inflation will, and indeed is, manifesting itself in several ways as evidenced in the boycott of fresh meat and the large scale use of texturized soybean products as extenders for ground beef.

IN THE FUTURE, Goldblith foresees less snacking due to high food costs, less empty calorie foods being purchased, more home cooking and preparing and less consumption of convenience foods if inflation is not curbed.

The food demand of the increased population and the need of meeting these demands have opened up an entirely new dimension in Western Society in utilizing vegetable protein in the form of soybeans and its many derivatives, noted Goldblith. The animal feed industry is currently using the largest amount of soybeans; however, he predicts that this will be shifted to develop and produce vegetable protein foods.

Goldblith also expects greater use of engineered foods which he defined as those which are "produced by combining various ingredients into either a new food or imitation of an old one—and/or the incorporation of additives to improve or enhance the qualities, characteristics or acceptance of food."

ENGINEERED FOODS as we know them today include canned and frozen foods, ice cream and egg substitutes. However, the most modern example cited was "breakfast squares" which are advertised as being nutritionally equivalent to toast, bacon, eggs and fruit.

Goldblith said the great potential for soybean protein could mean a solution within reach and attainable at relatively low cost. He believes though, that introduction of these foods would necessitate consumer education and acceptance.

Development toward a more equitable standard of living in the resource-poor countries begins with each nation incorporating a national food and nutrition component, offered Dr. Derrick B. Jelliffe, professor of public health and pediatrics and division head of population, family and international health at University of California, Los Angeles.

"In all parts of the world, certain basic facts emerge in relation to health and nutrition of young children," he said. "There's a great need for adequate nutritional food appropriate to young children, which includes human milk and foods for the transitional (weaning) period," he continued.

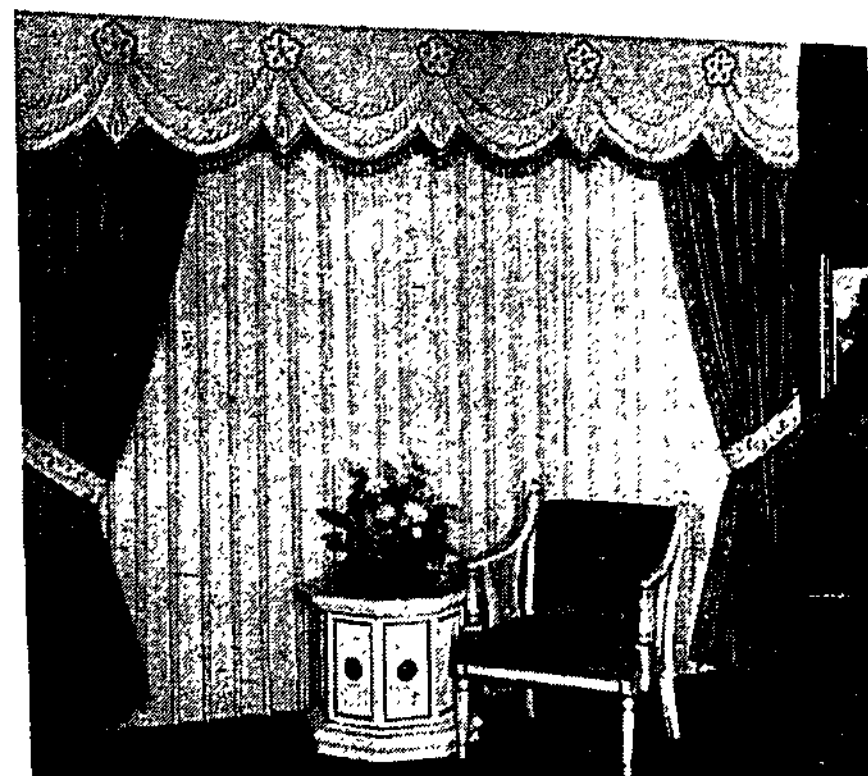

Jelliffe believes that nutrition can be improved through better use of local resources which means motivation, education and behavior changes in this regard are key priorities.

The problem, he said, begins and should be approached at the community and family levels. The seriousness, however, is directly related to population size in regards to the economic level, education level, food availability and aspects of health of each particular country.

Chicago Fire falters again; Memphis coasts

by MIKE KLEIN

CHICAGO — The Chicago Fire, in unquestionably its worst performance, was thoroughly eaten alive here Wednesday evening despite the presence of newcomer Leroy Kelly who played little and added nothing to an anemic offense.

The Memphis Southmen, without starting quarterback John Huarte virtually all the second half, put Chicago away, 25-7 before 28,678 fans who had to wonder why they even bothered.

Chicago's lone score came with 1:45 remaining when Virg Carter found Jack Dolbin on an 11-yard pass pattern. As usual for the Fire, they flubbed on the action point. Dolbin's catch ended an 80-yard drive in 11 plays.

Huarte went out early in the third quarter with a torn right calf muscle, and gave substitute Memphis QB Danny White a 15-0 lead.

A scoreless third quarter wasn't really that close. Memphis drove to Chicago's one yard line before Willie Spencer fumbled the ball to the Fire's Harry Howard. On their subsequent possession, the Southmen were at Chicago's 24 when White fumbled the ball to Fire defensive end Mike Heinrich. So it could have been worse.

The Southmen put it away when Bob Eiter booted a 23-yard field goal with 8:51 remaining. Memphis covered 69 yards in 11 plays before Eiter's kick. The visitors built their lead to 25-0 when White passed seven yard to Ed Marshall on fourth down less than two minutes later.

Jim Spavital's Fire stumbled to 7-5 in a WFL Central Division and has lost four of its past five games, twice to Birmingham and once each to Memphis and Southern California.

The winning Southmen improved to 10-2 and retain a decent shot at catching division leader Birmingham which plays Houston this evening on national television.

Chicago's worst offensive game was typified by the third quarter. The Fire ran just 12 offensive plays. Their first downs that period were on 54 and 13-yard runs by Cyril Pinder plus an eight-yard pass to Lennie Crittenden.

Memphis tore Chicago apart with a bruising running attack that was predictable as it was rough. J. J. Jennings never scored, but he rushed the ball 132 yards in 20 attempts. And Harvey had 61 carries in 14 tries.

It's interesting that Harvey once played for Chicago's Spavital on the Winnipeg Bombers in the Canadian Football League. But Spavital cut Harvey after he missed a practice. And tonight, Harvey helped dig the knife back in his old coach.

Memphis could have had a larger half-time lead except for Howard's pass interception deep in Chicago's end zone. Huarte was trying the identical pattern to Wallace on which he had burned Howard earlier.

The much anticipated appearance of Kelly didn't occur until two minutes remained before halftime. On his first play, Kelly blew a blocking assignment that cost Chicago the ball. Carter was dumped for a 13-yard loss, forcing the Fire into fourth and 17 at its 36-yard line.

Memphis put together scoring drives of 73 and 58 yards, dropping a curtain of boredom over the medium-sized crowd and giving the Southmen a 15-0 halftime bulge.

The Fire hurt itself on two important plays. Down 8-0 late in the opening period, new acquisition Reggie Sanderson fumbled away Danny White's punt at the Memphis 30. Joe Womack couldn't recover for Chicago.

But Gary Shirk got the ball and Memphis retained control at its 34. The Southmen had faced fourth and 22 on its four-yard line. John Huarte has passed incomplete twice after Chuck Bailey threw him for a 12-yard loss.

Memphis moved ahead just three yards and Chicago got the ball on its 30. With Carter mixing passes to Pinder, Bobby Wyatt and Jim Seymour, Chicago reached the Southmen's 12. Looking again for Seymour, Carter was intercepted at the goal line.

Seth Miller stole the ball and returned it 44 yards. Carter made the initial hit and Guy Murdock finally dropped Miller.

TAKING AIM, members of the Elk Grove High School archery team prepare to shoot. The school is one of three Dist. 214 high schools which have added a new dimension to archery teams — boys. New guidelines that provide equal opportunity in sports for girls provide the same for boys, who are taking advantage.

Confusion

Boys participate on girls sports teams

by BOB GALLAS

Girls have won the battle for equal sports opportunities in Illinois schools, but a new group appears to be emerging, also clamoring for their rights — boys.

Federal regulations, providing equal school athletic opportunities for girls, have backfired somewhat locally, creating a problem no one was expecting.

Not only can girls try out for teams if only one in that sport is offered by the school, but the law also applies in reverse.

And the boys are taking advantage. Three of the six district schools with girls archery teams now have boys in competition. And while the girls generally don't seem to mind the boys and vice versa, the whole situation has made some mad, and all confused.

"It's a real threat to the girls, since almost any boy can come out and take a place away from a girl," said Jean Walker, women's sports coordinator at Prospect High School. Miss Walker cited the added strength of the males as an almost overpowering advantage.

The Prospect team has one male member, who, at the regular meets, shoots the same distance the girls do, although in all male competition, men shoot 10 to 20 feet farther.

At Elk Grove High School, six males turned out for the girl's archery team, according to the interscholastic coordinator at the school, Jean Weaver.

The large turnout of boys allowed Mrs. Weaver to form an all-boy team, although the team will probably go through the season shooting "exhibition" matches, due to a lack of all-boy competition.

At Arlington High School, one boy is on the team, according to archery coach Linda Swanson.

"The girls have accepted him, but they haven't competed against any boys yet," she said.

The confusion surrounding the new guidelines for equal opportunity in athletics stems from conflicting regulations.

Federal regulations call for equal opportunity and equipment for both sexes; where only one team exists in a given sport, both sexes should be allowed to try out.

Illinois High School Athletic Association guidelines, however, encourage the separation of sexes in all sports.

So far, the confusion has resulted in individual high schools deciding how to handle the problem. Some schools allow boys to compete with the girls, while others intend to provide another team — somehow.

"This whole situation could ruin girls' sports," said Dorai Rose, coordinator of women's sports at Forest View High School. "If someone doesn't come up with a policy soon, we could end up with an all boy, girls' archery team," she added.

Miss Rose said that while no boys have come out for the Forest View team, if they do, they won't compete on the girls' team.

"If a boy does come out we'll find another coach and competition. We'll form a second team," she said.

"The only thing that can save us is if a girl brings suit in court after her spot is taken by a boy," said Miss Rose.

Women sports coordinators throughout the district agreed that the problem won't be limited to archery once other, previously all-girl sports, get started.

"There's volleyball, badminton and bowling which so far have only been offered for girls," said Miss Walker.

While some district schools haven't been faced with the situation of a boy coming out for a girl's sport, the coaches are keeping an eye on the situation and are ready for it.

"We haven't had any boys come out yet, but when we do, we'll face the problem," said Donna Pfaender, women's sports coordinator at Hersey High School, Arlington Heights.

Richard Kinneman, coordinator of athletics for Dist. 214, is also wrestling with the problem of what to do with the boys, as are principals and athletic directors in the district.

"I don't know if we can justify forming a team for just a few interested boys," said Kinneman. "All of us right now are just groping for answers."

Meanwhile, the bow and arrow competition is under way despite the controversy. And until someone comes up with an answer, it looks like the boys and girls will remain together.

Oddly enough, many of the same women's sports enthusiasts who last year argued for girls to be allowed in previously all male sports teams, now lament that the turnabout will ruin everything.

As one woman put it, "We're right back where we started from."

Varsity start was exciting for Forest View product

Date: Sept. 14, 1973. Site: Maine East High School football field. Teams: Forest View vs. Maine in the season opener for both prep teams. Outcome: Forest View won, 14-8.

Date: Sept. 14, 1974. Site: Memorial Stadium in Champaign. Teams: Indiana vs. Illinois in the opening game for both university teams. Outcome: Illinois won, 16-0.

One young man played in both games. However, he didn't expect to be in the latter.

Craig Brinkman made the giant move from Mid-Suburban League linebacker and offensive tackle to Big Ten Conference defensive end. It was the first time in 29 years that the Hoosiers had a freshman in the starting lineup for the opening game.

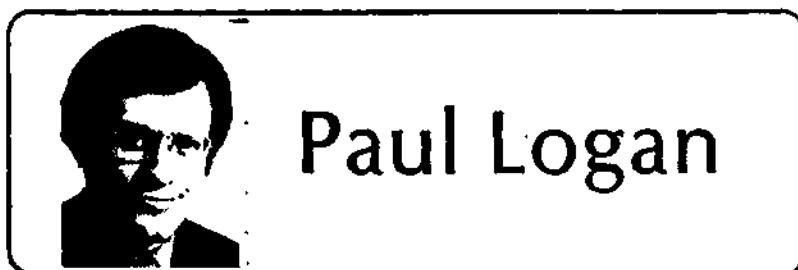

"I've got some good and some bad news," said Craig's coach just one week before the game. "First the bad — we're moving you to defensive end. Then the good — first string."

"I went wild!" said Craig, recalling those two exciting words that freshmen seldom hear.

Indiana recruited Craig as a linebacker. The 6-foot-2, 227-pound former Forest View star earned All-State honors in that position. His outstanding work there as well as in two other sports also earned him the Herald Athlete of the Year award.

Throughout fall football practice, he worked to perfect his onebacking skills. After trying several players at end, the coaches decided to try him there. Craig remembered playing the position once in high school, but he accepted the challenge.

"Learning the keys" (being able to quickly detect what the offense is running each play) was the toughest part of his new assignment, he said. And then there was that initial impact to starting a Big Ten game.

Paul Logan

"I was like walking on the sky going into that game," said Brinkman. "It was hard to believe."

Although Illinois didn't sell out, there was a fine crowd of over 40,000. Craig said he felt that all 80,000 eyes were on him, waiting for any mistakes he might make.

"I tried not to watch them at first," he said of the crowd (more people at one game than he had played before in all of his grid games in high school). "I was worried because I didn't want to make a fool of myself, falling down or tripping or something (in warmups)."

"It took me about four plays on defense before I got rid of the jitters."

Brinkman said he expected Illinois head coach Bob Blackman to give him a thorough test, especially because he was heavily recruited by Illinois. "But they didn't really run that much towards me."

He was credited with six tackles, including the sacking of quarterback Jim Kopatz for a 12-yard loss. No touchdown run was broken on his side of the field.

Craig's coach acknowledged his efforts as being "a pretty good job." Then he pleasantly surprised his husky freshman by moving him back to linebacker.

"I'll be starting, I guess," said Craig. "I think they wanted more speed or something."

He's been clocked below five seconds in the 40-yard dash — good speed for a linebacker. Although he's not as big as his left linebacking teammate (who goes 250), this former state qualifier in both the shot put and the discus said he likes what he weights right now. "I can get around and still hit guys."

So far, running into big opponents has been the biggest difference between the prep and college levels. "The thing I really noticed was the running backs," he said. "Here they run over you and go through you. Some are as big as I am; some are bigger."

Craig was happy to start, no matter where. Until further notice, he'll no longer be bored with the limited action playing defensive end brings. He's where all the action is now.

If he becomes the collegiate hitter that made him famous throughout the area as a prep, he'll be backing up the linemen for a long time.

Arlington hockey group holds third registration

"The purpose of the league," said Bob Walsh, spokesman for the Arlington Heights Minor Hockey Association, "is first to have fun and second to learn hockey. And the two go together."

The Association, entering its sixth year, will hold a third sign-up session this Saturday at Recreation Park from 9:30 a.m. to 4:00 p.m.

"We are looking for kids who either play hockey or want to learn," Walsh said. "They can be between the ages of seven and 19. We've found that kids who start when they are young get hooked on the sport and stay with it for years."

"Some of the players in our league who started with us or have played for several years are now receiving scholarship offers from some of the top hockey schools in the country. There are five kids from the league playing semi-pro hockey now, too."

The league is composed of several age divisions and unlike some other organized children's sports the players are guaranteed playing time and time on the ice for practice.

"It costs money to play the game," Walsh said, "so everybody gets an equal shot. We're considered to have one of the finest programs in the northwest area."

The expense of $85 includes 20 games and approximately 10 hours of practice time. To defray the cost of properly outfitting a player just beginning the game the Association is selling used equipment.

Players of all ages are not allowed on the ice without complete protection, including a helmet and teeth guard.

"We play our games at the Ice Spectrum on Northwest Highway and sometimes at Randhurst," Walsh said. "It's a helluva good time for the kids. And we've discovered that if you can play hockey you can play any other sport."

Kathy Boyd's performance leads Arlington's archers

The bull's eye was poked out repeatedly during archery competition Tuesday in the Mid-Suburban Conference.

Perfection was achieved three out of six times by Arlington's Kathy Boyd in the 20-yard event. Her teammate — Jennifer Hamerli — as well as two archers from Prospect — Gary Avischous and Dorothy Nee — had one perfect end (getting all six arrows in the bull's eye) each.

Boyd's super effort — 18 arrows in the center of the target — helped her register 314 points for her team, just 10 short of a perfect score. Arlington easily defeated Schaumburg, 21-0. Hamerli took the 30-yard event with 282 points.

Avischous posted 248 points at 30 yards and Nee 300 at 20 yards to lift Prospect to a 20-1 victory over Fremd.

Forest View blanked Palatine, 21-0, as Kathy Rodeback totaled 244 points from 30 yards and Karen Diekhoff had 281 markers from 20 yards.

The closest meet of the day involved Conant and Elk Grove. Despite the fine 252 effort by Kathy Schwellenbach of Elk Grove, Conant came through with a 13-8 victory. Leading the winners was Rita Olson with a 284 from 20 yards.

This afternoon, beginning at 4:30, there will be four meets in the MSC — Hershey at Forest View, Elk Grove at Palatine, Arlington at Conant and Fremd at Schaumburg. Prospect has a bye.

Soccer feature coming Sunday to Buffalo Grove

High caliber soccer will make an appearance in the area when the Schwaben Soccer Club of Buffalo Grove hosts a doubleheader featuring the strongest teams in the state.

Schwaben, an explosive offensive team that recently scored 14 goals in three games, will face the Chicago Lions Sept. 22 at 3:30 p.m. in the semi-finals.

The doubleheader will open with the other semi-final game at 1:30, a showdown between Olympics and Zaputlan.

Zaputlan is the current leader in the Chicago Latin-American League while Olympics is second behind the Chicago Lions in the Red Section of the nation's largest league, the National Soccer League.

Schwaben ranks third behind Lions and Olympics in the Red Section and field such talent as Rudi Getzinger and Willie Schaeffer, a NSL all-star who now lives in Mount Prospect.

Their opponents eliminated last year's state champions, the Croatian Club, in the quarter-finals.

Winners of the two semi-final matches will move into the Grand Final to be played Sunday, Oct. 13.

JOBS

Susan Groves and Nancy Shellander shared scoring honors for the Glories. Their defense was sparked by Beth Tierney and Cindy Chope plus the shutout by winning goalie Dawn Dzikowski. Playing hard and strong for the Carnations were Jennifer Joli and Karen Olsen.

When a first place team meets a brand new team, a lopsided score can be expected, but the Impetians really went for the ball, refused to be intimidated and scored twice — one tally by Carol Thielens and the other by Patty Nix. Snagdragon goals were by Sue Fraser (3), Nancy Nowakowski (2), Patty Nowakowski, Nancy Melbers, Patty Melberg, and Jennifer Graveline.

SENIORS

In hotly contested competition, the two leading teams in the senior girls' division fought to a 1-1 tie. Scoring for the Roses was La Juan Gregory who received outstanding support from inside left wing Kathy Brandt and center halfback Joyce Popp. For the Blue Bulls, Patty Smith scored on an assist by Kathy Felix and was supported by Sheila Utander at halfback plus rookie Ruth Iller at right wing. Both goalies, Kathy Hirschfeld and Patty Francis, made many good saves.

The hot competition continued for the bottom-of-the-division senior girls' teams who also fought to a 1-1 standoff. The Daffodil score was by Lori Solimene assisted by Lorrie Norys, and the Clover tally by Donna Veschorff. Starring for the Gold defense were Kate Maraland and Sue Chernesky and for the Green, Cathy Collins and Dana Howard.

Many great saves by goalie Bruce Peterson, improved play by Bob Puccinelli, and goals by Mark Anderson (2; one assisted by Matt Anderson), won this game for the Monkeys. The Sharks couldn't get their offense on track although Kevin Ruzbasan scored on a penalty kick, and Grant Pfister and Jim Rodney and Jim Rodney showed strong improvement.

The rookie Dolphins scored their first goal over and then came from behind in its final minutes. Their goals were by Kevin Regini (2; on assists by Scott Padgett, Erik Peterson and Mark Dammes) and by Padgett on an assist from Regini. Steve Stolars scored twice for the Alligators — once on his own and once with help from Steve Roudoush. Tom Falkenberg booted the 3rd goal on a penalty kick.

INTERMEDIATES

The Panthers kept control of the match throughout on goals by Scott Pfister (2), Jeff Moore (2), Ron Reller, Ed Lange, Jim Martin, Paul Scheel, Joe Cole, and Rick Ruzbasan. The lone Tiger goal was by Paul Carney.

Uneven field play by the Wildcats, in spite of the work of Eric Bo-Hansen, Michael Deutschmann, Kevin Schwarz, Bo Bergstrom, and a goal by Rich Drozd, kept them from playing their best game against a very strong Cougar team. Cougar hat tricks were made by Craig Harding and David Graveline, plus a single goal by Scott Hamilton. In field play, Brian Tow, Tim Ryan and Steve Smith made large contributions to the win.

SENIORS

Hawkeys 5, Owls 0
Jeff Sheppard did a fine job in the Owl goal as did Blake Stones on the pitch, but they were overrun by the Hawkeys whose scorers were Jerry Norys (3), Kevin Williams (3), and Chris Braun (1), on assists by Steve Norys, Bob Taylor, Williams, and Braun.

Cardinals 3, Eagles 2
Andy McElman couldn't pull off another shutout as he did last Sunday, but nevertheless the Cards won again on two goals by Jim McAlcese and one by Bob Curylo, with assists from Ted Privett and Rich McElman. Pete Mahmann booted in both Eagle tallies.

Roadrunners 3, Black Hawks 2
The Roadrunner defense held up until the final minutes when they admitted goals by Hawks Mickey Solimene and Kevin McKenna. Tim Brehm, Bill Landeene and Mark Landeene scored for the Green.

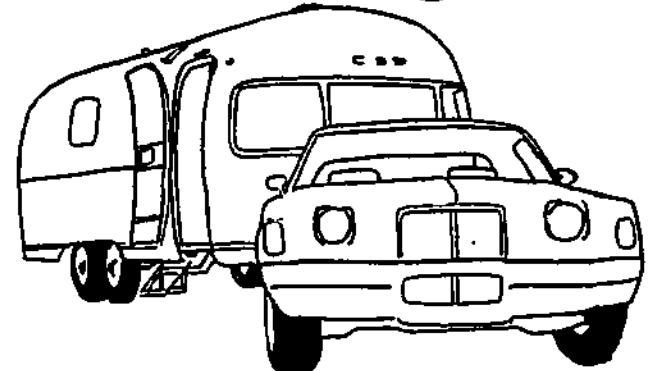

TRAVELING TEAMS
Intermediate All Stars 4,
Hanover Park 0

Rick Puts led the scoring for Palatine with two, followed by Andy Deutschmann, Mike McKenna, and Jay Babler with one apiece. Tom Selter and Jim Ruzbasan shared goal honors.

Senior All Stars 1, Hanover Park 0
Peter Mahmann, in his first game after a long standing injury, scored the only Palatine goal on an assist by Bob Martin. Bob Cole earned the shutout in goal.

Suburban Sport Celtic 2, Sparks 2
Both Palatine goals were made by Fred Hegel.

BUILDING DREAMS IS OUR BUSINESS

Celebration at Fremd for 100th harrier triumph

by ART MUGALIAN
Cross Country Editor

The cross country season is only a couple weeks old and already a familiar pattern is forming in the Mid-Suburban League.

Everyone is chasing Fremd.

After the Vikings' double-dual victory over Palatine and Buffalo Grove Monday, coach Ron Menely was singing the praises of another squad loaded with depth and more than its usual share of talent. Once again this year, Fremd has strengths up and down the line at all levels.

"These wins were something special for us," said Menely, after stopping a pesky Pirate squad and the budding Bison. "That gives us 100 wins in conference duels over nine years. We're 100 and 5. We had a little celebration afterwards."

Of course the celebration should have included a couple of people who, by circumstance, couldn't make it Monday night — people with familiar names like Pittenger, Jarocki, and Stitt.

But Menely has a new cast of standout runners, guys who can stay together in a pack and who generally make it around the course in front of the opposition.

Monday when Fremd won its 100th, Wilson Fieldhouse, Paul Kinyon, Jim Galls, John Filosa, and Dave Scott took first through fifth place, and they were just 13 seconds apart.

Fieldhouse, Kinyon, Galls, and Scott are all seniors, part of a sensational freshman group that Menely had in 1971. They are the nucleus of this year's team, but they are getting important help from sophomores Filosa and Dave Tischler, junior Dean Ellemann, senior Kevin Richardson, and others.

And just so no one thinks that Fremd's cross country domination will end any time soon, Menely has another good group of freshmen coming up. In the recent Lake Park Invitational, the frosh won their title, led by Bob Ratcliffe, a first-year boy with lots of promise.

The rest of the coaches in the MSL have just about given up trying to overtake Fremd in the standings. From now until the conference meet Oct. 17, most of them will concentrate on the race for second place.

"There's no way Fremd will lose two duels," said Wheeling coach Jim Nagel following his Wildcats' second loss of the season on Monday.

Nagel is probably right, considering that the Vikings have dropped just five league meets since the school opened. The Wheeling coach has a potential second-place finisher in his Wildcat aggression, led by one of the arena's standouts, senior Angie Ziccarelli, and junior Rick Reese.

But Wheeling missed a chance to knock off Fremd when the two teams collided in the first meet of the year. And the Vikings and Cats met again at the Lake Park Invite, where Fremd was first and Nagel's crew took second.

Another strong MSL squad is Jack Ary's Conant entry, which won't run up against Fremd until the last day of September. The Cougars boast three top harriers in Dave Elderkin, Mark Kaufman, and Mike Moran, but so far at least, Ary has failed to produce the necessary strength in the four and five spots.

"We hope to take a shot at Fremd," said Ary, "just like every year. We're not going to concede."

Hersey coach Larry Travis is watching the calendar and the performance sheets of his Huskie harriers, hoping that by the time of the Hersey-Fremd clash on Oct. 7, his boys will be ready. The Huskies have the pack that is required to run with the Vikings. Jay McCarthy, Ron Stephani, Hal Stenbridge, Craig Hansen, and John Shorb have all been running within 15 seconds of each other. Travis expects them to improve their times dramatically in the next few weeks, and they'll have to improve in order to catch Fremd.

Another squad that has yet to face Fremd is Forest View, a team with lots of juniors and sophs doing the varsity scoring.

"Fremd is at the top of the pile," says Falcon coach Bill Mohrmann, who has no delusions of beating the Vikings.

So far this season, Forest View has been paced by four-year vet Tony Hess and sophomore Darryl Robinson. Mohrmann thinks he might have enough to challenge for second place, but he knows that everything must fall just right.

So while everybody else in the MSL tries to catch Fremd, Menely and his Vikings are in pursuit of their second state cross country title in six years. Menely figures his boys might have a shot at it.

"This Saturday we're going up to Rockford and we should find out just how good we are," said The Fremd coach. "If we do well there, we should be ranked up among the top three teams in the state. I think only York and maybe Bloom could be ahead of us."

Fremd and Conant will both journey to the Forest City Invite where they will face the challenge of tough teams from Rockford-Guilford and Naperville, among others.

If Menely's Vikings pass that test, it will call for another celebration.

Prospect's girls keep pace

Prospect's girls kept pace with typically torrid Arlington in the Mid-Suburban Conference tennis standings with an 8-0 victory over Wheeling Tuesday. Meanwhile, defending champion Arlington was polishing off Rolling Meadows by the same score.

Keeping close behind with identical 2-0 dual meet records to the frontrunners were Elk Grove, Fremd and Palatine. Grove defeated Conant, 7-1, and Palatine stopped Forest View, 7-1, and Fremd beat Rolling Meadows, 6-2.

Counting all the match points as well as a bonus point for winning the meet, Elk Grove holds down second place with 14 points. Palatine is next with 13, one point ahead of fifth-place Fremd.

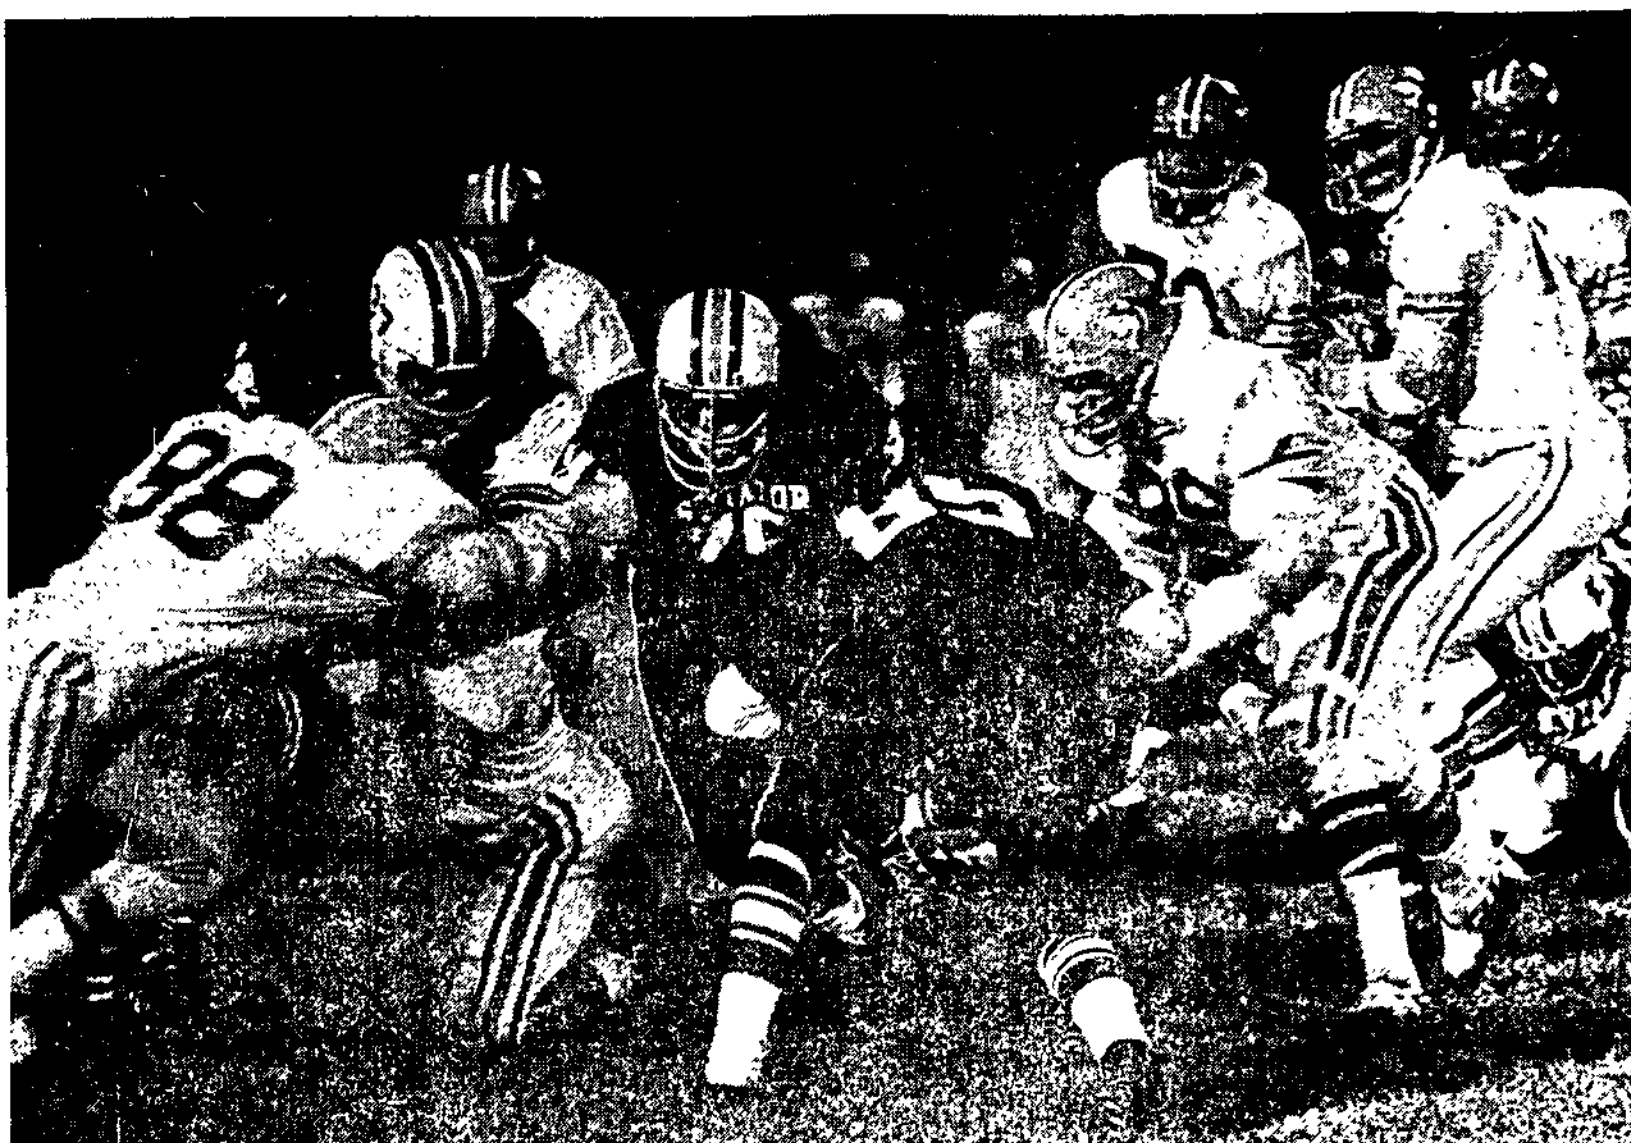

Hersey evened its record at 1-1 with an 8-0 victory over Buffalo Grove. Wheeling had a bye.

Hoffman Estates will be the only team not playing this afternoon. There are six MSC meets scheduled, all beginning at 4:30 p.m. — Wheeling at Buffalo Grove, Hersey at Forest View, Elk Grove at Palatine, Prospect at Rolling Meadows, Arlington at Conant and Fremd at Schaumburg.

Suggestions on best routes to ND-Northwestern game

Football fans holding tickets to the Northwestern-Northwestern game Saturday at Dyche Stadium in Evanston are urged to use public transportation, a new free campus parking/shuttle bus service or other parking locations offered as alternatives to ease the pressure on limited facilities adjacent to the stadium.

One of the largest crowds in Northwestern football history, a sellout throng in excess of 55,000 is anticipated.

Extensive planning by officials of Northwestern and the City of Evanston resulted in the announcement today of additional parking locations and suggested alternative routes.

Evanston City Manager Ed Martin noted, "We are extremely optimistic that we can get everyone to the game on time, and ease the strain on Central Street traffic. If fans will take advantage of the available public transportation, will double up in cars, or will use any of the alternative parking locations that have been identified."

Northwestern Athletic Director John Pont praised the City of Evanston for its cooperative attitude:

"Our parking lots adjacent to the stadium are taxed to the limit. It was imperative that we do something, and the availability of the shuttle bus service from the campus lots should really help the fans."

There are a couple of general guidelines for fans to observe for Saturday's game. Whatever way you decide to get to Dyche Stadium, plan on getting there early.

The west parking lot is open at 7:30 a.m. and the north tailgate parking lot will be open at 10 a.m.

At noon the Wildcat Marching Band will give a rehearsal of their day's music in McGraw Hall. You are invited to attend and get in the mood and spirit of the day. Both teams will be on the field at 12:20 for their pre-game warm up. So make it a point to come early.

Identification of the numbers on the map correspond to the following information.

PUBLIC TRANSPORTATION

(1.) CTA "L": In 39 minutes you can get from the Loop to Central Street in Evanston, two blocks from the stadium. Express trains will run from Howard Street starting at noon. Call the CTA at 670-5000 for information on all commuter transportation to Dyche.

(2.) C&NW RR: Central Street stop is just two blocks from the stadium. For train schedule information, call 346-7979.

(3.) Wilmette Bus Service: The three bus lines that service Wilmette all stop at 4th and Linden in Wilmette, only 3½ blocks from the stadium.

PARKING

(4.) The 4th and Linden "L" stop in Wilmette can accommodate 466 cars. The parking fee is 25 cents for the entire day.

(5.) The Haven-Kingsley School on Green Bay Road and Lincoln can accommodate 123 cars. The parking fee is $1.

(6.) Free Parking and Shuttle Bus Service: There are over 2,500 parking spaces located on Northwestern's campus. The first of the 16 CTA buses will start operating at 11:30. After the game 27 buses will get you back to the campus.

Spokane's mini-Expo

Fair fares fabulously, fortunately

by MURRAY OLDERMAN
SPOKANE, Wash. — It could have been a fiasco. As recently as last October, it was only 50-50 that it would even come off. And when Petr Spurney decided at that time to get involved in putting on a world's fair in little Spokane, even his father cautioned, "Pete, you're nuts."

Well, that little fair in Spokane — Expo '74 — is a smashing success, if you use the usual criteria for measuring such things. Attendance in mid-summer was running half a million people more than expected and by the time they told those temporary buildings by the rushing falls of the Spokane River in early November, maybe 6 million people will have worked their way through hot dogs, tacos and blinis, not to mention the exhibits. And the fair will finish in the black.

It's enough to make Pete Spurney choke.

ON THE BULLETIN board in the press room, which is in the middle of 100-acre site on two islands in the Spokane River, there is a sign which advises, "Yes, there is no 'e' in Petr." The name is Czechoslovakian and Spurney purposely didn't change it because a "guy in marketing needs to be remembered."

His title is general manager of the fair, and he was called in as a management and marketing consultant almost a year ago to salvage what loomed as a major debacle for this city of 180,000. The U.S. government, through its Commerce Department, was concerned because it had $12 million invested in an American pavilion which might go down the drain if the fair never opened.

PETR SPURNEY

So Commerce called in Spurney, a 38-year-old Washingtonian who had worked on TRANSPO '72 at Dulles International, to make an audit of the situation.

Spokane had come up with the idea of a fair because it wanted to save its deteriorating downtown district and the area by the river was a virtual skid row.

The city, with strong congressional support, had received sanction from the Bureau of International Expositions in Paris, which approves such fairs.

BUT BY THE summer of '73, with many foreign countries uncommitted, an energy crisis threatening to cut off all travel and local funds depleted, the fair was on the verge of sinking. The Economic Development Agency in Washington had even turned down a crucial $3.9 million grant.

"All the professionals in this business," recall Spurney, "said it was going to be a disaster. I was advised not to go near the place. But I thought it could be done."

Spurney was so lucid in his arguments that the fair's board hired him.

"I didn't promise them a great fair," says Spurney. "I said there would be no embarrassment." He also wheedled $2 million out of the business community in pledges and got another $2 million eventually from EDA so the financial crisis was solved.

THEN THE international oil embargo was lifted. "The Arabs," says one fair official, "God love 'em — they saved us." So people could come to Spokane.

Then Russia, whose exhibit on ecology (the theme of the fair) joined the U.S., Australia, Japan and half a dozen other foreign countries to make it a worthwhile show.

The Australians didn't arrive in Spokane until last Thanksgiving eve. They made their decision on a building two weeks later. The architects conceived a plan in three days. They returned to Parliament in Melbourne for approval and a budget. Presto, a $2 million involvement which will boost U.S.-Australian relations, not to mention tourism and trade.

"This is the first of a new breed of world's fairs," asserts Spurney. "It's about a tenth of the size of the Montreal, Brussels or Osaka extravaganzas. The Bureau of International Expositions was trying to prove you don't have to be a New York, Tokyo or London to put on a world's fair."

"THIS WILL OPEN up expos in Australia, Israel and Lebanon which can go on an annual basis while the 'biggies' are once ever 10 years."

There is a certain ripoff quality about the Spokane exhibit. It's small and crowded and overpriced. The food stands — everybody goes to a fair to eat — are jammed together. "Fifteen cents for a glass of ice water!" a college girl complains. The price of Cokes are doubled. Lines are incessant. Motels are outrageous.

But everybody comes.

And look what Spokane will be left with after Nov. 3 — a beautiful scenic park by the river, a modern 2,700-seat opera house, a convention center and a rejuvenated downtown.

AS FOR SPURNEY and the team of people he brought in to administer the exposition — at a hefty $350,000 fee — they're looking ahead to possible involvement in America's bicentennial celebration in 1976.

"Now," says Petr, "it's too much on paper and not enough in action." And he thinks he has the track record to recommend himself for the latter phase.

Canada to issue two commemoratives for UPU centennial

Two stamps, in 8-cent and 25-cent denominations, will be issued by the Canada Post Office Oct. 9 to commemorate the centennial of the Universal Postal Union.

Designed by George Gundersen of Ottawa, the adhesives depict the official UPU emblem and an engraving of the messenger god Mercury with two winged horses.

Twenty-five million 8-cent and 13 million 25-cent stamps will be printed in two-color gravure and one-color steel by the British American Bank Note Company of Ottawa. Marginal inscriptions, including the designer's name, appear on the four corners of each pane of 50 stamps. The total production will be tagged.

Collectors desiring first-day cancellations should send their requests to FDC/UPU Stamp, Philatelic Service, Canada Post Office, Ottawa, Ont., Canada K1A 0B 5.

affixed plus a 15-cent handling charge for each cover to be affixed with less than 50-cent postage, by international bank draft payable (in Canadian funds) to The Receiver General for Canada.

'Stockholmia '74' to be honored

The U. S. Postal Service will honor Stockholmia '74, the Exhibition of the Philatelic Society of Sweden, by issuing a souvenir card Sept. 21. The card depicts the United States 3-cent Swedish-Finnish Tercentenary Anniversary stamp of 1936, Sweden's 10-ore King Gustav V reengraved regular issue of 1946 and the 48-ore King Gustav VI Adolf stamp of 1967.

The card is available for $1 plus a 50-cent handling charge per order from the Philatelic Sales Division, Washington, D. C. 20534.

St. Vincent features birds

Three new definitive stamps featuring indigenous birds were released Aug. 19 by the Island of St. Vincent, West Indies.

The Royal Tern is depicted on the 30-cent adhesive; the Brown Pelican on the 40-cent and the Frigatebird on the $10 stamp. The issue replaces locally overprinted values hastily prepared in December to meet increased postal rates.

A thank-you note...

Thanks to H. W. who took the time to comment on The Herald article (Aug. 29) "Mr. Stamps" by Frederick M. Winship.

"The article expresses my thoughts on stamp collecting. It has been my experience that most people, who are not involved in the activity, believe stamps are collected only for a monetary profit. While this is a noble achievement, and I believe most collectors do it for this purpose, it is, in my opinion, quite rewarding to collect them, as Mr. Mikus says, 'For joy, education and esthetic values.' And as in my case an interest for a retiree."

Philadelphia 1869-70 U.S. gold Double Eagle a rarity

The highest denomination in U.S. gold coins was designed by James B. Longacre in 1849. As with other of the Longacre sculptures, his daughter Sarah posed for the coroneted bust.

As a coin of the realm, the Double Eagle was authorized by the Act of March 3, 1849 and discontinued under the Gold Reserve Act of Jan. 30, 1934, without any increase or reduction in weight or fineness during that 85-year period.

Only two minor points differentiate between the Double Eagle of 1849 to 1866 and the one issued between 1866 and 1876 — the addition of the motto "In God We Trust" and a slight change in the configuration of the shield on the latter. Otherwise, both coins are the same.

DOUBLE EAGLES, in contrast, are among the most commonly collected gold series by date. This may seem a bit surprising in view of the many high-priced rarities contained in both the Liberty head (Coronet) and Saint-Gaudens standing Liberty.

The $20 gold piece was issued continuously from 1850 through 1933 with the exception of three years during the U.S. involvement in World War I. The series consists of many short issues but it also contains several extremely large issues readily available to the collector/investor.

Coins of the Civil War period are difficult to obtain, and virtually any date of that period in About Uncirculated condition or better is a real collector's item. Although there are exceptions, the relationship of price to rarity is much more accurate with Double Eagles than Eagles or Quarter Eagles.

Brilliant Uncirculated Liberty head $20

Coin club show set for Sept 28-29

The Northwest Suburban Coin Club will hold its annual coin show Sept. 28-29 at the Rolling Meadows Shopping Center Mall. There is no charge for the event, which will be open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. each day.

A public auction of items valued at $15 or more will be held Sept. 28 at 2:30 p.m. A raffle drawing will be held at 3 p.m.

gold pieces dated prior to 1890 are well worth saving. Especially those struck at the Philadelphia Mint in 1869 and 1870, because they are particularly undervalued. Carson City coins are very popular and one of the prime rarities of the series.

OTHER UNDERRATED coins in the Liberty head variety are the 1891 and 1891-CC (Carson City). Both are very rare in all grades and the opportunity to buy a choice Brilliant Uncirculated specimen is most difficult indeed.

Sept. 29 with tickets available from club members or at the show. Individual displays will be set up, and a special presentation will be made to Jack Ahr, a local man who drew a winning design for the Bicentennial quarter for the U.S. Mint.

Further information about the show can be obtained by calling William Beach, 243-1620.

Several of the later date Philadelphia Mint coins offer interesting possibilities to the investor because they have markedly lower mintages than their contemporaries. The dates are 1898, 1901 and particularly the 1902, 1905 and 1906.

The 1902 for example, has a mintage of about 5 per cent of that of the 1904 and yet it sells for only twice as much. The difference in the mintage is an accurate gauge of availability because there are hundreds of choice Brilliant Uncirculated 1904s for every 1902.

Many $20 gold pieces of both the Liber-

Most are produced in the Middle East, particularly Lebanon, and collectors or investors should exercise caution in buying either type without a certificate of authentication or similar means of assurance that the coin or coins purchased are genuine.

Freddie Prinze as 'Chico'

A Latino makes it big in prime time

by VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD — Freddie Prinze, a sleepy-eyed native of the Harlem ghetto, repeated the question: "How did I get a starring role in a television series?"
"Very simple. I mugged the producer. I found Jim Komack walking on the street. I held a gun on him."
Prinze, 20, is the star of the new "Chico and the Man" show. He plays a Los Angeles Chicano in the Mexican American barrio who befriends an irascible old Anglo-American, Jack Albertson.

THE SITUATION-COMEDY is based on the generation gap as well as the cultural abyss between boy and man.

"It's a breakthrough for Latin Americans on television," said young Prinze. "This is the first time a Chicano or a Puerto Rican has had an opportunity to do his thing on the tube."

"Latins are the next ethnic minority to make it in show business. It's our turn. The blacks made it in the 1960s. It's us in the 1970s."

Humor in the United States is altogether different and more sophisticated than humor in Central and South America. Just as he is sure black American humor is light years different from African humor.

PRINZE DID NOT rip off producer Komack. Komack saw the young monologist on the Johnny Carson show last December and signed him up for the NBC series.

"We expected some objection from Chicanos that a New York Puerto Rican would be playing the role," Freddie said. "But we speak the same language, Spanish. And we're going through the same social changes."

"I think Chicanos have it harder than Puerto Ricans because there is more prejudice against them, and because they have been struggling longer. And this land was once theirs. That's tough."

"Puerto Ricans have it easier, too, because there is no migrant farm worker problem with us."

"When the show first started I went to a Chicano rally and made a speech. I told the people if it was a Chicano playing a Puerto Rican I would want him to give the best image he could of my people. And in my position I am doing the same."

PRINZE IS ONLY half Puerto Rican. On his father's side he is of Hungarian extraction.

"Yes," he said, "but I was closer to my mother than my father. We lived in a Puerto Rican neighborhood. My grandmother — my father's mother — lived in the Hungarian area of New York. I spoke Spanish as a kid, not Hungarian."

"Anyhow, if you think Puerto Ricans are a minority, how about the Hungarians?"

"There are 15 million Chicanos in the United States," Freddie insisted although his figures were challenged. "and nearly a million Puerto Ricans in New York alone."

"It's time we had a few things going on television. And 'Chico and the Man' is the beginning."

Now a plaza named Woodfield

Another development in that sprawl of industrial and retail property near Woodfield shopping center was unveiled Wednesday with an open house for real estate brokers at the Woodfield Office Plaza.

Newly completed is one eight-story, all-electric building with a second building slated for a fall opening. The plaza, now being developed just west of Woodfield shopping center, is the project of J. Emil Anderson & Son, 1400 Touhy Ave., Des Plaines.

The new building will be occupied next year by its major tenant, Safeco Insurance Companies. The building is now more than 50 per cent leased, according to James H. Anderson, vice president.

The plaza is an adjunct to Anderson's 325-acre Woodfield Park, a planned commercial development adjacent to the shopping center. It all is part of what is now being called the Greater Woodfield area, property which is close to Woodfield but not part of the retail center.

Woodfield Plaza will eventually be part of a commercial region which includes the shopping center and Woodfield 78, a planned development which will be built on the site of the Union 76 company property just north of the shopping center.

Exactly how the commercial center will emerge is anyone's guess, although it is clear that the section of the Northwest suburbs shown in the aerial photograph is rapidly becoming one of the most desirable — and costliest — pieces of land in the county, or the Midwest.

The Anderson property, which laps over Meacham Road and includes the highly commercial strip along Rte. 58, is destined for a variety of uses. Woodfield Park is a purely commercial development, the Plaza is designed as a business center. A crucial element in the development of the area is the junction of Rte. 53 and the Northwest Tollway; the intersection is considered the key to the growth of the Northwest suburbs and may become the transportation hub of suburban industrial growth.

Something new...

Today's Herald offers something new, the first in a weekly review of real estate and business activities in the Northwest suburbs.

On this page each Thursday you'll find the latest information about area real estate developments and trends in business and industry. We'll also try to keep you informed about inflation, investments and the people who are in the housing and savings industries in the suburbs.

We recognize that the Northwest suburbs is a thriving and growing market with new families moving in and older ones planning to stay. This page will be about our area's most famous commodity — homes for families and industry to support them.

A suburban house: can you do it on $13,000 a year?

On an income of $13,000 a year, Robert and Jenni Baker bought a $26,000 home in the suburbs and are living happily ever after.

Sound familiar? It should, it happens all the time, but in this time of high interest rates and tight money, how can a family manage?

The Federal National Mortgage Association, known in the trade as FNMA, or Fannie Mae, sought out just such a family and told about them in its 1974 mid-year report.

Here's what Fannie Mae found:

ROBERT BAKER was transferred to Oklahoma City by Wilson & Co. the meat packing firm and his employer for five years. The Bakers found a modest home in the suburbs priced at $26,000 and put down an earnest deposit of $200. They then applied for a 95 per cent conventional mortgage and got one at 8.6 per cent for 30 years. Their monthly payment was figured at $240.07:

Principal and interest	$191.92
Taxes	31.16
Hazard insurance	11.84
Private mort. insurance	5.15
Total	$240.07

For Fannie Mae, the Baker mortgage represented a portion of $3.2 billion worth of FHA-insured, VA-guaranteed and conventionally financed mortgages purchased by the organization. It is not the only source of residential mortgage credit; but it is the largest.

At 8.6 per cent interest, relatively few debts and the cushion of some $2,000 extra a year from National Guard duty, the Bakers can make it, but what is wrong with this story?

In Oklahoma City, the Bakers bought a three bedroom ranch-style home with 1½ baths for $26,000. Interest was 8.6 per cent.

In the Northwest suburbs and the entire Chicago region, the best a buyer could do would be 9.5 per cent interest and finding a three-bedroom ranch for $26,000 is doubtful, if not impossible.

The Bakers also got a conventional mortgage at 9.5 per cent, a deal which is unheard of in Chicago unless your father is the banker, and even then it would be tough. Most banks require up to 50 per cent down, many savings and loans a third or one quarter down.

IN OKLAHOMA City, the Bakers were able to leave their apartment behind for a home of their own. They figure they are paying $60 more per month than they paid for an apartment, but they are building equity toward a bigger home some day, or as investment capital.

Yet based on their income, even including a part time job which nets Jenni Baker $100 a month working in a clothes store, the Bakers would probably be entirely out of the housing market in the Northwest suburbs. They might be eligible for a condominium or quadro-home which requires less of down payment, but a house and lot with attached two-car garage would be tough to swing right now.

A FAIRLY NEW house similar to their $28,000 Oklahoma City home would cost close to $40,000 today in the Northwest suburbs.

The taxes they pay now of $31.16 per month is about half the taxes they could expect to pay here.

Does this mean Bob and Jenni Baker couldn't live in the Northwest suburbs? Well, not exactly. If Bob transferred from Oklahoma City to Chicago, he could expect a raise. Salaries here are higher to meet the cost of housing and other expenses. At least $2,000 a year to $15,000 seems right. Food costs seem to average about the same from region to region with minor differences in specialties of the area. Clothing follows the same trend as do the various expenses of family life.

The big cost is housing, for Bob and Jenni Baker, for the Federal National Mortgage Association which found them and made them a typical young family, and for the rest of us — the mortgagors and the mortgagees — who are trying to make ends meet.

The Baker Family Budget

Monthly Expenses
Mortgage payment	$240.07
Car payment	90.60
Gasoline	35.00
Food	160.00
Personal insurance	60.00
Telephone	9.00
Electricity	25.00
Gas (utility)	10.00
Water	8.00
Doctor	10.00
Savings	40.00
Misc. expenses for Bob (lunches)	40.00
TOTAL	$727.67
Net Monthly Income
Bob	$775.00
Jenni	$100.00
TOTAL	$875.00
In addition, Bob receives approximately $2,000 net per year from the National Guard.
Difference between income and expenses is used for clothing, home improvement, savings and unforeseen expenses.

A HOME in the suburbs. Bob and Jenni Baker did it on that sum in the Northwest suburbs? It would be close. $13,000 a year, but can a family make it any more with Suburbanites live in the suburbs but work in the city, right? Wrong.

The vanishing commuter

That is the highlight of a recent study of commuting patterns in Illinois' metropolitan areas. Most suburban dwellers live and work outside the cities.

So reports Marshall C. Dennison, president of Associated Mortgage Companies, Inc., a Philadelphia-based national real estate financing and servicing organization.

Based on an analysis of the commuter profile of Illinois' city and suburban residents between 1970 and the first half of 1974, Dennison makes the following observations:

- Of all workers living in this state's suburbs, 64 per cent — on the average — work in their immediate suburban communities. By 1980, this portion should climb to 68 per cent, he predicts.

- Suburbanites who make the daily trek to urban downtown are approximately 26 per cent, and by end-decade, this will fall to 23 per cent.

- As for the suburban resident who works in a distant town, the group remains fairly stable — in the 4 per cent range.

- Of the workers who live in-city, Dennison notes, an average of 72 per cent work in the city. He forecasts that this number will decline — but very slowly over the next few years.

- The portion of city dwellers who hold jobs in suburbia — about 19 per cent today — will increase only slightly during this decade.

- Only a small portion of city-siders commute long distances.

Dennison points out that nationally, 61 per cent of workers residing in suburbia work near their homes. Only 27 per cent commute to the city and 7 per cent for greater distances. Of the urbanites, 73 per cent work in-town, another 16 per cent commute to the city fringes and only 3 per cent travel farther.

These patterns reflect the burgeoning commercial development in local suburbs and in outlying communities from coast to coast.

"The expansion of the residential suburbs during the 1960s is today being matched by business-related construction — industrial parks, shopping centers and offices.

"And, once the current tight money market eases, commercial construction will again 'take off' in suburban communities throughout Illinois.

"It's simply a case of bringing the work place to the people," Dennison concludes.

No wonder you wait in line

SPRINGFIELD, ILL. (UPI) — Illinois lags far behind other major states in the availability of bank services, according to a study by the Association for Modern Banking in Illinois.

The study, released this week showed that in 1973 there was only one bank facility for every 9,515 Illinois residents. New York had one for every 5,083 persons and California one for every 5,553.

"The people of Illinois are not being allowed to have the degree of banking services that is now standard in other populous states," said Walter J. Charlton, Kankakee, president of AMBI.

"They are being deprived not by any lack of initiative or interest on the part of bankers, but by a law that has not been changed since Illinois was frontier country in 1848. This study shows how far behind this state now is in meeting the important financial needs of its people," he said, referring to an Illinois law that prohibits both branch banking and multibanking holding companies.

AMBI, representing more than 260 banks in Illinois, advocates legislation that modernizing Illinois banking by removing the prohibition against branch banking and multioffice holding companies.

Easier mortgage makes townhouse good buy in today's tight market

In today's tight home-building market, where prices are skyrocketing and mortgage money is hard to get, a townhouse may be your best buy.

That's because you can get a mortgage of up to $35,000 for 30 years at 8-1/2 per cent interest which, with a 5 per cent downpayment, will buy a $35,000 townhouse.

Many townhouses being built in the Chicago area are priced around this figure, while single-family homes are generally higher, reports Jack Hoffman, chairman of Hoffman Rosner Corporation, publicly held diversified construction and development company.

The company's Hoffman Homes division is currently building townhouses in two communities: Westlake in west suburban Bloomingdale/Glendale Heights and Indian Oaks in southwest suburban Bolingbrook. Depending on location, prices of townhouses range from $27,000 to $39,500.

"In view of the greater availability of mortgage money for homes in this price range, we expect to be selling more townhouses in the coming months, although we think the situation for single-family homes, which command higher prices, will eventually improve," Hoffman said.

For couples just getting started, small families, and older or retired couples, townhouses are the ideal form of housing, he added.

Because they make more efficient use of land and construction economies, townhouses can offer a great deal of space for proportionately less money than a single-family home.

At Westlake, for example, the newest townhouse design is the single-story Sycamore, with three bedrooms (or two bedrooms and den), one bath, living room, dining room, foyer, kitchen, a full basement and a choice of a one or two-car garage. Prices begin at $34,490.

The townhouse rooms are large. The Sycamore's living room is 16 by 13 feet, the dining area 12 by 8 feet, the master EFFICIENT USE OF land and construction economies enables townhouse builders to offer more space for proportionately less money than a single-family home. The spacious Uptown model at Indian Oaks is one of 15 townhomes currently being offered by Hoffman Homes

Division of Hoffman Rosner Corp. at Indian Oaks in Bolingbrook and Westlake in the Bloomingdale/Glendale Heights area. The firm also continues to show a large array of single-family homes at both communities and Frankfort Square near Frankfort.

bedroom 14 by 12 feet, the second bedroom 13 by 9 feet, the third bedroom or den 10 by 8 feet, and the kitchen 12 by 8 feet. The 40 by 25 foot basement doubles the living area of the home.

Nine other townhouse models are available at Westlake, including ranch and two-story plans, ranging in price from $26,990 to $39,500.

At Indian Oaks, five townhouse models range from $29,990 to $33,990, with two-car garages $1,000 additional.

A popular Indian Oaks townhouse is the Villager, a two-story design with three bedrooms, 1 1/2 baths, and a choice of one or two-car garage. Demonstrating the spaciousness of a townhouse, the Villager on its main floor has a large foyer, powder room, 12 by 8 1/2 foot breakfast area, 11 by 8 1/2 foot kitchen, 15 by 14 foot rear-facing living room and 11 by 9 foot dining area.

Upstairs, there's a 17 by 11 1/2 foot master bedroom, 15 by 10 foot second bedroom and 10 by 10 foot third bedroom, plus full bath. For even more space, the house has a 30 by 23 foot full basement. Price is $33,990; a two-car garage is $1,000 additional.

At both Indian Oaks and Westlake, townhouse owners belong to a homeowners association which owns and operates clubhouse, swimming pool and other recreational facilities. The association also arranges for maintenance of the grounds. Members pay a monthly fee to the association.

Westlake can be reached by taking the I-90 extension of the Eisenhower Expressway west to the Route 53 south turnoff. Go south on Route 53 to Army Trail Rd. then west to Bloomingdale Rd. Turn left to models.

To reach Indian Oaks, take Stevenson Expressway (I-55) to Route 53, then go north 1 1/2 miles to Boughton Rd.; then west 1 1/2 miles to the models.

Models at both locations are open daily to 6 p.m.

Lincoln Federal now offers 12-year improvement loans

No money down home improvement loans for up to $10,000 are now being offered by Lincoln Federal Savings and Loan Association.

They can be amortized over periods up to 12 years under revised provisions of FHA Title I, assistant vice president Dennis B. Kosobucki has announced.

Previously, Title I permitted improvement loan maximums up to $5,000 with a seven-year repayment period top.

On loans of up to $7,500, exclusive of finance charges, no recorded lien will be necessary.

Kosobucki pointed out it is not necessary to have a Lincoln Federal mortgage or be a Lincoln customer to obtain a modernization loan. Because of the smaller dollar volume and earlier repayment per loan, Kosobucki declared, improvement funds are not affected by the money bind that confronts conventional mortgages.

Dennis B. Kosobucki

Real estate seminar held

A special seminar on industrial real estate appraisal was presented by the Appraisers Council of the Chicago Real Estate Board at the La Salle Hotel on Wednesday, September 18, according to Council Chairman John J. Lydon, MAI, of Richard J. Leyden Co.

Program coordinator Lawrence P. Darrow, MAI, of L. P. Darrow & Associates, said the program has been developed to serve the needs of appraisers who come in contact with more than residential properties. He said the seminar reflects the requests of many appraisers who responded to a survey earlier this year.

Subjects covered included:

Industrial markets, trends and patterns; led by William P. Cowhey, SIR, vice president and general manager of the industrial division of Arthur Rubloff & Co., and Joseph G. Dillon, SIR, vice president and director of Harrington, Tideman, O'Leary & Co.

Development and construction; discussion led by J. R. Gottlieb, president of J. R. Gottlieb & Co., and member of the board of directors of CREB.

Market data presentation and analysis; delivered by Kurt L. Reilman, MAI, vice president of Mid-America Appraisal & Research Corp.

Income approach analysis; presented by Ronald H. Becker, MAI, vice president of George Becker & Co., and chairman of the Education Committee of the Illinois Chapter of the American Institute of Real Estate Appraisers.

Capitalization methods and techniques; explained by John E. Shanahan, MAI, owner of John E. Shanahan & Associates, and an instructor for the AIREA.

Ralph Lobodzinski, newer to the Annen & Busse staff, has exhibited outstanding sales qualities since he began his real estate career some 12 months ago.

TROUBLED OVER HIGH INTEREST RATES?

It is true interest rates have risen, but they do seem to have stabilized in the past several months. And while the rates may seem high, they are not climbing as rapidly as are labor and material costs. An increase or a decrease of ½ percent in interest rates only amounts to 30¢ per month per $1,000 on a 25-year loan. Is it really wise to deny yourself the security, pleasure and pride of home ownership on the vague hope of interest rates going down, thus saving you only $3 or $4 a month? The value of your home will increase at a much faster rate than can be gained by any lowering of interest rates. NOW is a good time to buy!

WORRIED ABOUT "TIGHT MONEY?"

"Tight money" comes and goes. Its most serious offense is when it prevents people from making investments which will benefit them, both now and in the future. The people who did not let the "tight money" talk of 1959 or of 1966 get in the way of their home-buying decision are in the "driver's seat" today. Money is available for good mortgages, and the person who invests in a home today is the person who will enjoy all the benefits of living in a home of his own as well as seeing his investment increase in value. NOW is a good time to buy!

THINK THE COST OF EXISTING HOMES WILL GO DOWN?

Forget it! The law of supply and demand will never be repealed, particularly insofar as existing homes are concerned. Fewer homes are being built today because of the increased cost of building, yet the number of families in the home-buying market is rapidly increasing. As the World War II "babies" continue to marry and have families of their own, the demand for homes will multiply. The present supply of established homes available to you will diminish quicker than you might expect. NOW is a good time to buy!

AREN'T CONVINCED OF THE ADVANTAGES OF HOME OWNERSHIP?

Consider these points. You provide a more stable environment for your family. You insure yourself of the greatest possible hedge against inflation. You get the tax advantages of deducting the interest you pay on your loan and your property taxes. You are building equity in property as opposed to collecting worthless rent receipts. You become a part of your own community, enjoying a status and a sense of fulfillment which is impossible to measure in material terms. You gain more through home ownership than through any other purchase you can ever make. NOW is a good time to buy!

WE CAN HELP YOU WITH FINANCING!

Employers will help sell old houses

If your employer offers you a job in another city, the chances are a little better than even that he'll help you dispose of your old residence. If you decide to take him up on his offer, a recent survey of corporate moving practices indicates.

Fifty-one per cent of the 286 companies responding to Atlas Van Lines' seventh annual survey of corporate moving practices said they offer some sort of assistance to transferred employees in disposing of their former residences.

Asked how they would help, 42 per cent of those companies who do help their employees said they would guarantee sale of the old house, while 43 per cent said they actually would purchase the employee's old house themselves. If no other buyer could be located in a reasonable time.

Thirty-six per cent of the companies said they will pay for needed alterations to drapes, carpeting, etc., moved from one city to another, while 19 per cent will buy new drapes and carpeting to replace similar furnishings left behind in the old city.

Exactly 25 per cent of the companies who do help their employees out on housing-related matters will make good any increased income-tax liability their people may incur as a result of accepting transfers, and 17 per cent will pay in cash any difference between the sale price of an employee's old home and the purchase price of an essentially similar house in the new city. And 35 per cent of the companies offer other forms of housing assistance, such as payment of brokerage fees, aid in locating mortgage-loan sources and payments of cash bonuses based on salary level.

If you rent, though, only 8 per cent of companies will pay you the difference between your former monthly rent and the "going rate" for similar quarters in the new city.

Of those companies which actually will buy an employee's former residence, 78 per cent say they use the appraised value of the house as the price which they will pay the employee. Ten per cent use the average of two appraisals as the purchase price, and seven per cent require three appraisals to be made. None of the companies surveyed said they would pay an employee's asking price, and only 5 per cent will bargain with an employee to reach a price agreement.

The survey also revealed that the so-called "tight mortgage money market" of the last year or so has greatly affected the personnel relocation schedules of only 8 per cent of responding companies, while an additional 35 per cent say they have been only mildly affected. The remaining 57 per cent say they have not been affected at all.

Also, 31 per cent of companies permit an employee to make as many expense-paid trips to the new city as necessary for him to locate new housing (up from 25.2 per cent last year), while 33 per cent permit a maximum of two trips to be made (down from 38.2 per cent last year). Only 28 per cent allow only one such trip (down from 35 per cent in 1973), but a surprising 8 per cent say they permit no such househunting trips.

Somewhat similarly, 19 per cent of the companies will pay for as many househunting trips to the new city as needed for the employee's wife or husband (up from 13.1 per cent last year), while 28 per cent permit a maximum of two trips (down from 29.3 per cent in 1973). But 42 per cent will pay for only one such trip (down from 56.1 per cent last year) and 11 per cent permit a spouse no such trips.

June is still the most popular moving month, being cited as the month in which the greatest number of their moves are concentrated by 22 per cent of the companies responding (down from 29.7 per cent last year). June, July and August were cited as their biggest moving months by 43 per cent of the companies (virtually the same as last year). And 76 per cent of the companies which do move most of their employees during the summer say they do so because of the "traditional school year."

Atlas Van Lines, Inc., headquartered in Evansville, Ind., is a major worldwide household goods carrier, with more than 600 agents in the U.S. and 100 other countries.

Definitions ease confusion for possible land owners

Thinking about investing in real estate? You've probably heard and considered all the arguments for it. Property ownership protects against inflation. Value of property frequently rises with price increases elsewhere, while fixed-income investments — savings accounts, bonds and mortgages — are redeemable in a fixed dollar amount, often with a diminished purchasing power.

But arguments for property ownership don't lessen a potential investor's confusion over laws associated with that ownership. Easements, zoning restrictions, covenants and mortgage conditions are bewildering when not fully understood.

The following definitions of some terms may lessen confusion for prospective property owners:

Covenant — an agreement that the purchased property will not be used for certain purposes.

Deposit receipt — a contract containing all terms and conditions of purchase of property.

Lien — the right of one who has loaned money for the purchase of property to sell property if owner defaults. Liens also may be for unpaid taxes or to satisfy court judgments.

Public rights — these include the right to tax and acquire property for public use.

Right of escheat — the right of government to claim property after owner's death if there are no legal heirs.

Variance — permission to use property in a way not allowed under zoning laws in effect.

Zoning right — a public right which dictates how property may be used. Zoning restrictions are decided by a zoning commission and are subject to public hearing before being changed.

A Realtor can help the prospective property owner interpret factors that apply to a particular real estate property. He or she also can guide the buyer and seller through steps necessary in transferring ownership.

Stark will attend training conference

Robert W. Stark, president of Robert W. Stark & Co., Realtors will attend the real estate training directors conference

Robert Stark

October 10-11 at Tan-Tar-A, Osage Beach, Mo. The meeting will bring together training directors from some 40 of the largest real estate firms in the nation to discuss the very latest methods and techniques to use in training and re-training real estate salesmen. Stark has recently been elected to membership in the American Society for Training and Development, a professional society representing over 9,500 persons who have training and development responsibilities in business, industry, government and service organizations.

Robert W. Stark & Co. has five real estate offices with over 50 salesmen in the northwest suburbs and has plans to add additional offices in the near future.

Water Tower Place buyers can custom design homes

Purchasers of Water Tower Place condominium residences may custom design their homes.

Although six standard floor plans, each with several variations, are available, other configurations may be designed so long as they are compatible with the structural requirements of the building.

The more than 200 Water Tower Place condominium residences will occupy the upper 40 floors of the 74-story shopping center-office-hotel-condominium complex that is under construction on the east side of North Michigan Ave. between Pearson and Chestnut Streets.

The residences range in size from 1,775 sq. ft. (two bedrooms, two baths) to 3,320 sq. ft. (four bedrooms, five baths), and in price from $114,600 to $252,000.

"Future residents of Water Tower Place who wish to custom design their homes will realize a considerable saving by specifying floor plan changes prior to actual construction," said Richard A. Meyers, president of Richard A. Meyers Realty, Inc., the marketing agent for the Water Tower Place condominiums. "Options for customizing residences as well as for reserving specific locations within the building will necessarily be reduced as construction and residential purchasing proceed. Alterations made after construction may require costly structural changes."

Aside from custom designing opportunities, purchasers of Water Tower Place condominium residences will find a wide variety of options available in the six standard floor plans. In the larger residences (model A, B and C), the standard options are: a large master bathroom featuring a sauna or a his-and-her bath; the repositioning of a bedroom to provide a maid's room or a separate bedroom suite. In model D, a large two-bedroom home, the resident may choose between a large bath or a his-and-her bath. In model F, the standard option includes the choice of a library in place of the second bedroom.

Each residence will have nine-foot-high ceilings to provide an added dimension of spaciousness. Baths, saunas, dressing rooms and closets will form separate suites, distinct from the bedrooms they serve.

Among standard decorating options in Water Tower Place, cabinetry for condominium kitchens, baths and bars is available from Mutchler and St. Charles Custom Kitchens. All master bathrooms will have travertine marble floors. Kitchens will be equipped with General Electric signature line appliances from which residents may choose a four-burner range with a grill, a five-burner range or a seven-burner range.

A selection of the decorating options are featured in the three model residences, which are located in the condominium sales pavilion on the fourth floor of the Blair Building, at 645 North Michigan Avenue.

Don't wait to buy home

Here's a word of advice for home seekers who have put off buying in the hope that interest rates will decline. "Don't wait!" said H. Jackson Pontius, executive vice president of the National Association of Realtors.

"Regardless of what the interest rate may be, the longer the prospective home buyer waits, the more he will have to pay for his house when he finally decides to act," Pontius explained.

"Furthermore, there is no indication that mortgage interest rates will drop in the foreseeable future," the Realtor executive says. "It is more likely that rates will continue to rise."

Recent reports from the Federal Home Loan Bank Board bear out that opinion. Mortgage interest rates continued their rise in July. The average effective rate on conventional new home loans climbed to 8.97 per cent from June's 8.85 per cent, and the July, 1973, rate of 7.67 per cent. The rate on existing homes rose to 9 per cent from 8.84 per cent a month earlier and 7.84 per cent a year earlier.

"The National Association is acutely aware of rising mortgage interest rates and the tight money situation," Pontius said. "We are working with the Administration to support any measure that will slow down the continuing spiral of an inflationary market."

"Such a slowdown requires more than a governmental effort, however. It must be a consideration of all labor and industry," he added.

But even if interest rates were to decline in 1975, Pontius points out, the saving on interest would be more than offset by the increased cost of housing.

"Mortgage interest is only one factor the prospective homeowner should consider," Pontius advised. "He should remember that once he takes possession of his home, he begins to acquire equity in addition to monthly amortization. And he should bear in mind that mortgage interest charges as well as property taxes are tax deductible. During the first years of an amortized loan, this deduction can be considerable."

So, by current statistics, by the outlook for the future and by commonsense practicality, now is a good time for families who are seeking a new home to consult a Realtor, Pontius concluded.

Phase II Opens 1-24 Ital

Versailles-on-the-Lake, a luxury apartment complex in northwestern suburban Schaumburg, is opening Phase II of the development for September occupancy.

This second phase of construction, an 8 million dollar endeavor, is comprised of eight 3-story buildings spaced over approximately 14 acres of the 30-acre development. Phase II will have a par-3 golf course, tennis, a swimming pool and bath house, in addition to the existing facilities — a lake, extensive gardens, and the clubhouse complex with its swimming pool, meeting rooms, lounge, sauna and other facilities.

There will be a total of 410 apartments in Phase II, including studio, one, two and two-bedroom-plus-den apartments. Rentals range from $250 to $430 per month. The apartments are heated and air-conditioned. Rental includes appliances and underground parking.

Versailles on the Lake apartments are located at Golf Road and North Plum Grove Road in Schaumburg, 1/2 mile west of Route 53 and Woodfield Mall Shopping Center. Furnished model apartments are open from 10 a.m. to 9:30 p.m. daily and Sunday from 1 p.m. to 6 p.m.

New housing law stimulates sales

People in the market for new or older homes can expect some welcome assistance from the housing bill signed by President Ford in late August, according to Jack Hoffman, chairman of the Hoffman Rosner Corporation, a major Chicago area home builder.

"By raising the ceilings on conventional and FHA mortgages, the new law makes it possible for people to obtain higher mortgages at low down payments," he said. "This should have the effect of bringing more people into the market for single-family homes which have been hard hit by rising costs and tight money."

While the rules and regulations implementing the new housing law have yet to filter down to the working level, Hoffman said that in general, the law will work in the following manner.

Savings and loan associations, the source of most conventional mortgages, will now be able to make mortgages of up to $35,000 at low down payments for single-family homes.

Jack Hoffman

"Previously, savings and loan companies were limited to a $36,000 mortgage for 5 per cent down, and $45,000 for 10 per cent down," Hoffman said. "This in effect meant that the top price of a house a buyer could afford for a 5 per cent down payment was $37,800, while for 10 per cent, he could afford a $50,000 home."

"But with many single-family homes for middle-income people selling for over $50,000, the old ceilings meant that a good many buyers couldn't get the low down payment financing they needed. The new law raises the ceiling to $55,000 for 10 per cent down and to $40,000 for 5 per cent down. This means that a qualified person should be able to buy a $61,100 house if the down payment is 10 per cent, and a $42,100 house if the down payment is 5 per cent."

Hoffman said that commitments for these loans will be made to home builders by local savings and loan companies which in turn will rely on government purchases of mortgages to supply them with funds. To help the savings and loan companies get the money to make such loans, the new housing law increases the size of mortgage loans that can be purchased by the Federal National Mortgage Association (Fannie Mae) and the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corporation (Freddie Mac) from $35,000 to $55,000.

"This government assistance is vital to the savings and loan companies because of the lower amount of savings deposits which they rely on to make mortgage loans," Hoffman said. "I expect government support of mortgages will continue for a long time, until savers once again begin adding to the S&L deposits."

The interest rates charged for the mortgages under the new law will be at the market level, currently limited to 9 1/2 per cent in Illinois.

"Meanwhile, our own company continues to have 8 1/2 per cent interest mortgages available under previous commitments which we hope can be applied under terms of the new law," Hoffman said.

The second way the new law will help is by raising the ceiling on FHA-insured mortgages, thus making it easier to get financing for the sale of existing homes.

The new limit is now a $45,000 mortgage, compared with the old limit of $33,000. The down payment required is 3 per cent on the first $25,000; 10 per cent of the next $10,000; and 20 per cent of the remainder. This makes it possible for a person to put down $5,000 on a $50,000 house and get a $45,000 mortgage.

Currently FHA rates are 9 1/2 per cent plus 1/4 per cent mortgage insurance premium.

"Considering that many home prospects would buy a new house if they were able to finance the sale of their present one, the raising of the ceiling should help stimulate second home sales," Hoffman said.

Hoffman's advice to home prospects is to resume shopping around for the home of their choice, since financing is available, and the new law should make the terms more attractive than they have been in recent months.

The Hoffman Homes division of the Hoffman Rosner Corporation is currently building Westlake in west suburban Bloomingdale/Glendale Heights; Indian Oaks in southwest suburban Bolingbrook; and Frankfort Square near south suburban Frankfort.

Wilshire Green sweeps top awards

Wilshire Green, the luxury club condominium development being constructed by the J. H. Snyder Company in Indian Head Park at the intersection of Wolf and Joliet Roads on the site of the former Acacia Country Club, swept "Gold Key" condominium award honors in the recent Design 74 competition held by the Home Builders Association of Chicago.

Of the four top awards for condominiums, Wilshire Green was awarded three, missing out only in the one category below its price class for which it was not eligible. Wilshire Green was given the top award for "Land Use—Total Environment" for a condominium community, and for its Units E and F for the price categories applicable for those units.

Elliott B. Badanes, the Chicago Division Manager for the J. H. Snyder Company, the developer, compared this achievement by Wilshire Green to the sweep of all the Oscars by a movie, exceeding even such a movie as "The Sting," which received many accolades, but not all. This comparison is made since entrants included condominium units over all the greater Chicagoland area who failed to top Wilshire Green in any of the categories for which that community was eligible.

Wilshire Green's victory in the category for "Land Use—Total Environment" relates directly to the open land plan achieved by Wilshire Green, its luxurious landscaping of open areas and novel landscaping of the deck over the garage. The award was also a tribute to Wilshire Green's million dollar club facility, which includes both indoor and outdoor swimming pools, elaborate exercise room, teen lounge, card room, billiard room, cocktail lounge and gracious main lounge.

Unit E, (which is identical to Unit A), was another winner for Wilshire Green. It is a two bedroom with den unit and large living room, large dining area plus an eat-in kitchen. It is completely equipped with GE side-by-side refrigerator, double oven and range, stacked washer-dryer, dishwasher and disposer. As in all units at Wilshire Green, the windows are floor to ceiling and dual glazed. Again, as in all units, the E (and A) have balconies or terraces.

The F unit (which is identical to the J, K and Q units) also received the top award in its price category. This unit is a three bedroom unit with large living room, L-shaped dining area, and like all units at Wilshire Green, (except the one bedroom units) includes two well equipped baths—one with stall shower, and one with tub shower with cultured marble vanity tops and indirect lighting.

Badanes announced that sales were proceeding rapidly in spite of an otherwise depressed housing market and expected fully that this recognition by a jury of the Chicago Chapter of the American Institute of Architects and the Chicago Association of Commerce and Industry would be a further stimulant to sales at Wilshire Green.

Firm leases warehouse

Kolar Laboratories Inc. has leased 23,000 sq. ft. in the Dan Ryan Expressway Warehouse at 1801 South Lumber Street, Chicago. The reported rental is 62 cents a sq. ft. A. Jules Milten, and Robert B. Miehle of Harrington, Tideman, O'Leary & Co. were the brokers.

Sales volume up

Sales volume of existing single-family homes in July was 0.2 per cent above the level for the same month last year, according to survey results released today by the National Association of Realtors.

Results run counter to those reported for June when the volume of sales was 8.3 per cent below the level of the same month in 1973.

Survey results, reported by the Association's Department of Economics and Research, are based upon reports from more than 100 boards nationally. More than half of these market areas—51.2 per cent—experienced rising sales in July, compared with only 30.9 per cent in June.

In addition, the survey indicates that the median price of an existing single-family home in July was $33,030, compared with $32,880 the previous month and $29,920 for July, 1973. This is an increase of 10.4 per cent from the same month last year.

This marked the fifth consecutive month that the year-to-year price rise exceeded 10 per cent. Prices reported are for homes actually sold during the month.

By region, July's median sales price of an existing home compared as follows with the price for July, 1973:

Northeast Region	1974 - $36,470	1973 - $33,800
North Central	1974 - $28,300	1973 - $26,100
Southern	1974 - $33,470	1973 - $30,160
Western	1974 - $35,480	1973 - $32,310

By price class, 32.9 per cent of existing single-family homes sold in July at $40,000 or more; 24.5 per cent were in the $30,000 to $39,999 range; 27.0 per cent, $20,000 to $29,999; 9.6 per cent, $15,000 to $19,999; and 6 per cent, less than $15,000.

Figures for the highest and lowest price classes follow a long-term trend: Percentage of sales in the highest classes continues to increase, while the percentage of sales in the lowest categories decreases.

Phase II in Wheeling opens early

In a quiet, almost unheralded manner, Harmony Builders, the developers of the Harmony Village townhomes in Wheeling, adjacent to Northbrook, have just unveiled the Phase II section of their burgeoning new community. About a year old, sales have so far exceeded their expectations that the new grand opening is considered to be making its debut about six months before schedule.

With apologies to Robert Ruark, it is now convincingly established that the townhomes of Harmony Village offer "something of value." That is essentially the reason for its inordinate success according to Gene Gayle, sales manager. He was deliberate in pointing out that in his judgment, "we offer infinitely more for the home dollar." Gayle then moved to one of the five models he proudly shows and said, "This is the Fremont, a three bedroom, 2 1/2 bath townhome, that as you can readily see is simply tremendous with 2,679 sq. ft. of the most thoughtfully conceived use of living space, every luxury one would want, for a price of $47,900. I've checked the market place, seen our competition, read all the ads, and I honestly know of nothing to compare with this, or any of our other models at their respective prices. I'm convinced that, despite fewer housing starts, tighter mortgage money and the higher costs everywhere, give people value for their money and people will buy your product. That's among the topmost reasons why we're doing so well at Harmony Village."

A total complex of 225 townhomes in both sections I and II with many already occupied, others sold and being readied for occupancy, Phase II, in addition to making available many refreshingly new ideas in their five models, also marks the opening of the community clubhouse. An imposing structure, the clubhouse has a tastefully carpeted lounge, a fireplace, game room and an extraordinarily large kitchen for special occasion entertainment. Alongside the rear of the clubhouse is the huge swimming pool with a mammoth sun deck for those who prefer taking it easy in the sun.

Though Phase II will offer the same five basic models that were sold in the initial offering, the homes have been so dramatically decorated and accessorized that they all seem substantially different from their predecessors, and, in fact, they are. The five models are: the Alpine, Bradford, Eastgate, Fremont and Clayton. All have three bedrooms, except for the Clayton with four. The Clayton, Eastgate and Fremont have 2 1/2 baths with the Alpine and Bradford having 1 1/2 baths. All five models feature full basements with attached full car garages.

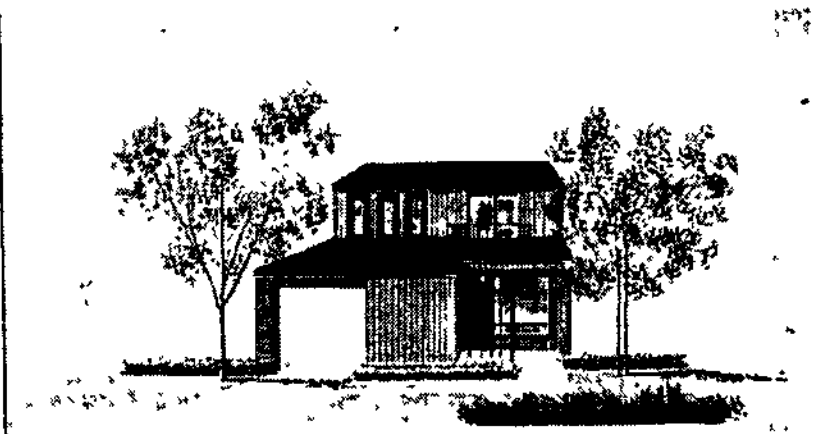

According to Gayle, "Though our Phase II models have the identical floor plans of Phase I, we've attempted, and succeeded in giving each model so distinctive an interior arrangement, that each appears to be significantly different from its namesake in Phase I. In addition, each buyer is permitted his choice of special architectural features, type of interior face brick, tile, plumbing fixtures, appliances and cabinet accessories, so that, in fact, no two homes are even remotely identical." Many of the Phase II townhomes are planned to face the lake that lies fully within the Harmony Village complex.

Typical of the spaciousness in the homes of Harmony Village is the Fremont, the townhome with 2,679 sq. ft. of living space under roof. A two story structure, the first floor features an L shaped living room/dining room area measuring 15'6" x 22'1". On the same level is the 15'11" x 12'10" family room with an optional fireplace and a 10' x 10' "eating area." A fully equipped kitchen with a host of cabinets, refrigerator, range and dishwasher which is adjoined by a large closet, powder room and an entry directly into the 10' x 20' attached garage. Sliding glass patio doors open onto the rear yard. Up the steps to the second level and here is the sleeping area with three bedrooms. The master bedroom, 15' 6" x 12' 1" has a walk-in closet and its own private bath. The second floor balcony is reached from the master bedroom. The second bedroom is 12' 1" x 12' 5" and also features a sizable closet. The third bedroom, 13'5" x 10', also has a spacious closet. A second full bath completes the second floor plan.

In further pursuing the uniqueness of Harmony Village, Gayle pointed out that its cluster density was far less crowded than competitive communities. Most homes, according to Gayle, have 12 to 15 townhomes per acre, at Harmony Village the maximum is nine. All clusters are tastefully grouped in park-like cul-de-sacs.

In Wheeling and with its proximity to Northbrook, not only is Harmony Village ideally located, but it comes with virtually unlimited amenities in and about the entire area. A touch of the North Shore, in the northwest, Harmony Village seems to carry a distinctive and individual air that appears to meet the special needs of special people without special emphasis on age or occupation.

Harmony Village has a rather narrow price range, going from $42,900 to $47,900 and is readily reached from all directions. From the North, it's Dundee Road (Ill. 68) to Wolf Road. South one mile. And, you're there. From the South, it's Willow Road (Palatine Rd.) to Wolf Road; North past Hintz Road, 1/2 block and that, too, is Harmony Village!

THE FREMONT, a 3-bedroom, 2 1/2 bath townhome condominium, one of five scintillating models being shown during the grand opening of Phase II, Harmony Village in Wheeling. The Fremont is priced at $47,900.

Uncle Sam helps home buyers

Thanks to Uncle Sam, the high prices and high interest rates of today's homes can turn out to be considerably less than meets the eye, a leading real estate authority point out.

"The interest payments on the mortgage and real estate taxes are deductible when you compute federal and state income tax payments, resulting in substantial savings," states Robert G. Walters, vice president of Baird & Warner, Inc., and general manager of the company's residential sales division.

Here's how it works. Suppose you buy a $50,000 home, making a down payment of $10,000 and getting a $40,000 mortgage at 9 1/2 per cent for 30 years. Your monthly payment will be $336.

During the first year, this payment will break down into an average of $21.40 for principal and $316 for interest. (In succeeding years, as the principal balance is reduced, more of each month's payment will go for principal and less for interest.)

Now assume that your property taxes on that $50,000 home are $1,080 a year or $90 a month. You add that $90 to your monthly mortgage payment of $336, giving you a total of $426 per month.

Here's where the tax savings come in. The mortgage interest and real estate tax amounts together average $406 per month ($316 plus $90) in the first year. If you're in the 25 per cent tax bracket, your savings will be $101.50.

Now subtract the tax savings from the gross monthly payment of $426 and you have a net monthly average payment of $324.50. If you're in a higher tax bracket, your tax deduction will be more and your net monthly payment in the first year will be even lower.

"In fact, the tax deduction permitted on interest makes the effective rate much lower than what the bank or savings and loan association charges you," Walters said. The table below shows what the effective interest rate turns out to be, depending on your tax bracket and the face rate of the mortgage:

Joint return	Taxable income	Loan interest	8%	8 1/2%	9%	9 1/2%
Over But less than
$12,000	$16,000	5.80	6.16	6.53	6.89
16,000	20,000	5.54	5.88	6.23	6.57
20,000	24,000	5.18	5.51	5.83	6.16
24,000	28,000	4.83	5.13	5.43	5.73
28,000	32,000	4.57	4.85	5.15	5.43
32,000	36,000	4.30	4.57	4.84	5.11
36,000	40,000	4.04	4.29	4.55	4.80
40,000	44,000	3.78	4.01	4.25	4.48
44,000	52,000	3.60	3.83	4.05	4.28

While the tax savings while you own the home are important, but Uncle Sam gives you a hand when the time comes to sell. If you sell your house at a profit, that profit is tax-deferred as long as the total revenue from the sales is reinvested in another home within 18 months. That's far different from profits on stock sales or interest savings which are taxed immediately.

"In short, the government takes a lot of the pain out of home ownership as part of its policy of encouraging more people to buy houses," Walters said. "It's something every prospective home buyer should take advantage of."

When you consider a home, ask your Realtor to compute exactly how much your net monthly payment will be, based on the mortgage you can get, the real estate taxes, and your own tax bracket.

Industrial building gets first occupant

First occupant has moved into the new industrial incubator building developed by Warren Allen Development Company in the Wood Dale Industrial Park in the northwest Chicago suburb.

Lease by Alltemp Heating and A/C, Inc., was announced by James McLennan, general sales manager of Park Ridge-based McLennan Company, leasing agents for the 70,000-square-foot solid masonry and concrete building.

The structure at Central Ave. and Silver Drive includes a total of 16 units ranging from about 3,000 square feet to more than 9,000 square feet of floor area, with clear-span, 16-foot ceilings, McLennan said. Imbedded steel frames for doorways in concrete block dividing walls allow convenient expansion to adjoining units.

All units are served by covered loading docks. Office sections are carpeted and centrally air conditioned. Ample parking is provided around the perimeter of the building.

Alltemp, a heating and air conditioning contractor and subcontractor that has expanded into fireplace and accessory sales and installation in the past two years, will use its new facility to warehouse its fireplace line. Present offices and salesroom will be maintained at 359 N. Wood Dale Road, according to David Hell, sales engineer for the firm.

Alltemp is Northern Illinois distributor for the Readybuilt Products Co., Baltimore, manufacturer of cast masonry fireplaces, and also markets and installs six to eight other brands of fireplaces, Hell said.

Two McLennan Company leasing brokers participated in negotiations for the two-year lease, covering 3,383 square feet of warehouse space. Charles Haubner represented the developer and Terry Guilfoyle acted on behalf of Alltemp.

Architects for the building, with a handsome exposed aggregate precast concrete exterior and mansard roofs over office entrances, were Anderson-Alabastro & Associates.

Fireplaces: What you should know

If sales and heightened interest in fireplaces are any indicator, then fireplaces are back in vogue in a big way. Dealers of factory-built fireplaces are reporting an unprecedented demand for these products by builders and home remodelers.

According to a recent survey of dealers, a number of the same questions are being asked repeatedly by prospective customers. These questions cover such subjects as sizes, construction, decor, installation methods and longevity of factory-built units.

Heatilator Fireplace, a division of Vega Industries, Inc., one of the nation's largest suppliers of factory-built fireplaces, has developed answers to these 12 most frequently asked questions:

What is meant by the term "zero clearance fireplace"?

A zero clearance fireplace is one which has been tested and listed by Underwriters' Laboratories and certified by various building regulatory groups to be safe when properly installed against a combustible wall, partition and wood floor. Such fireplaces make use of air spaces and insulation installed in the firebox and throat to prevent excessive heat build up. These units may be installed without the need of concrete or masonry footing. Storage shelves, cabinets and other enclosures can be built adjacent to zero-clearance fireplaces.

What is a "heat circulating" fireplace?

This term denotes a fireplace where room air is drawn in, circulated around an inner air shell in the firebox, heated and then directed through louvers or ducts. Fireplaces of this type can be either gravity or fan-forced circulating systems. Heat can be ducted into an adjoining room, if desired.

Is extra floor reinforcement required to support the fireplace?

No. The only reinforcement necessary is when an excessive amount of stone or brickwork is used in finishing the fireplace facing. The largest factory-built wood burning fireplace weighs no more than 400 pounds — less than a piano.

What is the cost comparison of an installed factory-built fireplace compared with a conventional masonry unit?

Costs are about one-third to one-half those of conventional masonry fireplaces. Since extra footings and brick chimneys are not required, labor costs are minimized.

Where can factory-built fireplaces be installed?

They can be flush-mounted on a wall with the rear portion extending through a chase, breezeway, garage, or unused attic space. They can be located on a wall, in a room corner, used as a room divider or as an island. They can be positioned almost anywhere a piece of furniture can be located.

What is the rule of thumb for matching fireplace width to room size?

Take the length of the room and the width of the room in feet, then add these two dimensions. Figure one inch in finished fireplace width to the total in feet.

Woodburning factory-built fireplaces are usually available in widths of 28, 36, and 42 inches, measured by the width of the screen facing over the opening of the fireplace.

Is there a choice of facing material for matching the fireplace to a particular room decor?

Factory-built fireplaces lend themselves to individual decorating touches. They can have facings of stone, brick, marble, drywall, plaster, paneling, tile or glass. They can be finished off either with or without mantels and in modern, traditional or Early American styles. This ease of finishing makes it feasible to completely alter the appearance of the fireplace whenever the room is redecorated.

Can factory-built units be installed as a do-it-yourself project?

Most certainly. Many of them are installed in room remodeling or room additions by home handymen. Complete instructions are included with each unit. According to the manufacturer, an installation can be completed during a week-end.

What components are needed?

A base assembly package is available, plus necessary sections of insulated chimney (the number depending upon height to ceiling and distance to outside roof).

What dimensions should you provide a dealer for his help in supplying correct components?

Room dimensions will help him recommend the proper width fireplace base assembly. Then he needs to know the height from floor to ceiling, floor to roofline and overall height from floor to two feet above the roof ridge. If the distance from roof ridge to center of chimney section is over 10 feet a 4-ft. height above the roof line is usually sufficient.

Is a brick chimney required for a fireplace installation?

No. Metal chimney sections, insulated between double metal walls, with stainless steel inner lining, are used instead of a brick chimney. These sections twist-lock together tightly to carry smoke and combustion products to the outside. However, in all cases these chimneys require a two-inch clearance from combustibles.

How long will a factory-built fireplace last?

The longevity of a factory-built fireplace depends upon a number of factors — frequency of use, size of fires, types of logs burned (some wood burns hotter than others), etc. Some factory-built fireplaces have been in use for more than 40 years and are still in satisfactory condition. Should replacement of any part of the system be required, spare parts are available. Therefore, it is not necessary to remove or completely replace a factory-built fireplace of high quality construction.

HEATILATOR (R) zero-clearance variety of facing treatments — brick, factory built fireplaces can be installed at one-half the cost of conventional masonry units and permit a paneling, plaster, wallpaper or vinyl covering.

Countryside offers care-free living

Luxury living in a community planned for convenience, carefree living and recreation is offered by the two-bedroom Birchwood condominium apartment at Countryside, Palatine.

The home, one of four condominium models in the planned unit development north of U.S. 14 (Northwest Hwy.), west of Quentin Road, is priced from $31,000 to $32,500.

Birchwood offers a 15' x 20'2" living/dining area that leads via sliding glass patio door to a private balcony or terrace that is shared also by one of the bedrooms.

A countered or bar-top pass-through from the 10'7" x 8'6" gourmet kitchen to the dining area facilitates serving.

Entry foyer, leading at one side to the fully appointed kitchen, to a hall serving the bedroom-bath wing and straight ahead to the living room, offers convenient access to all parts of the home, without a traffic pattern through the living/dining area.

Master bedroom measures 11'6" by 13'6", while the second bedroom is nearly as large, at 11'3" by 13'6". Both have large, walk-in closets with folding doors. Additional storage is provided in closets across the hall from the bedrooms.

The second bedroom, with sliding-glass-door access to the private balcony or terrace, potentially could be furnished as a den, study, library or additional area for entertaining if not required as a bedroom, according to John J. Smolenski, vice president-sales and marketing for the developer, L. F. Draper and Associates.

Birchwood is one of four condominium apartments, offering one or two bedrooms, now under construction in the attractively landscaped, 100-acre development. Apartments, in low-profile, two-story brick and timber buildings, have an over-all price range of $28,500-$39,500. Conventional financing is available, Smolenski said. First condominiums will be available for occupancy in mid-summer, 1974.

"Condominiums make up only one part of a community planned to provide most family needs within walking distance," Smolenski pointed out. "In addition to rental apartments, already completed and occupied, the development includes Countryside Mall, an enclosed shopping center with supermarket and a variety of smaller stores; Countryside Bath and Tennis Club, a fully staffed nursery and day-care center and Greenhouse of Countryside, a garden restaurant that offers fine dining."

Besides recreational facilities within Countryside — which will include swimming pool and tennis courts specifically for condominium owners — the new Buehler YMCA adjoins the development to the west. To the north, across Dundee Road from the condominium section, Deer Grove Forest Preserve provides opportunities for cycling, hiking or picnicking.

For the convenience of residents who work in Chicago, Countryside is within two miles of the Palatine depot on the Chicago and North Western commuter railroad.

Like all of Countryside's condominiums, Birchwood purchase price includes such features as 18-cubic-foot refrigerator/freezer, range and self-cleaning oven with vented exhaust hood, dishwasher and disposer. Units also include air conditioning, gas heat with individually controlled thermostats, plush wall-to-wall carpeting, simulated marble vanity tops and an intercom security system. Enclosed parking is available.

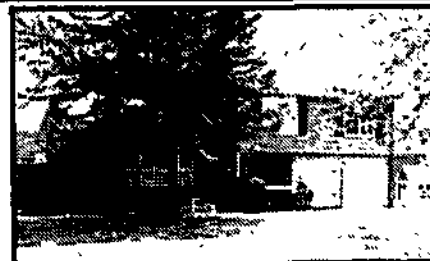

Furnished condominium models, at 1265 Sterling Ave. in the community, are open daily from 10 a.m. till 6 p.m.

Houses still make good investments

If you're planning to buy a house for the first time, or if you're already a homeowner seeking a larger and more expensive house, don't let current inflation and interest rates scare you away from the kind of house you can afford. Things won't get better soon.

So advises Robert G. Walters, vice president and general sales manager, residential division, for Baird & Warner, Inc.

"In fact," Walters says, "if you can afford it, buying a house now could prove to be an awfully good investment, as well as providing a solid way to counter at least one measure of inflation."

How is that possible, considering the high cost of housing and the steadily rising interest rates on mortgage money?

Walters explains, "If housing values continue to appreciate as they have during the past few years, and it appears likely that they will, then the house that you pay $40,000 for today will be worth $48,400 in just two years, based on an annual appreciation of 10 per cent."

And if you really want to look ahead, he says, in just 10 years that same house will be worth almost $104,000 — if the annual appreciation continues at 10 per cent.

But is it likely that the housing market will continue its upward spiral of an annual 10 per cent increase?

"Actually," Walters asserts, "that's a modest forecast. A recently released government report shows that the average cost of buying a home has risen more than 11 per cent since March, 1973. And because of continuing increases in land and building materials, it's reasonable to assume that the percentage increase will be even sharper," Walters added.

But doesn't the rate of inflation in the general economy wipe out the increased value of the house you have bought or will buy?

"Not according to government reports," Walters points out. "Housing values (at that more than 11 per cent increase) have outperformed the general rate of inflation, which was reported at 8.8 per cent for 1973."

And, he adds, "even during the past 10 years, when inflation wasn't as rampant for most of the period, housing showed a steadier and higher dollar appreciation than most investments."

An additional advantage of a house over some other form of investment, Walters notes, is that you'll have the pleasure of living in it while it increases in value. "Regarded as an investment, a home is different than most because you can get immediate benefits from living in it together with seeing it grow in value while you're using it."

What about the high rate of interest being charged on mortgage money? Isn't it outlandish to pay 9 to 9½ per cent interest for money to buy a home?

"It is, if you're making a comparison to the cost of borrowing money 10 to 20 years ago," Walters agrees. "All commodities were much cheaper then, but take a look at what's happened to the prices of food, clothing, gasoline, and home fuel, and you'll find that mortgage interest rates are a bargain."

How can they be a bargain? Didn't the U.S. government recently raise the maximum allowable rate on federally insured home loans to a record 9.5 per cent? And didn't conventional loans — those not insured by the government — increase in July to 8.97 per cent for new homes and 9 per cent for previously occupied homes? What kind of a bargain is that?

"Take a good look at predictions for the future," Walters asserts, "and you'll consider both current interest rates and home prices a decided bargain."

But what if interest rates, which recently were increased to a 9½ per cent limit, go down in the near future — perhaps to 8½ per cent?

Walters answers that it's highly unlikely that rates will go down very quickly.

Clement Stone, president and chief executive officer of Combined Insurance Company of America, recently an-

But even if the cost of borrowing money does go down, he says that you'll profit by buying a house now — if you can afford it.

For example, on a $24,000 mortgage taken out now at 9½ per cent, your monthly principal and interest payment would come to $202, based on a 30-year mortgage. But wait until the house has increased $2,000 (lower than the annual prediction), and you'll be paying on a $26,000 mortgage, which even at 8½ per cent will cost you $200 a month, and you'll have lost all the benefits of owning while you're waiting for rates to drop.

"And," Walters adds, "if the interest rates remain at 9½ per cent, you'll be paying $228 a month on a $26,000 mortgage."

Even if inflation settles to an annual rate of 7 per cent, income also is expected to increase to keep pace. If the value of the typical house rises only as fast as inflation, mortgage payments would shrink as a percentage of your rising income.

"At a 7 per cent rate of inflation with an increased income to match," Walters notes, "the actual cost of the monthly mortgage payments will be reduced by 50 per cent in 10 years."

As you continue to pay your monthly mortgage payments, you continue to build equity in your home (the difference between the value of your home and what you owe on the mortgage).

"Equity in a house becomes a valuable savings account," Walters points out, "and as noted earlier, that savings account, or equity, will increase in proportion to inflation."

Owning a house will give you an advantage when it's time to file your federal income tax report, allowing you to deduct both your real estate taxes and your mortgage payments from your adjusted gross income.

"However, there's one important point to be aware of," Walters advises. "Buying a house is the same as buying anything else, large or small; you must be able to afford it. Study your budget carefully to be certain that the house fits your income," he concludes.

what kind of basket are YOUR eggs in??

The Sandpiper a shorebird positions its nest strategically to avoid the onslaught of high tides & high traffic, yet can dart from ocean to hills for eating, playing, or security.

SANDPIPER Apartments are large, yet cozy, as your nest should be. They include lush carpeting, appliances, paneled dining rooms, patios, balconies, walk-in closets, individual air conditioning fresh as a breeze, and free gas heat.

When your urge is to scamper out to play, right in your backyard you have your own olympic size pool & equipped playgrounds for your little chicks. Walk next door to a shopping center or a restaurant for those occasions when you forget to bring home the bread crumbs. When you're not walking, wing your way to Rt. 53, which is less than a minute away.

Our area's scholars compete for Merits

Thirty-seven Northwest suburban high school students have been named semifinalists in the 1975 National Merit Scholarship competition. They are among 15,000 high school seniors nationally who will compete for 3,400 merit scholarships to be awarded in 1975.

The semifinalists were the highest scorers on the 1973 Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test/National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test administered to over 1 million students in about 17,000 schools. They will be identified to accredited colleges and universities as the top half of 1 per cent of the nation's academically talented young people.

TO BECOME A finalist, the young people must be endorsed by their schools and recommended for scholarship consideration. They must also receive high scores on a second examination, provide evidence of high academic performance, and supply information of other accomplishments.

More than 90 per cent of the semifinalists are expected to become finalists. Each finalist will be considered for merit scholarships and will receive a certificate of merit.

The $1,000 scholarships are one-time awards supported by business and industrial sponsors and funds from the National Merit Scholarship Corp.

FINALISTS WILL also be considered for 2,400 four-year scholarships of up to $1,500 during each of the four undergraduate years.

Scholarship winners will be announced in April.

Local Semifinalists include:

Social security and you

About the new federal program

Many persons, aged, blind or disabled are getting monthly cash benefits under a federal program called Supplemental Security Income. It is run by the Social Security Administration but is different from Social Security. The payments, coming from general funds of the U.S. Treasury, are made to everybody who is 65 or older, or blind, or disabled will have a basic cash income.

Individuals having no other income may receive payments as high as $146 a month. A married couple could receive up to $219 monthly. The amount payable depends upon the income and resources available. Living in the household of another also reduces the monthly payment.

Assets cannot exceed $1,500 for an individual or $2,250 for a couple. A house of reasonable value, household items and personal things do not usually count as assets. Insurance policies and a car may be excludable, depending upon their value. Other things, such as cash, stocks, bonds and bank accounts count as assets.

The first $20 of unearned income in a month is not usually included in figuring the amount of income. Neither is the first $65 of monthly earned income.

For example, a 71-year-old widow, who lives in Arlington Heights with her son and daughter-in-law, has no resources. Her only income is a monthly pension of $60. The standard payment of $146 would be reduced to $97.34 because she is living in another's household. But the first $20 of her unearned income of $60 is disregarded. Thus the supplemental income payment of $97.34 would be reduced by $10 to $87.34.

The SSI program can play an important role in the lives of many persons. For example, a 24-year-old disabled man is living in Wheeling with his parents because he has been mentally retarded since birth. He has no income or resources. Since he is not under 18, the income of his parents would not be deemed to be his. However, the $146 payment would be reduced to $97.34 a month because he is living with his parents. But, he could have resources up to $1,500 and still receive these payments. Until recently his parents did not know that he could receive payments from the new SSI program.

For more information about Supplemental Security Income, visit the Arlington Heights social security office at 120 W. Eastman Ave., or phone 255-7512.

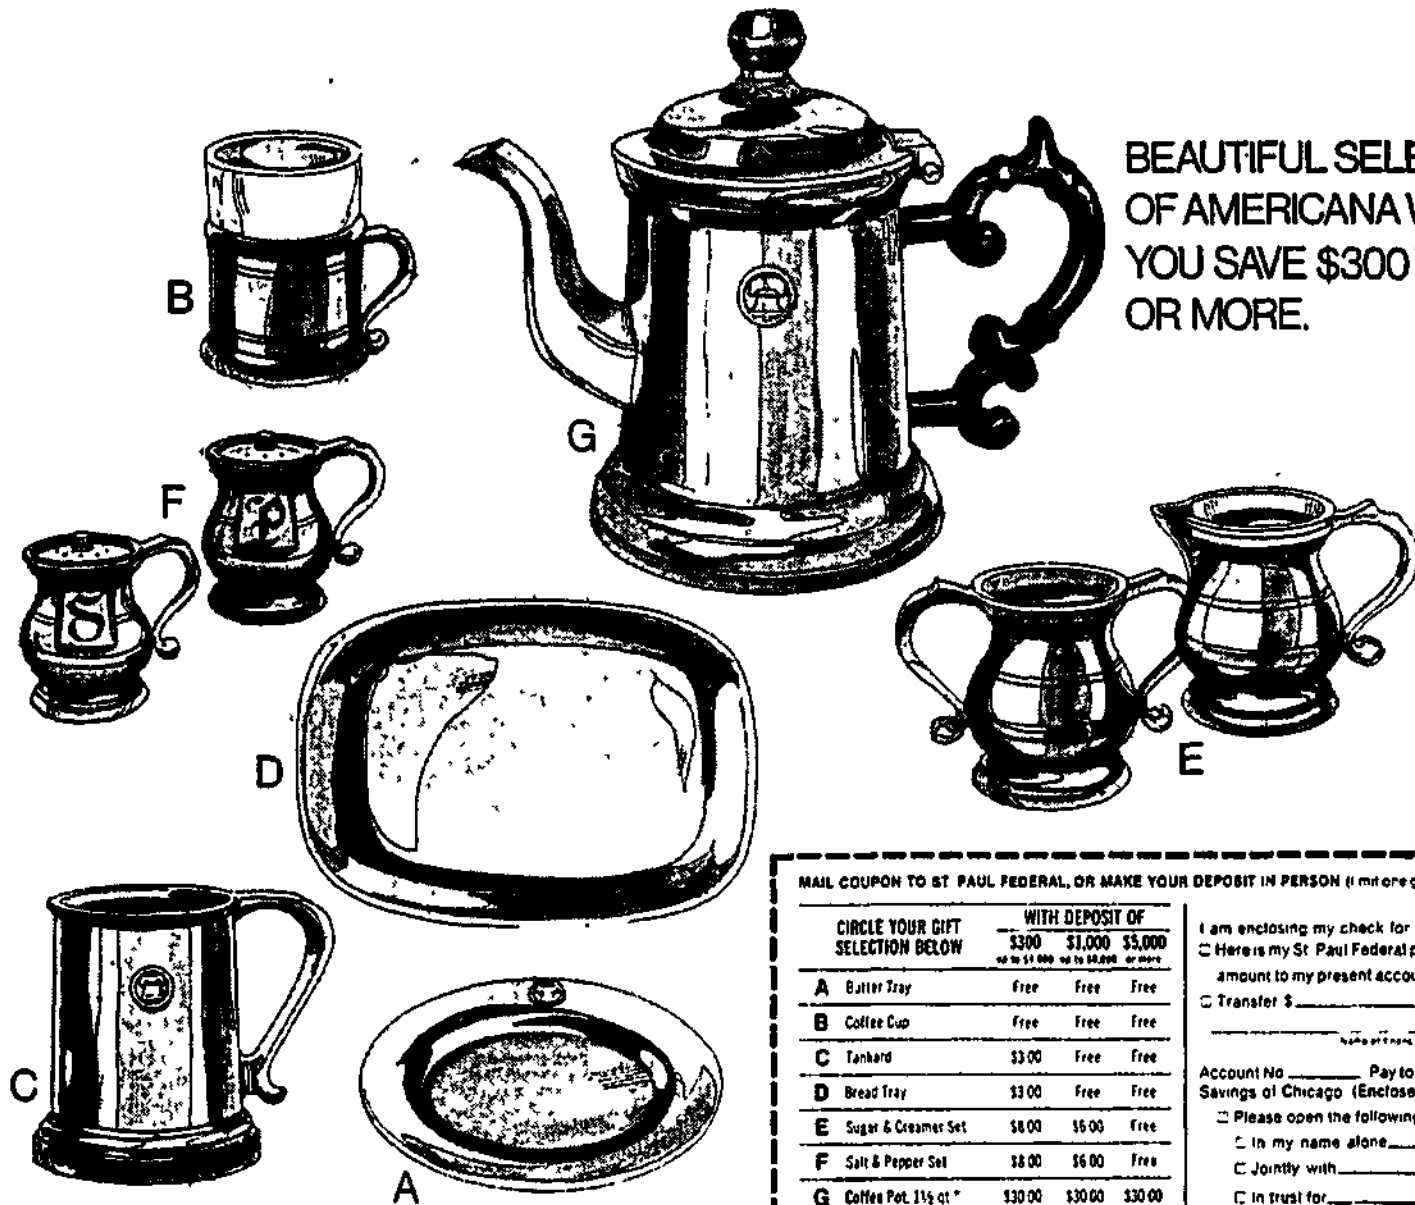

My son, who is 19, has been severely retarded since birth. Could he get payments under the supplemental security income program? My husband works full time and supports us.

Regardless of your family income your son may be eligible for supplemental security income payments. Under the law, mentally retarded people who remain unmarried are considered independent of their families beginning at 18 — or 21 if they're in school. Starting then, they may be eligible for supplemental security income. Call the Arlington Heights Social Security office for more information about applying for payments for your son. Phone 255-7512.

How To Write A Best Seller...
A Result-Getting Want Ad!

You'll get the results you want with a properly written Want Ad. Lots of people get confused when it comes to writing a Want Ad. Do you? If so, here are a few simple rules to make ad writing easy. A good ad is just conversation in print. So when you're preparing to place an ad, just write it the way you'd tell your neighbors about it.

Don't leave your readers guessing! What do you want to sell? If it's an appliance, what's the brand? What's the size or capacity? Model? Year? Any accessories included? Does it need repair or is it ready to use? Now put yourself in your buyer's position. If you were reading this ad, what would you like to know? Price? By all means, put that in. In nearly every ad, price is the most important information. Anything else missing? If so, fill in those blanks, too.

Ready to write? Please, no abbreviations. Studies of advertising show that abbreviations decrease readability. You want people to read and understand your message. Make it as easy for them as you can.

When your ad is finished, read it over. It's fine to eliminate a word here and there, but don't "edit" to the point where the reader may have to guess at the meaning. You might save a few pennies and lose dollars in results.

THE FEW DAY CARE patients at Americana Nursing Center in Arlington Heights make use of the same facilities and partake of the same activities as full-time residents. A big hit with both is bowling on Wednesday and Saturday mornings, using a rubber ball and plastic pins. Except for Americana and Plum Grove Nursing Home, day care for the elderly, though needed, is almost non-existent in northwest suburbia.

Suburban Living

ESPECIALLY FOR THE FAMILY

Day care for elderly

Idea that's catching on

by ELEANOR RIVES

There's a "day hospital" in Montreal. In Los Angeles, there are four "Day Houses."

In New York, 138 "day centers" serve 15,000 regular participants.

On Chicago's north side, the Angel Guardian Senior Center serves 1,000 people — 150 to 200 every day.

In Rockford it's called "The Brighter Side" and in Elgin "The Elders."

No matter what it is called, the concept of day care for the elderly as an alternative to institutional care is catching on fast.

Except in the northwest suburbs.

IN THE NORTHWEST suburbs there are no such centers. There are senior citizen clubs, to be sure, a multitude of them, but they do not pretend to provide the supportive services the 1971 White House Conference on the Aging had in mind when it emphasized alternatives to institutional care for old people.

Government subsidized programs such as The Brighter Side, The Elders, Angel Guardian Center are striking examples of what can be done to provide interim solutions to the increasing needs of elderly people.

"Ours is not a baby-sitting program," emphasized Pat Kolak, program director of Angel Guardian Senior Center at 2001 Devon Ave. "It is not for the infirm. What we do offer is a tremendously preventive, very positive program which emphasizes the capability and intelligence of persons who, probably for the first time in their lives, are really free."

THE ANGEL GUARDIAN program began two years ago with 25 seniors and two consultants from Catholic Charities. Now it has state support and a federally-funded nutrition program administered by the Mayor's Office for Senior Citizens in Chicago.

Seniors may walk in, be dropped off by relatives or be brought by mini-bus if they are handicapped. Ostensibly the hours are from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., but seldom a day goes by that people don't arrive as early as 8:15 or stay as late as 7.

A dynamic program — arts and crafts, intellectually stimulating group experiences, physical activities such as swimming and exercises, social and entertainment events, trips and just casual conversation — rescues a great many elderly people from isolation and loneliness and gives them new purpose and direction.

THE OLDSTERS PAY what they can afford — anywhere from nothing to $1.25 — for a full, nutritious, balanced dinner. A health service gives blood pressure readings for 75 cents; an eye clinic gives checkups for $3.

"We're unique in the approach we take to get seniors to partake in our program," said Pat. "We say, 'We need you. Come on, we're going to have a good time!'"

The Elders in Elgin, less a multi-purpose senior center, more a day care center, is federally funded under Title III of the Older Americans Act and further supported by the United Way of Elgin. It encourages elderly people confined because of physical difficulties, loss of stamina, visual problems, confusion or disorientation to avail themselves of its services. Actual nursing care is not supplied, but medication can be supervised.

ABOUT 30 PERSONS are enrolled in the program, an average of eight per day, although The Elders, formerly a three-bedroom private home, is equipped to handle a daily quota of 20. There is a program of daily activities, a nutritious home-cooked mid-day dinner and two snacks, and provision for ample rest.

Cost of the program is about $15 per person per day, but charge to the elderly is on a sliding scale, with payment averaging about $3 per day. No one is ever refused because of inability to pay.

"Some families feel guilty about bringing an elderly relative here, especially if he is reluctant to leave his accustomed environment," said Mrs. Betsy Humphrey, activities director. "But there is no institutional aura about this place at all. We are small enough to give personal individual attention to each one here."

IN THE NORTHWEST suburbs, day care for the elderly could be found in only two instances, both of these in private nursing homes.

At the Americana Nursing Center in Arlington Heights, a total of six different day care patients are cared for in the course of a week. An eight-hour day is average and a minimum of 20 hours a week is required.

"This is not a profitable undertaking," explained Robert Whitson, assistant administrator. "It is more a community service, coming about because of the inquiries we received. A chart must be kept for each person and there is a great deal of paperwork."

Day care patients have the same nursing supervision and partake in the same activities as the full-time residents, according to Ann Swan, activities director. All facilities of the center are available to them. The charge is $1.75 per hour, with two major meals available at $1.50 each. Between-meal snacks are free.

OBVIOUSLY this program offers great peace of mind to the persons who drop off their relatives at Americana — to the high school teacher who knows that her handicapped husband will be well cared for while she teaches; to the businessman whose aged mother, not yet ready to be institutionalized, will spend no lonely, deteriorating hours while her son works.

"This program is designed to watch and supervise elderly people when their families cannot. We hope over a period of time to focus our day care services totally on people capable of self-care," said Whitson.

AT PLUM GROVE Nursing Home in Palatine, Mrs. Doris Mittlestedt, administrator, exclaimed, "Nursing homes could do a tremendous good in the way of day care for the community — but how much good can you do with two people!"

That is what Plum Grove is licensed to have — two day care patients at any one time, and because day care licensing requires that beds must be available for naps, these two must be of the same sex or be man and wife, since Plum Grove has only one double bed and one room available for this purpose. Other facilities — program, nursing supervision, food service — are ample to serve far more day care patients than two.

"These people need companionship

"PICK UP THAT spare!" encourages Ann Swan, Americana's activities director, as Rebecca Varon lets go with the ball. A former day care patient, Mrs. Varon easily made the transition to full-time resident.

more than a nap," she said. "Therapy, exercise, stimulation, rather than sleep."

AND THE SINGLE day care patient Plum Grove now has bears this out. A 74-year-old diabetic, James Farrell, in the three or four days a week he spends there, partakes in all the activities, enjoys the special diet served him, raps with the housekeeping personnel on their

THREE OR FOUR days a week, James Farrell spends the day at Plum Grove Nursing Home while his wife works. He enjoys the activities and helps assemble the newsletter. "It's a long day when you stay home alone."

Copying technique aids in breast cancer detection

Doctors at the University of Washington Hospital in Seattle are using document copying techniques to improve the results of X-rays as a method of detecting breast cancer.

Dr. Rosiland H. Troupin, director of mammographic services at the hospital, said the method produces X-rays printed on Xerox paper.

This, she said, provides a picture "more detailed, more readily interpreted and more accurate than those on conventional X-ray film."

The process is called Xeromammography. It is quick and painless to the patient. The initial image is made on an electrostatic plate, which then is fed into a special machine. The views, which are printed in blue, can be examined by the radiologist without the traditional view box while the examination still is in progress.

Additional projections or special techniques may be selected at that time. After the examination, the findings are analyzed by the radiologist and reported to the referring clinician.

"THE EARLY DETECTION of malignancy is critically important," said Dr. Troupin. "Breast cancer is curable when it is caught before distant spread can occur."

She said breast cancer is the most common form of cancer in women. An estimated 90,000 new cases are expected this year.

All female patients entering the hospital with suspicious lumps, breast tenderness, nipple discharges or family histories of breast tumors are given Xeromammographic testing, she said.

It has become apparent that X-ray and clinical examinations are complementary and that their combination is significantly more accurate than either method alone. The fatty post-menopausal breast is difficult to assess clinically but rather easy radiologically. Smaller, more glandular breasts are far more difficult radiologically but easier to palpate.

Dr. Troupin works closely with Dr. Roger Moe and his colleagues in surgical oncology on many of the university hospital referrals. In addition, a large number of patients are being referred to the university institution by physicians and surgeons working with clinics in this area.

BUT DR. TROUPIN said the expenses of Xeromammography probably will prevent it becoming as widely available as Pap smears, which are made to detect cancer of the cervix.

Nevertheless, she said, it may become possible to identify the age groups and individuals at highest risk within the general population and concentrate detection efforts on that smaller group.

Pre-schoolers should have early visual examinations

If there's a pre-school boy or girl at your house, you should know about amblyopia.

This is the doctor's word for lazy eye. Children need to be checked for that around the age of three.

There are other visual defects that can be spotted at the examination for amblyopia. There may be a tendency to farsightedness, crossed eyes, astigmatism, nearsightedness.

Lazy eye is just that. It is one eye that lets the other eye do all the work. As a result, early in the game, the eye becomes lazy and goes through life letting the other eye do all the seeing.

Correction of this tendency at the pre-school stage often is possible. The lazy eye is made to work when the doctor prescribes a patch over the good eye. That way the lazy eye learns to function as it should.

THE AMERICAN Optometric Association says parents can help change a child's fear about a first vision examination. This can be done with the aid of some items found in most homes.

Let your child experiment with binoculars. This is practice for peering into the vision diagnostic equipment in the optometrist's office.

Returns 'home' for wedding

One of the first of the September brides was Susan Lorraine Kern, who returned to Mount Prospect, the town in which she grew up, to become the bride of her high school sweetheart, Patrick G. Reardon of Mount Prospect.

Susan also chose her former parish, St. Raymond's, for the three o'clock wedding on Sept. 1.

The bride and her mother, Mrs. Robert J. Kern, have been making their home in Sacramento, Calif. Patrick is the son of the Walter Reardons of 709 S. I-Oka Ave.

The couple both went to school in Winona, Minn., Susan at the College of St. Teresa and Patrick at St. Mary's College. He recently graduated and is working in Ceritos, Calif., for Motorola Corp.

PATRICK IS a graduate of St. Viator High School and his bride of Sacred Heart of Mary High.

For the double ring rites the bride was given in marriage by her late father's best friend, Robert LaBonte.

She chose Kathleen Tierney of River Forest as her matron of honor and the groom's sister, Nancy, along with Jane Mackey, Evanston, and Mrs. Virginia Bruhn, Chicago, as bridesmaids.

Sisters of the couple, Lisa Kern, 8, and Katy Reardon, 9, were flower girls; Eric Kern, 6, Susan's young brother, was ring bearer.

The groom's attendants were all brothers of the pair. Richard Reardon was best man, while Robert Kern and Timothy and James Reardon served as ushers.

A CANDLELIGHT peau de sole gown trimmed in lace and complemented by a

Mr. and Mrs. Patrick G. Reardon

mantilla also edged in lace was the bride's ensemble. Her bouquet was composed of orchids, tea roses and stephanotis amid greens.

Her attendants were gowned alike in halter dresses of a floral print in yellow, peach and green. They wore matching jackets and picture hats in yellow. Each carried a basket of yellow tea roses with greens. The flower girls appeared in yellow dresses, full length over hoop skirts, and carried nosegays of yellow tea roses.

Afterwards there was a dinner with dancing at Nordic Hills Country Club, Itasca, for 200 guests. The couple then left for California to make their home. They are living in Anaheim.

Mail order gripe? Tell your postmaster

THE HERALD

Thursday, September 19, 1974

Section 6 —3

The U.S. Postal Service today announced a new "consumer protection program" which appears to be more of a "consumer convenience" service.

Postal inspectors will now notify "legitimate mail order merchants" of complaints the Post Office receives involving customers' failure to receive ordered goods or promised refunds. The notification, the Post Office says, will "encourage immediate settlement of such claims."

According to the Post Office's own press release, "many complaints do not indicate a scheme to defraud... but merely poor business practices." Thus, the program will not actually protect consumers from swindlers.

HOWEVER, THE intermediary role the Post Office will assume in non-fraudulent misunderstandings could be a big help to people who order by mail. And, the program could also serve to focus more investigative attention on mail order frauds by weeding out the non-fraud problems.

Since passage of the mail fraud statute in 1872, postal inspectors have had the authority and duty to investigate complaints of mail fraud and to obtain criminal prosecutions in such cases.

Consumers with a complaint related to mail order transactions should contact their local postmaster, the nearest postal inspector, or the Chief Postal Inspector, Washington, D.C. 20260.

ALL THAT glitters is not gold — as too many consumers will probably find out when gold is opened to private ownership Dec. 31.

The Federal Trade Commission is already gearing up to police what is expected to be a con-artist's bonanza.

The means by which fraudulent gold dealers will be able to hoodwink non-expert buyers are numerous. They range from outright counterfeit gold coins to subtle weighting of gold bars with lead. Since gold may sell at $150 or more per ounce, a few extra ounces of lead in a bar of gold could mean a scalping to the buyer — and a big profit to the seller.

Other problems of investigating in gold stem from its wide price fluctuation. The FTC will be watching for deceptive advertising regarding the potential value of gold.

FOR THESE reasons, specialists recommend that ordinary people buying gold should do so at a bank or other reputable outlet.

And, us for investments in gold mines — a lot of Hollywood stars recently lost a bundle of money on such a deal when the investment corporation turned out to be a fraud.

Jean O'Brien, bridegroom make home in Carbondale

Jean O'Brien and Richard R. Johnson Jr. were married Aug. 17 and on Aug. 20 they were settling themselves in Carbondale, Ill., where Rick will be completing his senior year at Southern Illinois University for a B.S. degree in industrial engineering. In between they honeymooned two days in Chicago.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. O'Brien of Arlington Heights, Jean and Dick, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard R. Johnson of Mundelein, were married at 3 p.m. in Holy Cross Catholic Church, Deerfield, with Fr. Simon Kenny, friend of the bride from Carmel High School, officiating.

MAID OF HONOR for the double ring service was Jean's sister, Janice, and bridesmaids were Jean's married sister, Jane Pankavich, Arlington Heights; Michelle Loden, Palatine; and Joy Kelly, Des Plaines. Her niece, Laurie Kett, Wheeling, was junior bridesmaid, and her niece, Anna Marie O'Brien, 6, St. Paul, Minn., was flower girl.

The groom's 5-year-old brother, Doug, was ring bearer, and his brother, Dave, was one of the ushers. The bride's cousin, Jim Butler, Wheeling; Arnie Buchanan, Round Lake Beach; and Lance Thome, Wheeling, were also ushers. Tom Kelly, Des Plaines, was best man.

A reception for 225 guests was held at the Casa Royale in Des Plaines.

Until their marriage the new Mrs. Johnson was employed by Allstate Insurance Co., Northbrook, and the groom by Powers Regulator Co., Northbrook. Rick also studied at Harper College where he received an associate degree in architecture in 1972.

Commercial cleaning best for copper

Dear Dorothy: I have a very old copper kettle I'd like to put in good shape. Can you advise me how to clean and finish it?—Mrs. M. L. Ford

An expert in the U.S. Department of Agriculture thinks the commercial cleaners do the best job. So do I. But if you want to try some home remedies, here are a few.

Some report that daubing the bottom of a copper kettle with catsup and letting it stand for about 15 minutes, then rinsing and drying, has worked well. Some believe in dipping a cloth in lemon juice or vinegar, then in salt, and rubbing the kettle vigorously. Others plug dipping half a lemon in salt and rubbing it directly on the kettle. As I indicated, if it were mine I'd go the commercial cleaner route.

The homeline

by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: I have a struggle with my youngest at mealtime. He eats very little of the essential foods and asks for food at odd times during the day. Do you know of any ways to get him to eat the foods important for growth?—Mrs. Jonathan Neuberg

The only thing I know to do is cut down on the availability of cookies and sweets and keep on hand supplies of things like carrot sticks, hard-boiled eggs, orange juice and other such foods. If you invite his playmates to join, you might break the resistance this way. In short, you have to be innovative.

Dear Dorothy: I was interested in your column item about the proper time to prune hedges. This little adage (which is so simple to follow) might help. By pruning from November (after growth has stopped) through June, new growth will have sufficient time to mature by the following winter.—Judith A. Hollis.

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to her in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.)

An elaborate wedding cake

Four separate cakes mounted at different heights and joined by lacy stairways with tiny replicas of the attendants were served to 250 guests at the wedding reception of Rhonda Lee Hauge and Jack LaForce Benson Jr.

Rhonda is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Hauge of Morris, Ill., and Jack is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack LaForce, 489 Dorset, Palatine. Their Aug. 24 wedding was held at 5 p.m. in Lisbon Bethlehem Lutheran Church, Lisbon, Ill., and the buffet reception was held in the Lisbon grade school.

Both Rhonda and Jack studied at Illinois State University, Normal. A '73 graduate of the university, Rhonda teaches physical education and drivers' education at Willowbrook High School in Villa Park. Jack, who also studied at the New Mexico Military Institute and Harper College, is a sales representative for Brock Tool in Elk Grove Village, and the newlyweds are residing in an Itasca apartment.

FOR THE CANDLELIGHT, double ring service Rhonda chose a white organza gown with bodice of Venice lace. Lace also circled the hem of her gown which was fashioned with chapel train. A Camellia headpiece held her mantilla veil which was also trimmed in lace, and she carried yellow roses and yellow mums with baby's breath and greens. She also carried her grandmother's hanky, and wore a strand of pearls given to her by her bridegroom.

Laura Severson, cousin of the bride from Minooka, Ill., was matron of honor, and bridesmaids were the groom's sister, Patti, Diane Borcharding, St. Louis, Mo.; and the bride's cousins, Elaine and Karen Hauge, Morris.

Rhonda Hansen, Gardner, Ill., 4-year-old cousin and godchild of the bride, was flower girl. All were in crepe halter gowns trimmed in white ruffled Cluny lace and with matching capelets. Laura and the flower girl were in mint, Patti and Diane in apricot and Elaine and Karen in yellow.

THE BRIDES carried wicker bird cages with apricot, mint and yellow roses with daisies, baby's breath and greens.

Ring bearer was the bride's 6-year-old cousin, Robby Hauge of Morris.

Best man was the groom's brother, Mark and ushers were the bride's brother, Randy; Rick Orwerth and Kirk Wyatt, both of Hoffman Estates; and Charles Moran, Schaumburg.

Chia pots the latest rage

Try growing a "chia pot," the newest gardening rage.

A "chia pot" is a kind of clay container where the outside of the pot is planted with seed and the inside is filled with water.

Inside-out gardening, you might call it, but the kind of novelty that lends itself to a sweeping fad.

"Chia pots" come packaged with a rope, so one can make a hanging planter out of it — which makes it doubly popular right now, since anything hanging is also "in."

To grow a "chia pot," one soaks the seed in a saucer of water overnight. In the morning, the seeds swell and have a jelly-like, pasty quality. They are now ready to be spread over the outside of the pot and worked into vertical grooves on the pot. This done, all the gardener has to do is keep the pot filled with water, keep the pot out of strong sunlight and wait for the seeds to sprout.

CHIA GREENS ARE edible — they are actually salvia columbariae. But who would buy a "salvia columbariae" pot?

The name lacks pizzazz. The sprouts that completely engulf the pot in a green coat make the chia grower look like a successful gardener, and it only takes two to three weeks from seed to foliage.

Chia seeds are said to be one of the most widely known of the native plants used by Indians of the West Coast for a source of natural energy. (The plant is a member of the mint/sage family.) I wouldn't believe this kind of baloney, but one teaspoonful of seed was said to be sufficient to keep an Indian going for 24 hours on a forced march. Unless you are planning a forced march, who cares anyway, as long as the "chia pots" grow and bring some pleasure to the gardener? If deslified, the greens can be used in soups, stews or salads. To some people this may be of interest, because there are two kinds of gardeners — those who grow plants strictly for their beauty, and those who grow plants for food. Chia serves both.

THIS CHIA BUSINESS reminds me of a similar novelty some years back in which grass was sprouted on a figure of a little man's bald head. Remember that one?

Potting shed

by Mary B. Good

"Chia pots" come in the shape of hens, lambs, turtles or just plain round pots. You'll find a source for them in a gift shop, garden center, mail order house gift catalogs or magazine section ads of the Sunday papers. If all else fails, Jardincitos, Costa Mesa, Calif. 92627, is a manufacturer and would probably answer inquiries.

Last year all the gardeners got terrariums for Christmas, and I can see this year it's going to be "chia pots." (Don't groan about my bringing up the subject of Christmas. Several of the holiday catalogs are already mailed out.)

Winners in the "Big Tomato" contest will be announced in next week's Potting Shed.

Day care for the elderly

coffee break, helps assemble the home's newsletter and dozes in his chair when he's so inclined. He has even had new dentures made by the Plum Grove staff dentist.

"We developed our day care program in 1970," explained Mrs. Mittlestedt. "There were no guidelines. We had to write up our policy and get permission from the Illinois Department of Public Health."

"Even now there are no set rules," she added. "I have had many calls, even one from the Mayor's office in Chicago. Everyone is looking for guidelines."

MRS. MITTLESTEDT went on to cite three categories of patients who would benefit from a day care program:

1. Elderly persons or persons needing nursing care who are left alone during the working day but have persons to care for them at all other times.
2. People who will eventually be admitted to the nursing home on a full-time basis. "It makes a very smooth transition," said Mrs. Mittlestedt.

3. Patients who have returned home after spending some time in the nursing home, but who still need after-care.

The basic rate for day care at Plum Grove Nursing Home is $10 a day, including two large meals, administration of any medications and supervision by licensed people. Physical therapy, speech therapy, medical and nursing supplies and other restorative services are extra.

"DAY CARE FOR the elderly isn't well advertised," said the Plum Grove administrator. "We would like to encourage it. It's a good and constructive thing to do."

The Illinois Association of Homes for the Aging agrees, pointing out that such day care programming provides interim solutions to increasing care needs, relieves a burden of responsibility for working children of older adults and defers the need for institutionalization.

Its objective is to maintain older persons within their own community as long as possible and with the dignity and security they deserve.

sugar 'n spice

The same old ingredients with a dash of something new and a generous contribution of your own ingenuity can make surprisingly different dishes from your well known old standbys.

Take your favorite recipe for stew, for example, add a liberal splash of soy sauce and there's a new flavor treat. Colorful fruit cocktail alternates with a creamy cheese pudding layer in tall glasses for an unusual parfait-like salad. Combined with the stew and with the addition of crisp breadsticks or a hearty wholewheat loaf you can present the family with a wonderful new approach to a familiar menu.

A DASH OF SOMETHING NEW!

Treat your tuna lovers to this hearty rice pilaf. Vegetables make it a more nutritious entree and afford you another one dish meal. Finish off your menu with a red and white cabbage slaw topped with egg garnished peach halves. The same dressing is used to sauce the peaches, devil the egg and toss the slaw for a hearty fruit and vegetable salad. A chocolate sheet cake sprinkled with coconut and brown sugar and broiled briefly would make a fitting finale if you feel the need of dessert.

SWEET AND SOUR SLAW

- 3 eggs
- 1 can (29 oz.) cling peach halves
- 1 quart shredded cabbage
- 1 tablespoon vinegar
- 1 tablespoon soy sauce
- ¼ teaspoon ginger
- ¼ teaspoon minced garlic
- ¼ teaspoon salad seasoning
- ½ cup mayonnaise

Hard cook eggs. Drain peaches reserving syrup. Combine remaining ingredients for dressing. Quarter 2 eggs and remove yolks. Put remaining egg and yolks through sieve. Mix sieved eggs with 2 tablespoons dressing. Spoon this mixture back into quartered egg whites. Drizzle peach halves with part of dressing, tossing cabbage with remaining dressing. Portion slaw into four individual salad bowls, placing two peach halves cut-side up in each bowl. Place one filled egg quarter in each peach half. Garnish with paprika, if desired.

Makes 4 servings.

Note: If using both red and green cabbage, shred one small head of each.

TUNA MEDLEY PILAF

- 2 cans (7 oz. each) tuna, drained
- 1 package (10 oz.) frozen mixed vegetables
- 1 medium onion, chopped
- 1 cup uncooked long-grain rice
- 2 tablespoons salad oil
- 1 ½ cups water
- ¼ cup soy sauce

Combine tuna with vegetables in 1 ½-quart casserole. Sauté rice in oil over medium heat until golden brown, stirring constantly. Slowly stir in water and soy sauce; bring to boil. Remove from heat and add to tuna mixture, stirring to combine. Cover and bake in 350 degree oven 45 minutes, or until rice is tender, stirring occasionally. Makes 6 servings.

HARVEST SOUPY-STEW

- 2 pounds beef for stew
- ½ cup flour, divided
- ¼ teaspoon garlic powder
- 3 tablespoons salad oil
- 4 cups water
- 1 can (8 oz.) tomato sauce
- ½ cup soy sauce
- 6 carrots, pared and cut into 2-inch pieces
- 3 potatoes, pared and quartered
- 2 turnips, pared and cut into eighths
- 3 stalks celery, cut into 2-inch slices
- 2 onions, peeled and cut into eighths

Coat beef with ¼ cup flour and garlic powder; brown in oil in large heavy pan. Pour in water, tomato sauce and soy sauce. Cover pan, bring to boil, reduce heat and simmer 1 hour. Add carrots, potatoes and turnips; simmer 25 minutes. Stir in celery and onions; simmer 20 minutes longer. Meanwhile combine remaining flour with ½ cup water. Stir into meat mixture and cook until slightly thickened. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

FRUIT COCKTAIL SALADESSERT

- 1 can (30 oz.) fruit cocktail
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
- 1 teaspoon salad seasoning
- ½ cup lemon juice
- 1 package (3 ¼ oz.) instant lemon pudding mix
- ¼ cup mayonnaise
- 1 pint cottage cheese
- 2 tablespoons Roquefort cheese
- Mint sprigs, if desired

Drain fruit cocktail reserving syrup. Sprinkle fruit with lemon juice, grated rind and salad seasoning. Combine ½ cup reserved fruit syrup with ½ cup lemon juice and stir into pudding mixture. Combine mayonnaise, cottage cheese and Roquefort cheese. Add pudding mixture to cottage cheese mixture. Spoon alternate layers of cheese-pudding mixture and fruit into tall glasses. Top with mint sprig, if desired. Refrigerate until serving time. Makes 6 servings.

Shortage for Americans unlikely

Expert calls food situation dismal

by FRAN HECKART

It's doubtful that Americans will run out of food, but the future situation, both domestic and abroad, could only, at best, be considered as dismal. Existing conditions, as described by Dr. Jean Mayer, professor of nutrition at Harvard University, hold little promise for the future.

Dr. Mayer, who has served as a member of the nutrition division of the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations (FAO) and as a consultant to FAO, World Health Organization (WHO) and UNICEF, voiced his thoughts on the world food outlook recently to a group of food editors attending the national Pineapple Cooking Classic in Honolulu, Hawaii.

"We're not likely to run out of food," he said but indicated that the situation is critical and changes are in order if food demands are going to be met.

FRIVOLITY OF planning hampered by an undefined sense of direction has created what Mayer calls an "extraordinary dilemma" for the 1970s. Because of poor planning, officials waste time solving problems which never would have happened if corrective efforts had been taken earlier, he declared.

For example, current land utilization is highly inefficient taking into consideration projected population growth figures. Increasing production capacity of available land resources means decreasing the amount of grain that goes into animal protein, suggested Mayer. Food habits would have to change accordingly. It's possible fish will become a mainstay in our diets rather than a meat alternate, suggested the nutritionist.

Growth and just distribution throughout the world are other considerations. "We are now in competition for food with other rich nations," said Mayer.

Adverse weather, a drastic rise in oil prices and a fertilizer shortage have shrunk grain reserves to their lowest level since 1947 when the world had a billion less people than it has now, he added.

OTHER COUNTRIES are willing to pay more for their share than American consumers which pushes already high prices even higher.

As the rich nations vie for existing food supplies, many poor nations abroad are already experiencing serious food shortages, noted Mayer. The same problems of unequal distribution exist among poor and lower middle class consumers in America, he commented, adding that perhaps as many as 25 million Americans could not feed themselves without help.

Current food programs could hardly be considered adequate, said Mayer, but he cited progress since 1969. "Except for some isolated groups, we have eliminated acute malnutrition which causes mental retardation," he offered. Ironically, one group still suffering from extreme malnutrition is migrant workers.

LOWER MIDDLE class consumers face a different problem, according to Mayer. Many are not eligible for food stamps and the nutrition rate is declining because inexpensive staples have gone up faster than more expensive foods.

Effective consumer programs and more available nutrition information are especially important with the evolution of our food supply which Mayer says is "degenerating" because "we've let the food industry drift." The quality of food has dropped since 1955 with the advent of convenient, highly processed foods which are generally less nutritious, Mayer noted.

He maintains that enrichment programs are inadequate since many secondary vitamins and minerals are lacking in today's processed foods. For instance, one nutritional study revealed a marked deficiency of zinc, one of the trace minerals, in upper middle class children.

MAYER FEELS that nothing short of a massive effort in nutrition will solve these problems. Nutrition education service should be concentrated particularly in the schools and supermarkets, he believes. He also cited the need to make better use of the media in disseminating our knowledge.

"Better than $1½ billion are spent each year on media advertising for food. If a sufficient fraction of that amount could be spent for sophisticated and informed nutrition education, we would be better off," said Mayer.

"Most of this advertising money goes towards the least nutritional foods such as high sugar candies, soft drinks and snack foods," he added.

Setting product standards for the food industry is one possible improvement, said Mayer. For example, any product labeled macaroni would have to be manufactured according to a specific, predetermined formula.

SECONDLY, Mayer suggested more labeling information. "We need to look at the structure of our regulatory agencies and the role in nutrition of the Consumer Protection Agency proposed by both the administration and the Congress. And we need to look at new necessary measures, such as percentage ingredient labeling, which will inform our people on the economics as well as the nutritional content of their food supply," he said.

The picture of health in the United States is a dismal one, Mayer continued. "Our medical expenses have risen from $12 billion in 1950 to $106 billion this year with essentially no improvement in the life expectancy of adult citizens," he offered.

Mayer attributes the poor statistics to "the explosive development of diseases which we know better how to prevent than cure." Cancer tops the list even though many forms appear to be directly related to diets.

"CANCER of the large bowel, the second cause of death in men after lung cancer, appears to be due to the fiberless diet which modern food habits and technology have developed," said Mayer. Other diseases which Mayer said are linked to diets include cardiovascular ailments, hypertension, obesity and dental caries.

"People should know their blood pressure and cholesterol level just like their phone number," Mayer told a group of food editors at lunch following his formal presentation.

"It just isn't true that thin men or that women don't have to worry about cholesterol," he explained. Mayer, whose build is on the slight side, admitted that his cholesterol level was "a little higher than I would like," and that he has cut down his intake of high cholesterol foods, including eggs.

"WE'RE CRISIS-oriented when it comes to health," he told the food editors. "We spend thousands of dollars after someone has a heart attack but nothing on developing preventative nutrition."

The basic concern is one of learning to anticipate problems and establish preventative measures at all levels of society, according to Mayer.

His suggestions include: Prevention of dental caries by fluoridation of the water supply and a decrease in our excessive consumption of sugar; a more rational policy of support for nutrition; education of health specialists, especially doctors; better surveillance systems of the state of nutrition of citizens so that, especially in our times of rapid changes, governments and nutritionists can follow much more closely what happens to the diet of all citizens.

Lastly, Mayer suggests a need to re-examine the way in which the government gets advice on nutrition. Agencies which he feels should have more nutritional input include state food and drug agencies, the Federal Communications Commission and the Department of Defense.

With the exception of potatoes, which reflected a seasonal decrease of seven cents a pound, food prices averaged substantial increases from Aug. 26.

According to Monday's price survey, bacon increased an average of 13 cents. Pork chops rose seven cents in the same two week period followed by three and six-cent increases for ground beef and whole, broiler fryers.

Margarine, up three cents, and Grade A large eggs, up six cents, accounted for the largest average increase in dairy products. Butter and American processed cheese declined one and three cents, respectively. Milk remained stable.

Fruits and vegetables accounted for the largest increases with 16-cent jumps recorded for both celery and lettuce. Canned pears and frozen orange juice concentrate also rose six and 12 cents, respectively.

Cereals and dry groceries surveyed followed the general upward trend. Salad oil, up eight cents, accounted for the greatest increase in this category. White bread and corn flakes rose four and six cents, respectively. Grape jelly and spaghetti each increased one cent.

Food prices are based on averages obtained from four area stores on Monday of each week.

Freezing recommended amid canning equipment shortage

by MICHAEL J. CONLON

Housewives hoping to cut their retail food bills should know that the shortage of home canning equipment is likely to continue all this season, and may even still be around to some degree next year.

The industry claims it is working overtime to solve the problem but its warehouses are empty and it can't come close to meeting demand. The shortage appears to have hit with equal severity in all parts of the country.

Virginia Knauer, President Ford's consumer adviser, says the shortage stems from a scarcity of tinplate, used for lids, and soda ash, which goes into making glass jars.

On top of that, the rising cost of food prompted millions of Americans to plant home gardens this year, many for the first time, setting off an unusual scramble for canning supplies.

Mrs. Knauer doesn't believe much can be done this season, but she says she is taking "every possible step" to come up with something in time for next season. At this point, however, there is some doubt production can be expanded that much.

MEANTIME, her office advises that freezing is a good alternative to canning and lists the following fruits and vegetables that can be preserved that way:

Asparagus, beets, green beans, carrots, celery, corn, lima beans, mushrooms, okra, peas green and blackeye, pumpkin, snap beans, spinach and other greens, squash, sweet potatoes, tomatoes, apples, apricots, berries, cherries, peaches, pears, plums and rhubarb.

There also has been some concern expressed by Mrs. Knauer and Agriculture Department officials that home canners

Buy tomatoes now

If you are a lover of tomatoes, this is your time of year, says the U.S. Department of Agriculture. You will find an abundance of locally grown tomatoes at roadside stands and supermarkets.

Locally grown tomatoes are a special treat. They are usually varieties suited to your growing areas and season. Also, they don't have to be shipped long distances to market and therefore can be allowed to stay on the vine longer.

will resort to using chipped, damaged or substitute equipment such as mayonnaise jars because of the shortage.

They say that is a bad idea and even could be fatal since it could lead to improper preservation and botulism poisoning. If you have jars or equipment you're not going to use this season, they suggest you share with your neighbor to help ease the problem.

In that connection, the home gardener may be about to get a break from Congress.

A House tax reform bill, which is still some distance from final passage, would allow an income tax credit for the purchase of home gardening equipment.

If enacted, it would allow you to deduct from your tax bill 7 per cent of the purchase price of such equipment up to a maximum of $100. In other words, if you bought $100 worth of rakes, hoes and so on, you could deduct $7 from what you owe the government on the bottom line of your tax return.

We've had several letters recently asking why the price of sugar has gone up so sharply during the past few months. The answer appears to be the familiar problem of supply and demand. Production has been unable to keep up with demand for some time. And production itself is off because of poor growing conditions in some parts of the world. In other areas, growers can make more planting feed grains than they can growing sugar.

In addition, people around the world are buying more sugar than they used to. This is particularly true of the nations and other countries with expanding economies.

Sugar industry spokesmen are not very optimistic about the future. They believe it will be another four or five months before production increases and prices begin to decline again, and perhaps another year before prices sink to the levels of only a few weeks ago.

One reader in Jeanette, Pa., wondered why "domerera sugar" was not available in the United States, adding that she was sure a lot of people would like it.

Demerera is a partially refined sugar widely used in Britain. But the Sugar Refiners Association says it is not marketed in the United States because American consumers never developed a taste for it.

Serve pears for breakfast

A tempting breakfast helps get the family off to a nourishing day of school or work. As a special treat, ake Bartlett pears in a spiced orange sauce and serve them warm and juicy from the oven with sausages and eggs, a favorite cereal or even a hamburger for the kids. Bake several pears, halved and cored, at one time and chill those left to eat as dessert or as an after-school snack with a glass of milk.

ORANGE GLAZED BREAKFAST PEARS

3 fresh pears
1 cup orange juice
2 teaspoons shredded orange peel
¼ cup brown sugar
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
6 whole cloves
1 stick cinnamon
Halve and core pears but do not peel. Arrange cut side up in shallow baking dish. In small saucepan combine orange juice, orange peel, brown sugar, butter or margarine and spices. Heat to boiling and cook 10 minutes. Pour over pears. Bake at 350 degrees for 25 minutes, basting occasionally. Remove cloves and cinnamon stick. Serve pears hot with pan juices. Makes 6 servings.

Mrs. Clayton Brown

by LOIS SEILER

Almost every Thursday Charlotte Brown can be found in the kitchen of her Mount Prospect home preparing home-baked delicacies which she sends to the office with her husband each Friday for early morning Bible study meetings.

When Clayton Brown, an investment banker and his partners formed their own municipal bond business, they also instituted this study group which has grown over the years to include 30 to 40 businessmen. Charlotte's hobby is cooking and baking, so it has been enjoyable for her to contribute to the meetings in this way.

Constantly on the lookout for new and interesting coffee cake recipes, she has acquired quite a collection to vary the morning coffee breaks.

Her favorite offering, Almond Coffee cake, has a thin, buttery bottom crust covered with almond-flavored cream puff dough.

After the cakes (the recipe makes two) are baked, an almond-flavored glaze is spread over the top.

For dinner guests, Charlotte's menu often features Glazed Ham Balls, which are easy to prepare and have a different, and appealing flavor. She often uses leftover ham, grinding it herself, and combines it with pork sausage, eggs, cracker crumbs and milk. The mixture is formed into balls which are browned in the oven before a sweet-sour sauce is added for glaze during the remaining baking period.

This cook bakes au gratin potatoes in the oven at the same time. A green vegetable with a tart lemon sauce and a molded salad complete this menu.

For dessert Charlotte recommends Fresh Apple Cake with Hot Buttered Rum Sauce. This can be made with any type of apple, and soon all varieties will be in plentiful supply.

In addition to the apples, the cake is flavored with spices and chopped nuts. Solid and moist in texture, it will freeze well. The rum sauce should be warm when poured over the cake, and a scoop of ice cream may be added, if desired.

Proof of its appeal is the many requests Charlotte has had for the recipe. Also appreciative of their mother's baking endeavors are the Browns' four children, Gregg, 15, Cindy, 17, Paula, 18, and their son, Steve, who lives with his wife, Carl, in Wheaton.

ALMOND COFFEE CAKE Crust:

- 1 stick margarine
- 1 cup flour
- 2 tablespoons water

Cut margarine into flour as you would for a pie crust. Add water and form dough into a ball. Divide in half and press into two strips on an ungreased cookie sheet. The strips should be about 3 inches wide and the length of the cookie sheet. They will be quite thin.

Prepare the following:

- 1 cup water
- 1 stick margarine
- 1 cup flour
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon almond extract
- 3 eggs

Heat water and margarine until boiling. Add flour and salt and stir over low heat until mixture forms into a ball. Remove from heat and add almond extract. Beat in eggs one at a time and stir until smooth and glossy. Spread over crusts on cookie sheet. Bake for 45 minutes at 375 degrees.

Immediately upon removing from the oven, frost with the following:

- 1 tablespoon butter

- 1 cup powdered sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon almond extract
- Enough water to mix.
- Combine ingredients and spread over hot cakes. Serves 18 to 24.

GLAZED HAM BALLS

- 2 pounds ground ham
- 1/2 pound pork sausage
- 2 beaten eggs
- 1 cup soda cracker crumbs coarsely crushed
- 1 cup milk

Mix ingredients together and shape into balls about the size of an egg. Place in a casserole and bake 30 minutes at 350 degrees. Pour off any grease.

In the meantime, prepare the following glaze:

- 1 cup brown sugar
- 1 tablespoon dry mustard
- 1/2 cup vinegar
- 1/2 cup water

Combine ingredients in a saucepan and bring to a boil. Reduce heat and simmer five minutes. Pour over ham balls and bake another 30 to 45 minutes, uncovered, basting occasionally. Serves 6 to 8.

FRESH APPLE CAKE WITH HOT BUTTERED RUM SAUCE

- 1 stick margarine
- 2 cups sugar
- 2 eggs
- 2 cups flour
- 1 teaspoon baking powder
- 3/4 teaspoon baking soda
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
- 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
- 3 cups apples, pared, cored and chopped
- 1 cup chopped nuts

Cream margarine; gradually add sugar and beat until light and fluffy. Beat in eggs one at a time. Mix together all dry ingredients and gradually add to mixture. Stir in apples and nuts. (The batter will be very thick, but apples will give it moisture.) Spread into a greased 9 by 13-inch pan and bake 40 to 50 minutes at 325 degrees.

Serve with the following hot buttered rum sauce:

- 1 cup sugar
- 1 stick margarine
- 1/2 cup half and half or evaporated milk
- 1 teaspoon rum extract

Combine sugar, margarine and half and half and heat over medium heat. Simmer for four minutes. Remove from heat, cool slightly and stir in rum extract. Serve warm over cake. Serves 12.

AN ALMOND-FLAVORED Glaze is the finishing touch for Charlotte Brown's Almond Coffee Cake. She often prepares this rich, buttery cake for her husband, Clay, to take to his office as well as for family and guests.

Fruit butters are homemade treat

One of the old fashioned treats that is being re-discovered these days is homemade fruit butter. Butters are essentially two parts pureed cooked fruit sweetened with one part sugar and made fragrant with a measure of such sweet spices. Since butters use only half as much sugar as most jams, jellies and conserves the fruit flavor is more pronounced than in the sweeter spreads.

Mixed pickling spice is an unexpectedly delightful spice blend for fruit butters as witness the easy recipe for Spiced Apple Butter. Tie the spices in a cheesecloth bag and simmer with the apples until tender, then discard bag. (If you want the darker, more intensely apple-y flavor of old-fashioned apple butter, cook down cider by half and cook the apples in it instead of water.)

Nectarine Butter is a great idea when this fruit is in good supply — or you can use peaches or plums instead. The spicing can be varied, too; if you prefer use 1 1/2 teaspoons apple pie spice instead of ground cinnamon and cloves.

Butters should be cooked, uncovered, to give the water time to evaporate and allow the fruit mixture to thicken. Cooking time depends on the size of the saucepan used and the heat used. As it goes 'glub-glub' toward the end of the cooking time it should be stirred almost constantly to prevent burning.

To test its doneness, spoon a bit of fruit butter on a cold saucer and if no liquid separates from the edge of the butter, it is ready to be packed, following canning directions precisely.

NECTARINE BUTTER

- 4 pounds of nectarines
- 1/2 cup water
- 2 1/2 cups sugar
- 1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- 1/2 teaspoon ground cloves
- 1/4 teaspoon salt

Roughly cut up nectarines and discard pits (makes about 2 quarts fruit). Place in a large heavy saucepan or a Dutch oven along with the water. Bring to boiling point; reduce heat. Cover and simmer until nectarines are tender, about 20 minutes. Push through a food mill or sieve (makes about 8 cups pureed nectarines); return to saucepan. Bring to a rapid boil; add sugar all at once; return to boiling point. Reduce heat slightly; cook uncovered until nectarine butter thickens, stirring frequently, about 20 minutes. Stir in cinnamon, cloves and salt. Pour hot into hot sterilized canning jars leaving 1/4-inch head space. Seal with caps and screw lids; immerse into a steam pressure canner or deep kettle with enough boiling water to come 1-inch above jars. Cover and simmer for 15 minutes. Remove jars and complete the seal if necessary. Yield: 4 1/2 cups.

SPICED APPLE BUTTER

- 4 pounds tart green apples
- 3 lemons, sliced
- 2 cups water
- 2 tablespoons mixed pickling spice
- 3/4 cups sugar
- 1/4 teaspoon salt

Peel, core and dice apples (makes about 3 quarts). Place in a large heavy saucepan or a Dutch oven along with lemons and water. Tie the mixed pickling spice in a cheesecloth bag. Add to apple mixture; mix well. Bring to boiling point. Reduce heat. Cover and simmer until apples are tender, about 30 minutes. Remove spice bag. Push apple mixture through a food mill or sieve (makes about 7 cups pureed apples); return to saucepan. Bring to a rapid boil; add sugar and salt at once; return to boiling point. Reduce heat slightly; cook uncovered until apple butter thickens, stirring frequently, about 20 minutes. Pour hot, into hot sterilized canning jars leaving 1/4-inch head space. Seal with caps and screw lids; immerse into a steam pressure canner or deep kettle with enough boiling water to come 1-inch above jars. Cover and simmer for 15 minutes. Remove jars and complete the seal if necessary. Yield: about 7 cups

Household hints

Kitchen heat plus moisture often rusts or dries out kitchen metals. To restore drawer of bin glides that operate on a slide or tracking device, lubricate them with a thin coating of petroleum jelly.

Coat clean, dry oven rack runner with petroleum jelly to make them glide easily.

Fresh citrus loses very little vitamin C during shipping, selling, home storage and common preparation for eating.

Don't overpack foods in home canning. If you try to get too much into a jar, the food may spoil because of under-processing.

Overripe and bruised tomatoes are a bad buy. They will be soft and watery.

Never refrigerate underripe tomatoes. Cold temperatures may prevent ripening later.

Famous Viennese recipe adapts to beef short ribs

Beef short ribs are a personal favorite. Looking for a new way to prepare them, I adapted the famous Viennese recipe 'Esterhazy Rostbraten' a dish named for the family which was oldest and richest of Hungarian nobility.

The original recipe calls for 3 pounds of round steak cut 1 1/2 inches thick. Instead I used lean beef ribs, 8 serving pieces weighing a little more than 4 pounds.

An unusual sauce is the secret for this delectable main course and is prepared first. Chop coarsely 4 scraped carrots, 2 onions, 8 fresh mushrooms, 2 stalks celery and saute in 4 tablespoons bacon fat (or shortening) until vegetables are softened.

Make 2 tablespoons of thick brown butter sauce (brown butter thickened with flour) and add to vegetables along with 1 cup meat stock (or bouillon made from cubes), 1/4 cup sour cream, 2 teaspoons capers, 1 teaspoon paprika. Blend well and keep warm.

Wash and wipe dry the short ribs, salt and pepper generously and in a Dutch oven or large skillet with tight-fitting lid, brown the ribs on all sides in hot fat. When ribs are browned, add the sauce, cover and bake in a 350 degree oven for 1 hour (or until beef is tender to a fork). Now add 1/4 cup Madeira or tawny port wine and cook for another 10 minutes. Serve on heated platter.

to Jerusalem. The vegetable is of the sunflower family (Helianthus tuberosus) and probably got the name Jerusalem from the Italian Girasole (Sunflower) and Artichoke because of similarity in taste.

When shopping look for firm, clean tubers with no soft spots. They're excellent raw. Pare under running water and drop immediately into cold vinegar water to prevent discoloration. Chill, then slice as appetizers or cube for fresh vegetable salads.

To cook, scrub well in cold water. Bring salted water to a boil, drop in artichokes and cook 20 minutes or until tender (depends on size). Drain, remove skins with sharp knife and season with salt and pepper. Even better with a Cheddar cheese cream sauce.

The Danes have been making cheese for centuries.

Practice makes perfect.

It's a matter of good taste

Garden flavors are worth preserving

There is a way to enjoy out-of-season garden goodness throughout the year without worrying about fluctuating market prices. Can or freeze fresh items now. In the long run this saves money and there is a psychological bonus. The colorful array of relishes and jams on pantry shelves and the savoring of their contents throughout the long winter months are satisfactions well worth the few busy kitchen hours required.

For beginners, a secret to less stress is in preparing jars, cans and all necessary equipment before the actual work with fruits or vegetables begin. Try a cooperative venture when putting up foods. It is fun to have someone to work with and talk to while following step-by-step directions.

STRAWBERRIES

A bumper crop of strawberries is reported and prices should be more economical during September. This is a good time to can and freeze, but remember — strawberries tend to fade and lose flavor when canned. Use firm, red-ripe berries, without white or hollow centers. Hull, wash, drain and measure berries. Use ½ to ¾ cup sugar to each quart berries. Gently mix sugar with berries. Let stand 5 to 6 hours in a cool place. Heat slowly until sugar dissolves and berries are hot. Pack hot, into hot jars, leaving ½-inch head space. Adjust caps. Process pints 10 minutes, quarts 15 minutes, in boiling-water bath.

FREEZER FRUIT CUP JAM

- ¾ cup prepared strawberries (about 1 pint fully ripe strawberries)
- ¾ cup prepared pineapple (½ fully ripe medium pineapple)
- ½ cup prepared oranges (2 medium oranges)
- ½ cup prepared pears (about ½ pound fully ripe pears)
- 4½ cups (2 pounds) sugar
- ¾ cup water
- 1 box fruit pectin

Prepare containers. Use glass or plastic containers (one pint or less) with tight-fitting lids. Wash, scald and drain. Thoroughly crush about 1 pint fully ripe strawberries; measure ¾ cup into a large bowl. Peel, core and grind a fourth of a fully ripe medium pineapple; measure ¾ cup into the bowl. Peel and section 2 medium oranges, discard membrane and seeds, and crush thoroughly; measure ½ cup into the bowl. Peel, core, and grind about ½ pound fully ripe pears; measure ½ cup into the bowl. Mix sugar into fruits; let stand 10 minutes. Mix water and sure-jell fruit pectin in a small pan. Bring to a boil and boil 1 minute, stirring constantly. Stir into fruits. Continue stirring for 3 minutes. (A few sugar crystals may remain.) Ladle quickly into containers; cover at once with tight lids. Let stand until set (this may take up to 24 hours); then store in freezer. If jam is to be used within 2 or 3 weeks, it may be stored in refrigerator. Makes about 5¼ cups.

FREEZER STRAWBERRY-ORANGE JAM

- 1½ cups prepared fruit (about 1½ pints fully ripe strawberries)
 - 1 medium orange
 - 4 cups (1½ pounds) sugar
 - 2 tablespoons lemon juice (1 lemon)
 - ½ bottle fruit pectin
- Prepare containers as directed. Crush about 1½ pints fully ripe strawberries; measure 1½ cups into a large bowl or pan. Grate rind from 1 medium orange; add ½ teaspoon to strawberries. Section and chop orange, removing membrane and seeds; measure ½ cup into the bowl.

Mix sugar into the fruits; let stand 10 minutes. Mix lemon juice and fruit pectin; stir into fruit mixture. Continue stirring about 3 minutes. (A few sugar crystals may remain.) Ladle into containers. Cover at once with tight lids. When jam is set (may take up to 24 hours), store in freezer. If jam will be used within 2 or 3 weeks, store in refrigerator. Makes 5 cups.

PEARS

Pears are plentiful at this time and are easy to put up for preserves and jams that go well with homemade breads and biscuits during the coming winter months.

CHERRY PEAR CONSERVE

- 6 ripe pears
- 2½ cups sugar
- 2 navel oranges

2 jars (8 ounces each) red maraschino cherries, drained and halved
 ¼ cup dark seedless raisins
 ¼ cup lemon juice

Pare the pears and cut into small pieces. Add the sugar and allow to stand overnight. Wash oranges; remove orange peel in thin strips with vegetable peeler or sharp knife. Chop orange peel until fine. Juice the oranges. Add orange peel and juice and remaining ingredients to pear mixture. Cook in large saucepan about 25 to 30 minutes or until thickened. Pour into hot sterilized jars and seal. Makes about four 8-ounce jars.

CHERRY PINEAPPLE PEAR JAM

- 8 ripe pears
 - 1 can (20 ounces) crushed pineapple in heavy syrup, undrained
 - 3 cups sugar
 - 1 teaspoon grated lemon peel
 - ¼ cup lemon juice
 - ¼ teaspoon ground nutmeg
 - 1/8 teaspoon salt
 - 2 jars (8 ounces each) red maraschino cherries, drained and halved
- Wash, pare, core and dice the pears. Place pears and all other ingredients in large pot. Bring mixture to a boil over medium heat. Reduce heat and cook about 25 minutes or until thickened, stirring occasionally. Pour into hot sterilized jars and seal. Makes about 4½ cups. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Here's help for sandwich packers

No need to go out of your mind packing lunches five days a week all through the school year.

The way to keep sane: Eliminate the daily routine. Margaret Spader, home economist with the Aluminum Assoc., suggests setting up a production line and making two to three weeks' supply of sandwiches at one time.

When properly wrapped, they can be stored in the freezer with no deterioration in quality.

Frozen sandwiches thaw in about an hour at room temperature, so are ready to eat at lunch time. The quality of the sandwich depends on the quality of ingredients that go into it and the expertise of wrapping.

All food should be of top quality — freezing preserves quality, it does not improve it. Foods in less than peak condition deteriorate more noticeably when frozen.

When wrapped in an air tight foil package, sandwiches will stay fresh several hours after thawing.

Besides eliminating a job that is repeated 180 days a year, the production line, freezing approach to making sandwiches results in greater variety and money saving, too, when leftovers are wisely used. For example, instead of ham sandwiches for two or three consecutive days when you want to use up leftovers, freeze some of the sandwiches and alternate their use with different varieties on hand in the freezer.

THE FOLLOWING tips from the Aluminum Association will help in making frozen sandwiches that are palatable and acceptable:

- Wrap each day's sandwiches in one package and make it air tight. Aluminum foil is recommended as a wrap because it is moisture, air and vapor proof. Frozen foods discolor, dry out and lose flavor if air gets into the package.

- Vary breads from day to day. Use pumpernickel, raisin, rye, fruit and nut breads, buns, hard rolls or frankfurter rolls as well as white and whole wheat sandwich breads.

- Prevent filling from soaking into bread by using butter or margarine on both slices of bread.

- Following are some filling ingredients that freeze well: hard cooked egg yolk, canned or cooked chicken, turkey, fish, deviled ham, dried beef, bologna, salami, boiled ham, raisins, peanut butter, mustard, chili sauce.

- Following are ingredients that do not freeze well. Avoid using these sandwiches to be frozen: hard cooked egg white, cottage cheese, cooked bacon, fresh vegetables, preserves, jellies and jams, mayonnaise, salad dressing, onions, tomato slices, lettuce.

- NUTRITION IS an important consideration. Lunch should furnish one-third of the body's daily requirements. Sandwiches with low protein fillings should be supplemented by cubes of cheese, hard cooked eggs, cottage cheese salads, sliced cold cuts, beans, peas, nuts.

- Seasonings may change in strength during freezing; they should be used sparingly and added at serving time if necessary.

- Try to keep a 5-day cycle of different sandwiches on hand.

- Use leftover meals judiciously. Change their appearance by shredding, grinding or mincing. Use sauces like steak, mustard or chili sauce or chutney to perk up flavor. Freshly ground pepper over sliced pork, beef or turkey gives a pleasant accent.

- Arrange the production line in this order: diced bread, butter or margarine at room temperature, filling, aluminum foil cut in squares that will allow a fold over tuck to shut out air, a sandwich spreader helps speed up the job.

- Plan to use the sandwiches within 2 to 3 weeks. (United Press International)

Good Health

Cheese is about as nutritious as milk, but much more concentrated. Just one ounce of cheese contains the same protein as seven ounces of milk! Cheese is also a rich source of calcium, phosphorus, and vitamin A. Of course, if your children already love cheese, don't tell them it's so good for them, or they might begin to hate it!

Shrimp filled pastry puffs for brunch hit

A rich, pleasantly surprising dish for special guests combines cheese, mushrooms and shrimp in a cream sauce. This is served as a filling in individual pastry puff rings along with asparagus spears and a favorite beverage. You may find a Cheese Puff Ring just the answer for something different to serve for Sunday brunches.

CHEESE PUFF RING

Pastry:

- 1 cup water
- 1/2 cup butter or margarine
- 1 cup unsifted all-purpose flour
- 4 eggs
- 2 cups (8 ounces) grated Danish Esrom cheese

Filling:

- 1/4 cup butter or margarine
- 1/3 cup flour
- 1 1/2 cups half and half
- 1/4 cup sherry
- 1 can (6 ounces) sliced mushrooms, drained
- 1 pound shrimp, cooked, shelled and deveined

In a saucepan heat water and butter to boiling until butter melts. Stir in flour all at once and stir until mixture forms a ball that leaves the sides of the pan. Remove from heat and cool. Beat in eggs, one at a time, beating well after each addition. Stir in 1/4 cup of the cheese. Lightly grease a cookie sheet and with a finger mark an 8-inch in diameter circle on the cookie sheet. Drop egg mixture by heaping tablespoons on top of ring mark. Bake in a preheated 400-degree oven for 45 to 50 minutes or until puffed and brown. Remove from oven and prick several times with the tines of a fork. Replace in oven and bake another 5 minutes. Cool on a rack.

To prepare filling, in a saucepan melt butter. Stir in flour. Gradually stir in half and half and sherry. Stir over low heat until sauce bubbles and thickens. Stir in remaining cheese until smooth. Stir in mushrooms and shrimp. Add salt and pepper to taste. Reheat until bubbly. Split puff ring into 2 halves. Place bottom half on a serving platter. Remove doughy strands of dough on the inside of ring. Spoon on hot cream and shrimp. Replace top of ring. Serve with asparagus spears and watercress. Makes 6 servings.

Saucy fish for barbecues

It's barbecue time and the drifting smell of fish sizzling hot, generously coated with a fragrant brush-on sauce is not to be resisted.

Any firm-fleshed fish — store-bought or a lucky catch — can be broiled. The flesh of all fish is tender as it is pulled from the water, so it doesn't really need marinating. The same rich seasoning can be applied with a simple brush-on sauce as good as that used for the Worcestershire Fish Kabobs or the Jiffy Barbecued Fish Steak.

Brush-on sauces are typically based on oil or butter, tomato, wine or condiments such as catsup. Worcestershire sauce — to taste — serves as an all-in-one enhancer of such a brush-on sauce.

In broiling fish allow about 10 minutes per inch thickness and turn the meat over frequently, brushing to enrich the flavor and keep the flesh tender and moist.

WORCESTERSHIRE FISH KABOBS

- 2 pound halibut steak or other firm fleshed fish
- 4 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 1 tablespoon onion powder
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
- 1/2 teaspoon salt

Lemon wedges
Bone fish; cut into 2-inch chunks; set aside. In a medium saucepan melt butter; blend in onion powder, lemon juice, Worcestershire sauce and salt. Brush over all sides of fish. Skewer fish on four 6-inch long skewers, alternately with lemon wedges. Place on rack in broiler pan under preheated hot broiler; until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork, brushing once with remaining butter mixture, about 8 minutes. Pour fish drippings over fish before serving. If desired serve with green salad and French bread. Yield: 4 portions.

JIFFY BARBECUED FISH STEAKS

- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 1/4 cup catsup
- 3 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 2 pound halibut steak or other firm fleshed fish

In a small saucepan melt butter. Stir in catsup, Worcestershire sauce and salt. Place fish on rack in broiler pan; brush generously with Worcestershire sauce mixture. Broil under preheated hot broiler turning once and brushing occasionally with sauce until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork, about 7 to 8 minutes on each side. If desired, grill over hot charcoal brushing with sauce occasionally, turning once, until done as desired. Yield: 4 to 6 portions.

DOMINICK'S PRICE PROTECTION POLICY . . .

Now in effect at all Dominick's Finer Food Stores . . . a price protection policy on shelf items in all of our stores. Dominick's will no longer increase prices on shelf items already price marked. Take advantage of bountiful tomatoes

The shortage of canning supplies has left many home gardeners with a bumper crop of tomatoes this year. Canning is the usual preservation method for fresh tomatoes, but home canning jars and lids are simply not available in quantity this year.

Actually, whole tomatoes can be wrapped and frozen, but they should be used within two months. Because of the water content tomatoes tend to become mushy when frozen and should be used for cooking. For best results, stew tomatoes before freezing, but do not add bread or crackers until they're heated for serving. Stew the tomatoes and cool by placing the saucepan in a larger pan containing ice before packaging and freezing.

You can also freeze uncooked tomato pulp and store it for a few months without great loss of flavor.

THE MOST OBVIOUS solution for a bountiful tomato crop is to use them fresh. They are an excellent source of vitamin C and A and adapt to a variety of recipes.

To bake cut the stem end out of six tomatoes. Cut the tomatoes in halves and place in 13 x 9 x 2-inch baking pan. Sauté 2 tablespoons chopped onion in 2 tablespoons butter until soft. Add 1/2 cup bread crumbs, 2 tablespoons parsley, 1/2 teaspoon salt and 1/8 teaspoon pepper. Toss lightly and spread mixture on top of tomato halves.

Bake in hot oven (400 degrees) until lightly browned, about 15 minutes. Makes 6 servings as a vegetable, 12 for garnish.

The same bread crumb topping can be used on red or green tomato slices and browned for three to five minutes in the broiler. If you're broiling steak or hamburgers, just add the seasoning mixture to tomato halves and place on the broiler pan with the meat for the last couple of minutes cooking time.

DON'T FORGET THE possibilities of

by Fran Heckart

using those green tomatoes before the first frost. Here's an easy recipe for stewed green tomatoes which offers a flavor change from the method using ripe ones.

Sauté 2 tablespoons minced onion in 2 tablespoons butter until light brown. Add 2 cups sliced green tomatoes. Stir and cook the tomatoes slowly until they are tender. Season with 1/4 teaspoon salt, 1/4 teaspoon paprika, and 1/2 teaspoon curry powder.

Garnish the tomatoes with 1 tablespoon chopped, fresh parsley and serve. Makes four servings.

Frank and noodle skillet can be a man's specialty

This is the season men shine in the cooking department. Those who enjoy barbecuing also are whipping up special salads, desserts and casserole/skillet type dishes with aplomb. Cookout Noodle Skillet is a quickie dish to add to the male repertoire. It goes well on a camping/fishing trip with just the guys or as a kitchen-to-patio dish for family and friends. Combine frankfurters and egg noodles with onion and green beans and simmer in tomato soup with herbs and chili powder. It's an easy, hearty dish to serve right from the skillet.

COOKOUT NOODLE SKILLET

- 8 frankfurters
- 1 medium onion, sliced
- 1 clove garlic, halved
- 2 tablespoons salad oil
- 1 quart water
- 2 beef bouillon cubes
- 4 cups medium egg noodles (8 ounces)
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon each: basil, oregano leaves
- 1/2 teaspoon chili powder
- Dash pepper
- 1 can (10 3/4 ounces) condensed tomato soup
- 1 can (8 ounces) cut green beans, drained

In large, heavy skillet, lightly brown frankfurters with onion and garlic in oil.

Remove frankfurters; keep warm. Discard garlic. Add water and bouillon cubes to skillet. Bring to boil. Stir in noodles and seasonings. Simmer, covered, 10 to 15 minutes or until noodles are tender. Stir frequently. Mix in tomato soup and green beans. Top with frankfurters. Cover and cook 5 to 10 minutes. (Add a small amount of water if necessary to prevent sticking). Serve immediately. Makes 4 servings.

Better meat packages

Packaged meat may stay fresh longer if a new packaging technique succeeds, says the Cooperative Extension Service, University of Nebraska. The U.S. Department of Agriculture is researching a method that encloses packaged, pre-cut meat in its own miniature controlled atmosphere to help preserve freshness and brightness. The atmosphere is created by a packet of nonvolatile acid such as citric acid and a salt, such as sodium bicarbonate baking soda. Moisture inside the package makes the salt and acid react to give off carbon dioxide, the same gas that is used to preserve fruits and vegetables in cold storage.

Jobs

It's not finding work, it's finding men who will

CHICAGO (UPI) — Finding enough jobs to go around is only part of the nation's unemployment problem.

The first step toward solution involves finding the people who are looking for the jobs and giving them a statistical identification — and this can be a big fat mess.

In Illinois, to use one state as an example, there are rates of unemployment ranging from 2.5 to 14.3 in the 53 "job market" areas. In 22 of these areas the rate is above the national average. In 16 of them the rate is high enough to qualify for the emergency job program just announced, at least theoretically.

THE JOBS, AT least in Illinois, must linger in theory for some unemployed in some places because not all places are part of the statistics. To complicate the situation even more, there could be pockets of severe unemployment in areas with an otherwise low rate.

This applies to both urban and rural settings. In the Chicago job market area, for instance, the unemployment rate is 4.7. But in some parts of Chicago the rate may be five times this. Moreover, some counties that aren't a part of a job market area could have severe unemployment conditions.

But Labor Department officials in Chicago say arrangements have been made with the Illinois Department of Labor to monitor the entire state, to prevent any area with an acute job need from being overlooked. The state officials said their people are geared to find these places that don't show on the charts.

BOTH STATE AND federal governments have been keeping unemployment records since the Great Depression, but those who work with the figures agree there is much that should be done to provide a better picture of job situation. The federal statisticians use a sampling program to arrive at the national unemployment estimate — 5.4 in August. In Illinois the rates are derived mostly from unemployment insurance claims.

The state figures distort the situation in Calhoun County, according to C. C. Campbell, editor of the Calhoun News, at Hardin, the county seat. The Hardin area, according to the statistics, has the highest unemployment rate of Illinois — 14.3.

"Many residents of this county," Campbell said, "are engaged in farming. They're really not unemployed, in the true senses of the word, if they no longer have a job they've been holding."

"They can file for unemployment compensation, but they've still got a job — it's running a farm. . . . Those figures don't show the true picture."

Our state's worst area, but is it really bad?

McLEANSBORO, ILL. (UPI) — The statistics say this place is in one of the worst unemployment areas of Illinois.

But a casual visitor couldn't reach that conclusion just by looking at the town and its people.

He would have to nose around and perhaps go out into other parts of Hamilton County. But eventually he would find living examples of what the cold statistics have recorded — a jobless rate of 12.4, which is about three times the state average.

This is not your typical pocket of poverty. The grass on the court house lawn is sparkling green and the stores around the square are well cared for, as are most of the houses. The crops on the rolling fields that surround the town are lush. The kids are well scrubbed. The people smile.

"I guess it's kind of hard explaining the unemployment rate for this county," said Casey Agonstine, editor of the weekly Times-Leader.

"There weren't any jobs that went away," Agonstine explained. "There never were any jobs in the first place."

McLEANSBORO, HE SAID, has been losing population since World War II. Its 2,600 residents comprise a high percentage of old people. Many of the young leave town a few days after their high school graduation and return only to visit.

There never has been a proper climate for industrial expansion, Agonstine said.

"The apathy has been pretty thick," he added. "We've been trying to stimulate some activity, some of us. But there are others around town who want things to be pretty much the way they are.

"THERE HAS BEEN some indication of a sizable coal mine operation getting under way. It would employ 400 or maybe 500 men. But that would be a couple of years off. There are a lot of men here who would like to get coal mine work if it's close by.

"Yes, we've been talking about that plan to create those jobs on federal money. Did you say 800-thousand of them? Well, that's a lot of jobs but we're not sure any of them will go to anybody in Hamilton County.

"I suppose there will be a lot of pressure to get that federal money for people in the cities. Maybe we could start hollering for some of it in McLeansboro.

In Illinois, we have 4.4% unemployment

The unemployment rate in Illinois is 4.4, according to the state Department of Labor, and this rate is exceeded in two-thirds of the reporting areas. For statistical purposes the state has been split into 53 job market areas. These include the nine Illinois metropolitan areas. All of the 53 areas cover at least one county.

A large number of counties have not been fitted into a job market area because, a department official explained, they are mostly rural and have experienced little history of employment shifting.

When is TB an 'inactive' disease?

Will you please answer some questions for me about tuberculosis? My doctor will not explain to me, so I hope you will. I have inactive TB and have had for two years or more. What does that mean? Will it likely become active? Was it active once? Can it become cured? My husband coughs a lot but was not X-rayed. Why? I have never had anything done for my TB, so I guess if it was active once it just became inactive on its own. I'm a senior citizen with emphysema and chronic bronchitis.

The most important thing is what your doctor means by inactive tuberculosis. Usually it means that you were once infected with tuberculosis, but there is no evidence of any live TB germs or continuing tuberculosis process. In about 99 per cent of people who are infected with tuberculosis germs, the body develops immunity to the infection, contains it, and there is no further difficulty. There may be some old scars where the infection was, that represent healed tuberculosis. The healing occurs on its own.

In other instances the infection is activated or there is some breakdown in the body's immunity, and the bacteria start to increase in number, causing cavities in the lung and other changes from active tuberculosis.

There is still some argument about whether an old infection which appears cured can become active and cause problems later. Some doctors believe this happens, and others believe when older people develop active tuberculosis it is from a reinfection. There is an increase in frequency in tuberculosis in later years. In any case, because of the higher rate in older people I do think that a chest X-ray every year in this age group as part of the regular medical evaluation is a good idea, whether or not you have had previous infection with tuberculosis.

OBVIOUSLY your tuberculosis was once an active infection, which it had to be to leave any evidence of it, and you belong to the group of 99 per cent where it became inactive and is no longer of major medical importance. Today even persistent active tuberculosis can usually be cured, but the best results occur with early detection before any damage is done. It is hard, for example, to do much about reversing some lung damage once it has already occurred. Probably you had an infection when you were young. The first infection often occurs in childhood.

Your husband definitely should have a chest X-ray. There are lots of things besides tuberculosis that can cause a cough. Anyone who has a cough that lasts longer than two weeks should seek medical attention.

Although tuberculosis is not the problem it once was, I'd like to emphasize that it is still a major health problem. It is quite important to find all cases of tuberculosis and to check the status of all persons who have been in contact with anyone with active tuberculosis. It is still a common problem in Mexican Americans, Orientals and those of Indian extraction. In many parts of the world, particularly in parts of Asia and Latin America, it is still the most common cause of death and a leading medical problem. Anyone living in these areas has a greater chance of being exposed to tuberculosis.

Content of dreams has much to do with how you feel

THE HERALD

Thursday, September 19, 1974

Section 8 —3

(This column is presented by Forest Hospital in Des Plaines.)

"All of us have the experience that sleep restores," said Dr. Milton Kramer, "and it seems to restore us both physically and mentally. There's been an enormous search over the last 20 years to establish in a scientific way the restorative basis for sleep."

Kramer is director of a sleep laboratory at the Veterans Administration Hospital in Cincinnati, Ohio, and a professor of psychiatry at the University of Cincinnati. He's also author of the books, "Dream Psychology" and "The New Biology of Dreaming."

"Physically," Kramer said, "we have reason to believe that certain parts of sleep participate in the physical rebuilding of certain kinds of cells. This tends to occur quite early in the night and is accompanied by secretion of the growth hormone. There's probably protein build-up, too, protein being one of the basic building blocks of cells."

"FROM THE psychological aspect of sleep, the current belief is that it restores one's mood, how one feels," Kramer said. "Upon awakening, one either feels refreshed or down, depending on the sense one has of the sleep, whether one feels he slept well or poorly. Particularly, the dream content, the mental process accompanying sleep, seems to be intimately related to how one feels.

"By the dream content, I mean that how one feels seems to depend on the characters that appear in the dreams. For an individual, if the proper people appear in the dream, he'll feel good on awakening, relative to nights when the proper people don't appear and he feels depressed on awakening," Kramer said.

"Then we get into sleep disturbances," Kramer continued. "The commonest complaint is of insomnia, which comes in three forms. One form is difficulty in getting to sleep in the first place, where a person will lie awake for anywhere from a half hour to three hours."

Another is a person will get to sleep fine right away, then wake up for a time.

Another is a person will sleep for three or four hours, then wake up and lie awake till it's time to get up in the morning. This latter difficulty is perhaps the easiest of the three to treat. It is typically caused by some psychological depression. When we treat the depression the problem is usually resolved.

"HARDER TO DEAL with are the difficulties of falling asleep at the onset and the interrupted sleep. These two afflict about 26 per cent of the total population. The problems are frequently physiological, usually respiratory. People have some trouble breathing. They may even stop breathing as they start to fall off to sleep, then actually awaken themselves to start breathing again. This will happen over and over. If they take sleeping pills which depress the respiratory center, they increase their difficulty."

"Sometimes," Kramer said, "people simply develop bad habits associated with sleep, and the very act of going to sleep is associated in their mind with difficulties. In these cases, they require retraining in the procedures associated with the actual act of preparation for sleep. Or some have disturbed body rhythms. When everybody else is going to sleep after a long day, their bodies don't want to — they're out of phase with themselves. We can either try to change the body rhythms or change the time when they try to go to sleep."

"In treatment for insomnia, after completely assessing the physical and emotional state of the patient, we may use hypnotic drugs, relaxation treatments or electrosleep. The most important treatment factor a person with sleep difficulties can use is regularization of habits, setting up a train of action and behavior prior to sleep which will lead to sleep."

200th anniversary of oxygen observed

LONDON (UPI) — Take a deep breath. This is the 200th anniversary of the discovery of oxygen.

That deep breath proves that oxygen had been around a long time before Joseph Priestley separated it from air in 1774. Oxygen, vital to every animal living, is about 20 per cent of every breath we take.

So an extensive new exhibition called "The Breath of Life" in London's Science Museum commemorates the anniversary by ranging far beyond Priestley's discovery.

It begins with the Bible and surveys the whole subject of respiration, outlining how scientists slowly struggled toward knowledge of the way the oxygen we breathe keeps us alive.

Half the exhibition examines a second form of the "breath of life," the anaesthetic gases developed later which make modern surgery possible, whose use transformed the whole science of medical treatment.

Inevitably the show has a distinct medical bias, and tends to be rather grim. The final exhibit, an unstintingly realistic open-heart operation in a modern hospital operating theater, is not for the squeamish.

But along the way, frankly labelled "quackery," can be found a machine that claimed to treat chest diseases by manufacturing "artificial Australian air."

Another miracle on show, Dr. Carer Moffatt's AmmoniaPhone, apparently was intended to transform everyone into a Neapolitan tenor by producing "artificial Italian air" for enriching the tone and extending the range of the human voice.

Priestley is only one hero of the more scientific sections. He discovered not only oxygen, but devised means to isolate hydrogen, ammonia, sulfur dioxide and a long list of other gases. He was a minister of religion, and took a lot of fundamentalist abuse for tampering with the God-given air.

The exhibition, on view until the end of the year, honors many other great names of science.

But its true stars are the anonymous researchers who slowly developed machines and apparatus to administer both forms of "the breath of life" to relieve pain or chest death.

Nations urged to join in solar system exploration

WASHINGTON (UPI) — One of America's leading planetary specialists has called for scientists of all nations to join together in a major, 10-year effort to explore the solar system.

Dr. William H. Pickering, director of the Jet Propulsion Laboratory at Pasadena, Calif., proposed an International Solar System Decade modeled after other major international scientific efforts such as the International Geophysical Year which focused on earth and its space environment in the late 1950s.

Since then, space exploration has made major progress and there has been a growing interest among the scientific community in earth's planetary neighbors and in the role our planet has in the solar system. This interest has been sparked by recent American and Soviet space probes to Mars, Venus, Mercury and Jupiter.

"Now is the time to extend this interest into a full international program of exploration," Pickering said in an editorial in Aeronautics and Astronautics, a journal published by the American Institute of Aeronautics and Astronautics.

Such an effort should be started soon, Pickering said, because an unusually favorable alignment of the planets during the next several years offers unique opportunities for probes from earth.

For example, 1979 is the best opportunity in a century to explore Uranus, the seventh planet out from the sun. He said late in 1981 is a particularly favorable time to launch a spacecraft to conduct an extensive exploration of giant Jupiter, and 1981 and 1983 are the best years to send craft to Mars. In addition, Pickering said 1982 presents a rare opportunity to rendezvous with the comet Encke.

To explain district transfer

Officials to conduct 4 fire-vote meetings

by JOHN MAES

Buffalo Grove fire officials will conduct four public meetings to "explain the purpose" of the proposed referendum to transfer the Lake County section of the village into the Wheeling Township Rural Fire Protection District.

Trustee Edward Osmon said the sessions have been tentatively set for Oct. 3, 10, 17 and 24. Officials are hopeful the referendum will be held Oct. 26. Osmon is chairman of a committee imposed by the village board last year to study the transfer of districts.

SOME AREAS OF the community experience a high residential turnover and too many people are unaware where their fire service comes from, Osmon said.

He said the presentations will include a "statistical analysis of each department," and will be open to "any and all questions."

Two meetings will be conducted in the Cook County section of Buffalo Grove while two other presentations will be put before residents in the Lake County portion of the village.

The 4,000 to 5,000 village residents in Lake County are the ones who must vote on the fire transfer issue. The Long

Long Grove officials to meet public tonight

Long Grove fire officials will meet at 8 p.m. today with interested citizens on the proposed fire service referendum in the learning center of Twin Grove School, 1072 Ivy Ln.

Tony Berg, a trustee for the Long Grove Fire Protection District, said the meeting will be about the district's fire service. Department members will also bring some of their firefighting equipment for the presentation.

Grove Fire Protection District serves the Lake County section.

At a meeting of the special committee Tuesday night, Osmon asked David Grupp, a Long Grove fireman if his department would be interested in participating in the meetings to tell residents about the services provided by Long Grove.

GRUPP SAID, "There is a need for the Long Grove Fire Dept. to take part in these meetings so there are no unanswered questions."

Although Cook County village residents will not vote on the issue, Osmon said it also will be important to present the matter in Cook County. "They deserve the opportunity to know what we're doing with their district," he said.

If the referendum passes, the entire village would be served by one fire department rather than the present three. Long Grove and Vernon fire districts serve the village north of Old Checker Road, while the remaining sector, which includes 12,000 residents, gets fire protection from the Buffalo Grove Fire Dept., a branch of the Wheeling district.

Village officials support the transfer, saying one district serving the entire village is a vital first step toward the formation of a municipal fire department at some future date. "You can't form a fire department with half a town," said Buffalo Grove Fire Chief Wayne Winter.

FIRE AND AMBULANCE calls in the area are increasing to the point where volunteer or paid-on-call firemen would not be able to handle them all, Winter said. With a municipal fire department, however, enough full-time men could be hired to answer alarms for ambulances and small fires.

The Buffalo Grove department has 5 full-time and 45 volunteer firefighters.

The department also could provide adequate fire protection to the area now being covered by Long Grove if the referendum is approved, Winter said.

Long Grove fire officials say they are not opposed to the formation of a Buffalo Grove Municipal Fire Dept., but are against the transfer of the area from one fire protection district to another.

TONY BERG, A trustee for the Long Grove district, said the shift is not necessary because the department can provide adequate protection to the northern section of town.

"It's much easier for us to answer calls there because we're closer. There's

'But pressure's not off'

Village's money picture is slowly getting better

by JOHN MAES

Buffalo Grove is slowly pulling itself out of a precarious financial position, but the village will have to keep a close watch on its finances for some time, said Village Trustee James Shirley.

"We're doing somewhat better than anticipated," Shirley said Wednesday. "Some things are beginning to take care of themselves by actions we've already taken, but the pressure's not off and we can't relax."

The village recently paid off $2,000 of a tax anticipation warrant debt. Last July, the sale of $140,000 in warrants was approved by the board of trustees on the 1973 tax levy to meet various expenses.

If reasonable weather conditions allow construction in the village to continue into late fall or early winter the village may "gain a little" through revenues that come from building permits, inspections and other required fees, Shirley said.

HE SAID CONSTRUCTION of the Grand Spaulding Dodge dealership and stores in the Plaza Verde Shopping Center, both on Dundee Road, could bring in such revenue if work is not held up.

Delayed construction caused by the cement truckdrivers strike hurt the village because building revenues were not coming in as expected, he said.

Shirley also said tax collections will be speeded up due to new measures recently begun in Cook and Lake counties and tax revenue receipts will be "evened out over the year," rather than coming in late as they did this year.

Tax revenues to the village that were delayed several months were a major cause of financial trouble in Buffalo Grove, according to officials.

Another financial boost may come in the form of an increased share of motor fuel tax and state income tax funds if the upcoming village census shows large enough population growth, Shirley said.

Village officials expect the census will show the village has grown to 19,000 residents since a previous 1972 count.

LATE LAST MONTH, there was some fear among village leaders that money in the village general fund would hold out only until the beginning of October and that additional tax warrants might have to be sold around December of this year.

That need was combatted however by deferring expenses that were considered "not absolutely necessary," and Shirley said existing funds are now adequate to carry the village beyond that time, but he would not "say how long."

If the village is able to keep expenses to a minimum, Shirley said the financial picture "will get progressively better."

AN IRONIC MOMENT for orderly and conscientious objector Dave Zabler as he wheels a Vietnam War veteran through a hallway at Northwest Community Hospital. Zabler is content with his decision not to leave the country or be inducted into active service. "They made their decision and I made mine," he said simply.

'Doing their duty'

by MARILYN McDONALD

They didn't want to go to war. Instead, they chose 24 months of alternate service at Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights.

The 12 men are conscientious objectors who sought and received a waiver of military duty and now work as janitors and orderlies, supervisors and specialists. Theirs is the same service that will face draft-dodgers and deserters under President Ford's conditional amnesty plan.

Their months of mandatory duty have brought mixed reactions. They say their lives have been disrupted but not as dramatically as if they had been in the military. Some believe their careers have been stopped and they are already behind those who didn't have to serve at all. Others want to continue their hospital work after their obligations are completed.

Kent Prodie, 22, Woodstock, is now a sanitation specialist at the hospital, but originally applied for a job in a Head Start day-care center in Peoria. He lost the job when red tape tied up his application.

BRODIE HAS ONE month of service to go, but doesn't feel bitter about his two years because it was his choice. He said he had been in college with no particular direction when the draft seemed imminent. He decided to apply for his conscientious objector classification because he did not want to be in the military but "I felt I owed my country two years for the privilege of living here."

Scott Kimbell, 24, Rock Island, says he "scrambled" for his conscientious objector status when his induction letter arrived the day after college graduation. Now left with "106 days, I counted on the calendar" as a storeroom assistant, Kimbell hopes to pursue his original intention of going to law school.

Mark Gonzalez, 22, Chicago, sought his military exemption for religious reasons (he is a member of the Jehovah's Witnesses). He left a job at Illinois Bell that he had held for 2 1/2 years and now has until Nov. 10 to serve as a maintenance man at the hospital. He says that he can't understand how his job at the hospital is helping the country. "I'm making the same amount of money here that I was making there. If they didn't have me for the job, they'd get someone else," he said, shrugging his shoulders.

To correct perceptual problems

Learning disabilities class on the 'beam' at Kilmer

by JUDY JOBBITT

A hunk of wood has turned into a useful instructional tool for students in the learning-disabilities classes at Kilmer School.

Last week a balance beam was installed for use by students with perceptual difficulties.

The beam, donated to Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 by the Buffalo Grove Junior Woman's Club, has become a focal point for the students and their teacher, Frances Katsura.

"There's no end to all the things you can do with it," said Mrs. Katsura.

MRS. KATSURA took the initiative to follow through on a letter she received from the school district office last spring notifying her that the woman's club wanted to donate something to the district.

"I called them immediately and knew exactly what I wanted," she said. "They hadn't even raised the money yet, but I was first in line."

She said she was thrilled when she received the beam from the club. "It's the first time I've received anything like this," she said looking back on her 18 years of teaching in the district.

For the past eight years, Mrs. Katsura

has taught learning disabilities students at Kilmer, 655 Golfview Dr., Buffalo Grove. She said most of the students have difficulty concentrating and retaining directions and instructions.

THE BALANCE BEAM lets her work with students to develop both of these areas as well as their physical coordination.

She said the children have average or above average intelligence, but have difficulty screening out distractions that interfere with their school work.

"These children are not dumb children," They just need extra attention and time devoted to them to allow them to develop their academic abilities, she said.

The area she stresses most with students is ego-building. "I'm interested in their ego even before their academics," she said. "There should be a section in all education for ego-building. There must be a time for them to shine."

She said she tries to teach her students to be "good human beings. If you feel good about yourself, you can be a wholesome human being."

Mrs. Katsura works with 19 children from kindergarten through sixth grade at Kilmer. She considers the children diagnosed for learning difficulties "fortunate." "There are many others that need the attention but don't get it. The 'LD' kids are fortunate. They've been identified."

SHE SETS HIGH goals for the students and works with them to achieve the most they can. "My expectations are as though they are going to college academically," she said.

Although she said she realizes all of the students will not achieve that goal, she doesn't want to restrict them or limit them in her own mind.

Two of her former students have placed on the honor roll at high school.

Most students don't resent coming to her classroom and she encourages them to bring their friends for group study, she said.

Just as she believes there is always a new goal for her students to strive for, she also continues to study and learn new methods of teaching the youngsters.

And with the newest addition to her classroom — the balance beam — her students are doing just that.

BALANCING THE BEAM requires good coordination from Kim Petroski as she walks across the beam with an eraser perched on her shoe. The beam was donated by the Buffalo Grove Junior Woman's Club for use in Frances Katsura's learning disabilities classroom to teach students concentration and perception.

School elections in April

General Caucus to start looking for candidates

The Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 General Caucus will start looking for candidates next month for the April school board election.

The search will begin three months earlier this year than in the past "because we thought we should have more time to look for qualified people," said

Geraldine Camp, caucus corresponding secretary.

"This will give the screening people more time and a better idea about what they're looking for," she said. "This will give us time to do a really good job."

THE CAUCUS PLANS to hold its first meeting in early November and is looking for organizations interested in participating in the caucus system.

Last year 54 local organizations were represented in the caucus of about 100 groups contacted. Organizations will receive information about the caucus next week. If a group interested in sending a delegate is not contacted, it should contact Mrs. Camp at 394-5887.

The change in the meeting schedule followed the group's study of other caucus by-laws in the Northwest suburban area. Of the seven responses the caucus received, six of the groups started looking for and screening applicants earlier than the Dist. 21 caucus.

LAST YEAR THE caucus was criticized for only endorsing one candidate although three candidates were running for two board positions.

The caucus can endorse as many candidates as its delegates believe are qualified to hold the positions. The two candidates not endorsed last year were board members seeking reelection. The caucus did not make any public statement about why the two incumbents were not considered qualified for their endorsement.

Other revisions in the caucus procedures include inviting the school board president or a board member not up for reelection to speak to the caucus about board issues and business.

Comr. Gilbert Monoson joins WHIP

Wheeling corruption hit; planner calls for reform

Wheeling Plan Comr. Gilbert Monoson Wednesday night joined the Wheeling Improvement Party (WHIP).

In a blistering attack on corruption in village government, Monoson told WHIP members he decided to join the party because he feels WHIP is "the only vehicle for reform in the village."

He said nepotism, conflict-of-interest, extortion, bribery and special interest groups dominate Wheeling government, and pledged that as a member of WHIP he will work to eliminate the abuses.

"IT IS MY SINCERE desire that you will let me work with you and for you to secure the reform that this great village pleads for and deserves," Monoson told the audience.

The WHIP meeting was the first of several in preparation for the April 1975 municipal election. About 40 WHIP supporters were in attendance.

WHIP, which has been a political party for several years, ran a full slate of candidates in the 1973 municipal election, but captured only one seat on the village board.

Monoson refused to say whether he will run for village trustee on the WHIP ticket in the next election.

"I just joined the party and I think it would be premature to make a statement on that at this time," he told The Herald.

Monoson was a member of Wheeling's Citizen Action Program (CAP), a would-be political party, but resigned from CAP last May, saying that CAP had restricted his freedom to speak openly on village issues.

HE ALSO SAID he left the group because of its failure to take stands on important village issues because of a reluctance to "embarrass village hall or step on toes of certain individuals."

He was particularly critical of CAP for not taking stands following the indictment of six former and present Wheeling and Cook County officials in Wheeling's zoning-extortion scandal.

The indictments followed a year-long probe into shakedowns of Wheeling developers. Four of the six have pleaded guilty and two are serving time in federal prison.

CAP members include Village Trustee William Hein, Plan Comr. Jack Metzger, Park Comrs. Hugh Wilson and Frank Schnaltnann, and Police and Fire Comr. Michael Moran.

Since its founding, CAP has been linked with political kingpin James Styros, one of the two now in federal prison. "If you have any intelligence or integrity at all, it doesn't take much to determine who are the good guys and who are the bad guys," Monoson said.

Lions Week Oct. 6-12

The Buffalo Grove Village Board has voted to proclaim the week of Oct. 6-12 as Lions Week in the village. Gary Armstrong, village president, urged all citizens to support the organization's special candy day for the blind Oct. 11.

Fire officials to conduct four fire-vote meetings

no way they (Buffalo Grove) could compete with us as far as response time," Berg said.

"We're giving adequate service for less money," he said calling the shift of districts a "duplication of services that is not needed."

The 31-man volunteer Long Grove department serves approximately 20-square miles in unincorporated Lake County. Berg said the area in Buffalo Grove represents about one-half the district's tax base.

PETITIONS HAVE BEEN circulated in the Lake County area for the last few weeks as a first step in setting up the election. One per cent of the registered voters there must sign the petitions before a referendum date can be set in Circuit Court.

Winter said 36 of the approximately 50 necessary signatures have been obtained.

4 persons injured in auto crash

Four persons, including three members of a Buffalo Grove family, were admitted to Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights, after a two-car accident Wednesday night on Dundee Road at Cambridge Drive in Buffalo Grove.

Admitted were Sharon Trickett, 31, of 1095 Cambridge Dr.; with head injuries; and her two children, Andrew, 2, and Geoffrey A., 4, both with possible concussions; and Elizabeth A. Ghan, 36, of Deerfield, with head injuries. Treated and released was David E. Trickett, 36, driver of one car.

Buffalo Grove police charged Miss Ghan with improper lane usage in the 6:40 p.m. accident. She will appear Oct. 15 in Arlington Heights branch of Circuit Court.

Furnace woes must be solved by Monday

by JERRY THOMAS

Centex Homes Corp. officials have until noon Monday to come up with a solution to Elk Grove Village furnace problems.

The deadline was agreed on late Tuesday night by village officials and Centex representatives after the village rejected the builder's offer of $6 do-it-yourself repair kits as a solution to widespread furnace defects.

WILLIAM LIEBOW, Centex vice president, acknowledged the firm has a moral responsibility, but argued its legal responsibility in the issue. Liebow said the firm will offer homeowners a $1.50 furnace door air vent and a $4.50 chimney stack vent cap that he said "a homeowner could install himself with a screwdriver."

THE FURNACE REPAIR kit is not available as yet.

Village Pres. Charles Zetek rejected the do-it-yourself repair kit and is demanding instead complete furnace replacement and other corrective code compliance work where needed. He told Liebow the firm must offer a better solution than the parts it offered or it would never build in Elk Grove Village again.

Zetek insisted that if the solution called for complete furnace replacement and reworking of heating systems "that's what Centex will do." When Liebow said he did not have the authority to commit Centex to furnace replacement or anything other than the cap and grill offer, the noon Monday deadline was set.

Building Comr. Thomas Rottenbacher disputes the builder's claim that the parts will end code violations at an estimated 1,700 homes where furnace failures are suspected.

HE SAID THE building department, after exhaustive research, compiled a list of six different code violations in at least 28 separate models of Centex-built houses where furnace failures have occurred.

"Perhaps installing an Underwriters Laboratory-listed vent cap will bring some homes up to code, but in most cases it will be a worthless effort," he said. "Some models have an older model vent cap that was not UL approved and this is the only violation. However, others have too-short chimney stacks and several other violations that must be changed before a new furnace is installed," he added.

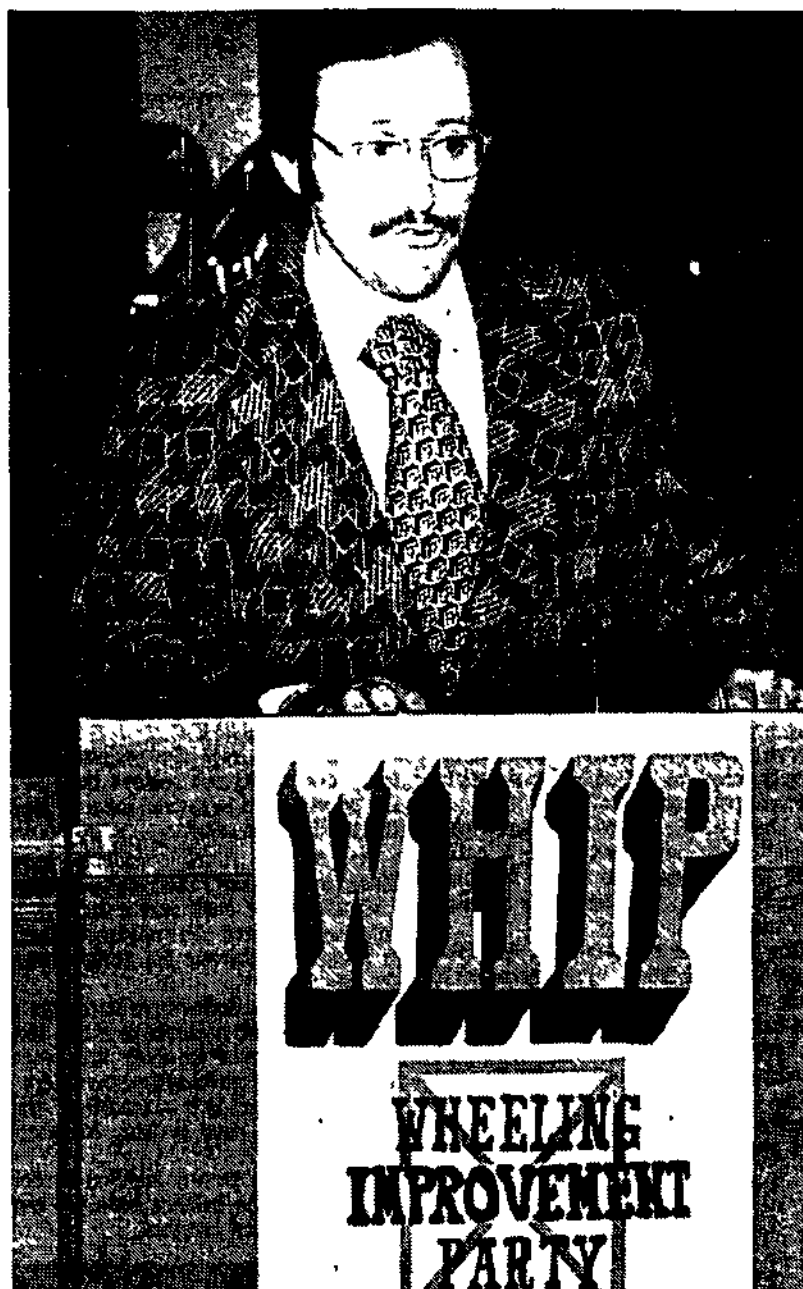

"There are so many different variables involved in each model home that heating contractors should make separate inspections before installation and must submit a drawing to show what work will be done before obtaining furnace replacement permits," Rottenbacher said.

The commissioner also challenged Liebow's contention that the firm will provide homeowners with a replacement 12-by-12-inch air grill that will supply the furnace with adequate combustion air.

"UNLESS CENTEX has found a supplier that we couldn't find, or has designed a special grill with just a screen opening, a larger grill is the only answer," Rottenbacher said.

"This will involve cutting a larger opening in a wall or furnace room door and hardly should be considered a job a homeowner can accomplish with a screwdriver," he said.

The building department is making lists of suggested corrections to heating systems, to bring them into code compliance, available to heating contractors.

GILBERT MONOSON joined the Wheeling Improvement Party Wednesday night with a blistering attack on corruption in village government. He said WHIP is "the only vehicle for reform."

Arlington woman reports car stolen

An Arlington Heights woman reported her car stolen Monday after she came out of MacArthur Park Pub, Wheeling, and saw a man driving the car away.

Karen Melcher, 2626 N. Dryden Ave., told police she remembered she might have left her keys in the car about 10 minutes after she arrived at the pub, 530 W. Dundee Rd. She went out to the parking lot to check and saw a person she recognized driving off in her car, police said Wednesday.

The woman told police she knew the person as "Dave" but did not know his last name or address, police said. The auto theft is under investigation and Miss Melcher will sign a complaint if an arrest is made, police said.

Soo Line sued for $1 million in fatal crash

The Soo Line R.R. Co. has been sued for $1 million in connection with a fatal accident June 19, 1973 near Morrison Avenue in Wheeling Township. The suit was filed Tuesday in Circuit Court.

Killed in the accident was Margaret Rogers, 62, a widow and former missionary to Chad, Africa. She was killed when a freight train struck her car as the car was crossing the tracks at a private driveway crossing.

The train's engineer, Robert Acord, of Fond du Lac, Wis., said the car paused on the tracks for unknown reasons and he was unable to stop the train in time. Mrs. Rogers apparently was returning home after a visit with her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. David Wunsch, 150 Morrison Ave., sheriff's police said.

Mrs. Rogers was a linguist and, according to the suit, was translating the Bible from English into Mbat, a language of Chad, at the time she was killed. She had been a missionary in the country for 35 years.

Vandals spray liquid cement on automobile

A Prospect Heights man reported Tuesday that his car was vandalized while he was shopping at the National Food Store, 901 W. Dundee Road, in Wheeling.

Robert Charles, 1019 Drake Terr., Prospect Heights, found the passenger's side of his car splattered with liquid cement, Wheeling police said Wednesday. Charles told police he was in the store for about 10 minutes.

18% more than estimate

New police building cost near $1.1 million

by STEVE BROWN

Rising construction costs apparently will push the cost of the proposed Des Plaines police building to nearly $1.1 million.

While the price tag was not a complete surprise, since city officials received updated architects' estimates last month, it is more than 18 per cent above the estimated cost announced 18 months ago.

Mayor Herbert Behrel said the cost of the facility, which will be about

$1,064,083, will fit into the city's overall plans for a new civic center complex.

THE POLICE BUILDING will be built adjacent to the city hall building, under construction near the corner of Grace and Miner streets.

Construction on the police building should begin shortly after completion of the city hall, slated for late March, 1975.

Last summer the city council approved the $1.6 million construction cost for the six-story city hall building. Behrel estimated the price of a proposed parking garage to be built behind the police building and city hall at about $500,000.

"We intend to sell about $1.5 or $1.6 million in bonds to pay for both the police building and the garage at the same time," Behrel said. Under the city's home rule authority it can sell bonds totaling up to five per cent of its assessed valuation for capital improvements, without seeking voter approval for the projects through a referendum.

UNDER THIS FORMULA, the city could sell up to $9 million in general obligation bonds, Behrel said. A recent opinion from the city's bond consultant indicated the city may have unlimited bonding power.

The city council's building grounds and parking lots committee has set a meeting for tonight to review the bids and prepare a recommendation on the project.

Thirty six contractors submitted bids to the city for the various phases of the projects.

The apparent low bidders on the police building were for the general contract: A. W. Heinson Co., Mundelein, $698,700; electrical contract: Pinner Electrical Co., Brookfield, $178,633; heating, ventilation and air conditioning contract: Kopp Sheet Metal Inc., Glenview, $119,400, and the plumbing contract: J. M. Krejci Co. Inc., Skokie, $91,351.

BIDS FOR THE project ranged between $698,700 and $856,481 for the general contractor phase of the work; $178,633 and $267,900 for the electrical work; $119,400 and $151,000 for the heating and air-conditioning and $91,351 and $128,502 for the plumbing.

After the building, grounds and parking lots committee prepares a recommendation on the project, a special meeting may be called before the council's next regular session to accept the bids.

Behrel won't comment

Officials awaiting meeting before deciding on buses

Des Plaines officials are holding off a decision on the future operation of buses in the city until after the North Suburban Mass Transit District (NORTAN) acts on a mass transportation proposal from the Chicago Transit Authority.

Mayor Herbert H. Behrel declined comment Wednesday on the details of a meeting he had Tuesday afternoon with several CTA officials.

Behrel had asked the CTA to prepare a study on the feasibility of extending CTA service to Des Plaines.

"It would be premature for me to comment at this time," Behrel said. The city council plans to discuss the CTA proposal and another from NORTAN regarding future bus operation at the council's Oct. 7 meeting.

ACTION ON the future operation of the buses is considered imminent because NORTAN is in the final phases of negotiations with the United Motor Coach Co. for purchase of the UMC operation.

The city has been told it will cost about $65,000 per year to continue operation of about 11 bus routes that now run through the city. The funds would be paid to NORTAN, which will take over operation of the company later this year and would be used to offset operating deficits.

Joseph DiJohn, NORTAN's executive director, said the CTA has submitted a proposal to the district to either provide a resident manager for the district's bus operation or take over the bus operation completely.

"We would then pay the CTA for operating the bus service in the area," DiJohn said. He added that a recommendation is being prepared by the district bus operation's committee for consideration by the NORTAN board of trustees next week.

IN ADDITION TO the CTA proposal, NORTAN also is considering plans submitted by two other "national transportation management firms and a local firm," DiJohn said.

He declined to elaborate on the full details of any of the proposal or the identity of the firm.

It is not known what effect the CTA submitted to NORTAN will have on the proposal made by the CTA to Des Plaines officials.

NORTAN officials anticipate taking over the operation of UMC later this year. The district will purchase 80 new buses and other equipment in addition to the company's physical facilities with funds received from a $6.6 million federal grant.

AN IRONIC MOMENT for orderly and conscientious objector Dave Zabler as he wheels a Vietnam War veteran through a hallway at Northwest Community Hospital. Zabler is content with his decision not to leave the country or be inducted into active service. "They made their decision and I made mine," he said simply.

'Doing their duty'

by MARILYN McDONALD

They didn't want to go to war. Instead, they chose 24 months of alternate service at Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights.

The 12 men are conscientious objectors who sought and received a waiver of military duty and now work as janitors and orderlies, supervisors and specialists. Theirs is the same service that will face draft-dodgers and deserters under President Ford's conditional amnesty plan.

Their months of mandatory duty have brought mixed reactions. They say their lives have been disrupted but not as dramatically as if they had been in the military. Some believe their careers have been stopped and they are already behind those who didn't have to serve at all. Others want to continue their hospital work after their obligations are completed.

Kent Prodie, 22, Woodstock, is now a sanitation specialist at the hospital, but originally applied for a job in a Head Start day-care center in Peoria. He lost the job when red tape tied up his application.

BRODIE HAS ONE month of service to go, but doesn't feel bitter about his two years because it was his choice. He said he had been in college with no particular direction when the draft seemed imminent. He decided to apply for his conscientious objector classification because he did not want to be in the military but "I felt I owed my country two years for the privilege of living here."

Scott Kimbell, 24, Rock Island, says he "scrambled" for his conscientious objector's status when his induction letter arrived the day after college graduation. Now left with "106 days, I counted on the calendar" as a storeroom assistant, Kimbell hopes to pursue his original intention of going to law school.

Mark Gonzalez, 22, Chicago, sought his military exemption for religious reasons (he is a member of the Jehovah's Witnesses). He left a job at Illinois Bell that he had held for 2½ years and now has until Nov. 10 to serve as a maintenance man at the hospital. He says that he can't understand how his job at the hospital is helping the country. "I'm making the same amount of money here that I was making there. If they didn't have me for the job, they'd get someone else," he said, shrugging his shoulders.

School custodians, maintenance men back union 35-1

Custodians and maintenance men in Des Plaines Dist. 62 voted overwhelmingly Wednesday to be represented by an Illinois Educational Assn.-affiliated union in current 1974-75 contract talks.

The vote was 35 to 1, with all but two of the district's 39 maintenance employees taking part in the election. One ballot was voided.

The Dist. 62 Board of Education called for the representation election in July after the Custodians Maintenance Assn. became affiliated with the IEA, which represents Dist. 62 teachers.

In a statement the board at the time said, "The CMA has changed in nature a bit. We want to make sure they are in fact speaking for the majority of employees."

CMA PRES. Ed Cristoni Wednesday said he expects negotiations to begin in a week, as promised by the school board. Cristoni said the union received near-unanimous support during the summer because of the "atmosphere created by the board."

The union will be asking for a 15 per cent pay raise for all maintenance men and custodians. It will also request a three-step salary schedule that equalizes pay levels for all maintenance men and custodians after two years.

Salary talks broke off after one session between board and union negotiators last spring. Board negotiators refused a 15 per cent raise requested by the union.

James Walsh, chairman of the union negotiators, added, "We have men starting at $7,500 and night men making $9,600, but we're all doing the same work."

WALSH SAID union members united when the district hired two custodians this summer at starting salaries of $7,500 to $7,700. "Our contract with the board said the starting salary should be $7,900."

The union affiliated with the IEA "because we felt we needed help," Walsh said. "They offer an attorney, communications and brains. They know the procedures of negotiating, which we don't. They really gelled us together."

School Board Pres. James Kremers said that, "Assuming legal aspects have been compiled within the election, we will be very happy to abide by the previous arrangement and meet with the CMA for contract negotiations."

Cost to be $2.6 million

Work on new post office scheduled for February

U.S. Postal Service officials said Wednesday that construction of the proposed $2.6 million Des Plaines Post Office should begin in February.

The spokesman said final design plans for the facility, to be at Oakton Street and Executive Way, will be completed by Dec. 1. He noted the architectural firm of Yash Nakagawa and Associates of Evanston is preparing plans.

Postal service officials gave final approval for construction last January after the project had been stalled since 1969.

Plans call for the post office to cover about 57,000 square feet.

The building will accommodate Des Plaines area mail delivery and handling procedures. The post office now operates out of three offices in the Des Plaines and Rosemont area.

Residents who live around the site of the proposed facility raised objections to the plans in 1969 when they were announced.

Postal officials said they plan to landscape the new facility so that it will not be a nuisance to nearby residents.

Plans for the office were delayed for several years because of a general cut-back in federal funding for postal facilities and the changeover of the postal service from a government department to a quasi-public corporation, the spokesman said.

He said approval of the Des Plaines Post Office was among a new nationwide program to improve and centralize postal facilities.

10 teachers join Maine West High School staff for 1974-75

Ten teachers joined the staff at Maine West High School for the 1974-75 school year.

Joining the home economics department are Barbara Brouse and Claire Watson. Mrs. Brouse taught for two years in Xenia, Ohio, before coming to Maine West. She will also teach consumer education at Maine South High School. Miss Watson, a 1974 graduate of Western Illinois University, will teach clothing and foods.

New teachers in the science department include Mary Clark, George Twardy and Lawrence Rychloski. Miss Clark, a graduate of Kirkland College and Northwestern University, will be teaching physical science. Twardy, a biology teacher taught for four years at Maine South. Rychloski is a physics teacher and began his teaching career at Maine East High School.

MICHELE DICARLO is the new teacher in the art and humanities department. A graduate of Barat College, Lake Forest, Miss DiCarlo studied for five months in Rome. The new learning disabilities teacher is Caroline Ewart, who came to Maine West after teaching two years at Zion Benton High School. She has done graduate work in special education at the National College of Education, Evanston.

New to the driver and safety education department is Jerry Muccianli, who taught at Maine South for four years. A former football and wrestling coach, he will continue as wrestling coach at Maine South this year.

Carol Fritts, a former speech therapist, joins the counseling staff at Maine West. She formerly taught in school systems in Oklahoma. Joining the business education department is Clara Symonds, a graduate of Illinois State University. She will teach data processing.

BIDS ON CONSTRUCTION of the city's police station, at left in artist's rendering, were opened Wednesday, revealing an 18 per cent hike in the original estimate. The cost apparently will not be prohibitive. Mayor Herbert Behrel said $1.08 million cost will fit into the overall civic center plans.

$4.5 million budget approved in River Trails

The River Trails Dist. 26 Board of Education has approved a 1974-75 budget totaling $4.5 million.

The budget, which represents a 20 per cent increase over the 1973-74 spending level, was criticized Tuesday night by Board Member Ted Wattenberg, who called for a "little belt-tightening."

"This budget just does not suit my standards," he said. "We aren't going to fight inflation this way."

Educational spending in the budget totaled $3,297,475, a 20 per cent increase over last year.

Supt. John Fridlund said the budget includes an increase of almost $26,000 for teacher salaries, additional staff and school supplies. He also noted that the cost of many materials increased because of inflation.

A total of $414,200 was budgeted in the operations, building and maintenance fund, a 13.5 per cent increase over last year. The building fund covers the cost of improving and repairing school buildings as well as salaries of maintenance and custodian personnel.

Fridlund termed the budget "really a maintenance of things." Noting the increasing costs, Board Treasurer William Haase said the tax rate is expected to drop 5 cents from last year's levy of $2.67 per $100 assessed value under this budget.

Dist. 59 wrapup

No towel service for junior highs

Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 board member Avis Wold has apparently lost in her attempt to provide towel service at the district's five junior high schools.

The board Monday night voted down a motion to provide towel service at a cost of $20,000 to $24,000 a year. The vote was 4 to 2, with Mrs. Wold and board member Judith Zanca dissenting.

District-paid towel service was discontinued several years ago to save money and students must now provide their own towels if they want to shower after gym class. Some schools provide an optional towel service for a fee, a plan which has met with little success, according to physical education teachers at the schools.

The board also voted down another motion by Mrs. Wold which would have provided the service at a fee of about $6 a year. The district is prohibited by law from making the fee mandatory and must give the student the option of bringing a towel from home.

Friendship contract OK'd

The board approved a contract with Meyer-Ross Construction Co., Lake Zurich to complete dozens of minor items at the district's newest school, Friendship Junior High School, 530 Elizabeth Ln., Des Plaines.

The original building contractor, A. E. Berg Co., has failed to complete the items although the school has been finished for nearly a year.

The board approved bids for stage partitions at Brentwood School, Des Plaines; Mark Hopkins School, Elk Grove Village, and Forest View School, Mount Prospect, totaling $10,089.

Also approved was a $3,060 bid for gym divider curtains at Holmes Junior High School, Mount Prospect, and Lively Junior High School, Elk Grove Village.

The board approved a request to bid on library shelving estimated to cost $3,200 for Dempster Junior High School, Mount Prospect.

A bid of $7,173 for installation of a background noise system at Friendship Junior High was tabled until the next board meeting, Oct. 7.

The board has authorized testing of the noise system as a solution to an unusual problem in the soundproof building. Regular classroom noise is louder at Friendship because of its design. Background noise may be piped into the building to make other noises less obvious.

Meyer-Ross, which is working on additions to two district junior high schools, is expected to prepare a cost estimate for the work.

The district is holding back $40,000 from Berg until the work is completed; the Meyer-Ross work will be paid for from those funds, said Arthur Perry, assistant superintendent for administrative services.

Norwegian exchange student declares:

'Kids are the same around the world'

by LINDA PUNCH
For Tor Petter Johnson, there is "no real difference" between American students and his classmates in Norway.

Johnson, a foreign-exchange student attending Maine West High School, said he's found "the same kind of kids everywhere."

"I often meet people who remind me of someone back home — it's remarkable," he said.

A native of Drammen, Norway, Johnson arrived in Des Plaines in early August. He is staying with the Clayton MacDonald family, 311 Pinehurst.

JOHNSON'S FATHER, Gunnar, is a political editor of a newspaper and was elected last year to the Norwegian parliament. His family also includes his mother, Liv, a sister, Sissel, 22, a former foreign-exchange student; and a brother, Gunnar, 9.

The tall, blond-haired youth said American life is not much different than Norwegian life except that it's a "bit faster."

"It seems like everybody here is always going somewhere," he said.

Johnson also finds that school takes up a greater portion of time than in his home country, noting that he often doesn't get home from school here until early evening because of soccer practice. In Norway, he said, sports activities are organized by private clubs rather than through schools.

"At home, we don't have many subjects outside the regular curriculum. Here, it's completely different — students lead a more organized life," he said.

THE SCHOOL SYSTEM also is different in Norway, where students receive a basic nine-year education before choosing to work, attend trade school or go to gymnasium (high school), said the 18-year-old exchange student. He also notes that American teachers have a closer relationship with students.

"Teachers seem to be more out of date back home — there are more older people. You hardly find a teacher under 40 in the schools," he said. "When they get older, teachers don't communicate in the same ways. A lot of teachers just love their subject and that's all."

Johnson said the social customs of American youths are slightly different from those in Norway.

"It seems like American girls date a lot of boys, but when Norwegian girls go out, they usually stick with one guy," he said. "But then, I haven't had a big experience here yet."

Parks approve bus policy manual

The Des Plaines Park District Board of Commissioners this week approved a bus policy manual, which stipulates guidelines for operating the park district's recently acquired bus.

The park board approved the manual on a 30-day basis to allow park district officials a trial period to determine how the operation works. After the 30 days, changes in the policy may be made if they are recommended by park district officials.

The manual includes information on fees, priority usage, rules to passengers, driver qualifications and responsibilities and driver duties while waiting.

First priority use for the bus will be for programs or groups sponsored or conducted by the park district. Second priority will go to programs and groups co-sponsored by the park district while nonprofit community service groups will receive last priority.

Groups which are co-sponsored by the park district will be charged a rental fee which will include the driver's salary of $4 per hour driving time and $2.50 per hour waiting time, 25 cents per mile, meals and lodging where necessary, all tolls and parking fees and a 5 per cent additional charge to the total.

Nonprofit groups will be assessed a fee equal to all the above stipulations with the exception of the 5 per cent extra charge. Instead a 10 per cent additional charge will be levied.

No beverages will be allowed on the bus. Bus drivers will be provided by the park district.

A Congressional commission examining a charge that U. S. Rep. Samuel H. Young, R-10th, has misused his franking privileges is expected to take some action next week.

A spokesman for the Commission on Congressional Mailings Standards said the panel will meet next week to review the complaint against Young filed July 8 by his Congressional opponent Abner J. Mikva.

The complaint has been revised several times, according to Mikva's staff, because a new complaint reporting procedure was adopted and because Young sent out additional franked material after the first complaint was filed.

THE FRANKING PRIVILEGE, which is granted to all members of Congress, allows free mailing of material related to official business.

Young's staff members have labeled Mikva's complaint ridiculous and said they received approval for all franked material mailed to district residents. Young has said he believes the complaint will be dismissed.

Mikva has asked that Young be stopped from using his franking privilege until after the complaint has been acted on. Young recently said he is preparing another newsletter which will be sent to all residents in the district.

Federal law allows Congressmen to use their franking privilege up to 28 days before the election, Young said.

Mikva has charged Young has used more than $200,000 in taxpayers' funds to pay for mailings to residents. He claims Young has sent more district-wide mailings than any other candidate in Congress.

YOUNG RECENTLY SAID the purpose of the frank is to help Congressmen keep their constituents informed about legislative matters.

Young contends that Mikva's franking abuse complaint has been his main campaign issue.

"You would think that after more than 500 votes in 1973 and nearly that many this year, he would have something else to take issue with but I haven't heard any complaints," Young said, adding other Congressmen and senators use their franking privilege.

"I guess it's only bad when I use it," he said.

According to federal law, Young could be liable to repay all mailing costs if the commission finds he used the franking privilege improperly.

The commission could make a final decision regarding the complaint next week or order a full hearing, according to a staff member for the commission.

Prospect residents told: boil water

by LYNN ASINOF

Residents in the northeast section of Mount Prospect have been advised to boil all drinking water until 1 p.m. Friday because of possible contamination resulting from a severe drop in water pressure Wednesday morning.

The area affected is served by Citizens Utilities Co. The Mount Prospect Health Dept. issued the advisory Wednesday afternoon after the village received a flood of calls from residents who said they were without water.

William Kuzia, spokesman for Citizens Utilities, said the problem was caused by a failure in the communication system. The system should automatically have switched on booster pumps when the water pressure began to drop. He said the booster pumps did not kick on, leaving the area with minimal water pressure.

HEALTH DEPARTMENT officials said bacteria can enter the water system when water pressure drops to a minimal level. They said tests were taken to determine if there was any contamination, but said results will not be available for 24 to 48 hours.

On the advice of the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency, the health department is recommending that residents either drink bottled water or boil all drinking water for at least 10 minutes. These precautionary measures are not necessary for water that will be used for other purposes.

The health department issued its advisory at about 1 p.m., asking residents to boil all drinking water for the next 48 hours.

David Creamer, Mount Prospect director of public works, said he received the first complaint about lack of water at 9:40 a.m. He said at least 38 residents called shortly thereafter, with one woman reporting her home without water until about 2:30 p.m.

KUZIA, HOWEVER, SAID the problem lasted only 1 hour and 15 minutes before water pressure was fully restored.

Creamer said when he tried to reach Citizens Utilities about the problem, all lines were busy and the phone company reported the line was out of service.

After contacting the environmental protection agency, the health department began notifying schools about the possible water contamination. Radio stations were contacted to notify residents in the area not to drink their tap water without boiling it.

Schools served by Citizens Utilities in the area ordered signs posted at the drinking fountains and notification was sent home with the students about the proper procedure to follow in boiling drinking water.

MOST OF THE SCHOOLS have distilled water on hand for such emergencies. At Indian Grove School, however, bottled water was purchased for students who needed it for medication.

The radio announcements brought a flood of calls into the village hall from worried residents. A health department representative said residents not affected by the water pressure drop also called because the radio stations did not specify what area of Mount Prospect was affected.

The area of unincorporated Wheeling Township also serviced by Citizens Utilities reportedly was not affected by the water pressure drop. A water main break at Leahy Circle and Dempster Street affected water service in that area Tuesday night. Apparently no boiling advisory was issued as a result of that break.

Trinity Lutheran to get new organ

Trinity Lutheran Church of Des Plaines has contracted for installation of a pipe organ to be installed by the time of the church's 50th anniversary jubilee in 1976. The organ will be designed and constructed by the Schantz Organ Co. of Orrville, Ohio, a firm that's been in pipe organ construction since 1873.

Trinity Church also is going to equal the amount spent on the new pipe organ with a like sum to be given to St. Matthew Home for the Aged in Park Ridge for its expansion program.

A major fund appeal for these two projects was conducted recently at Trinity Church by the Ketchum Fund Raising Council with almost $230,000 being received in gifts and pledges.

The 50th anniversary committee's next meeting will be at 8 p.m. today at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Anderson, 924 Margaret St. Plans are being made for a variety of programs and festivities throughout 1976.

Speech course planned

The Park Ridge Toastmasters will sponsor a speech course open to persons who desire to improve their communication and leadership skills.

The free course will be held Thursday, Oct. 10, from 8-10 p.m. at the First Methodist Church, 418 Touhy Ave., Park Ridge. Specialists in various phases of public speaking will present the course. Interested persons may enroll by calling 631-4822 or 636-2954 for reservations.

Deadline set for noon Monday

by JERRY THOMAS

Centex Homes Corp. officials have until noon Monday to come up with a solution to Elk Grove Village furnace problems.

The deadline was agreed on late Tuesday night by village officials and Centex representatives after the village rejected the builder's offer of $6 do-it-yourself repair kits as a solution to widespread furnace defects.

WILLIAM LIEBOW, Centex vice president, acknowledged the firm has a moral responsibility, but argued its legal responsibility in the issue. Liebow said the firm will offer homeowners a $1.50 furnace door air vent and a $4.50 chimney stack vent cap that he said "a homeowner could install himself with a screwdriver."

THE FURNACE REPAIR kit is not available as yet.

Village Pres. Charles Zettek rejected the do-it-yourself repair kit and is demanding instead complete furnace replacement and other corrective code compliance work where needed. He told Liebow the firm must offer a better solution than the parts it offered or it would never build in Elk Grove Village again.

Zettek insisted that if the solution called for complete furnace replacement and reworking of heating systems "that's what Centex will do." When Liebow said he did not have the authority to commit Centex to furnace replacement or anything other than the cap and grill offer, the noon Monday deadline was set.

Building Comr. Thomas Rettenbacher disputes the builder's claim that the parts will end code violations at an estimated 1,700 homes where furnace failures are suspected.

A CHIMNEY STACK vent cap like this one and a replacement air intake grill with larger holes was offered by Centex Homes Corp. as the $6 solution to residents' furnace problems.

The village has rejected the offer and is demanding furnace replacement and new venting systems in as many of the 1,700 homes suspected of extensive furnace defects.

Controversy over union

Village asks U.S. to drop suit brought by firemen

Elk Grove Village officials who are being sued by a firemen's union have asked the Federal District Court to dismiss the suit.

The suit was filed in August by Local 2340, International Assn. of Firefighters, AFL-CIO in behalf of Elk Grove Village Fire Dept. lieutenants who allegedly were forced to resign from the union or face demotion.

Ed Hofert, village attorney, said he is seeking the dismissal because the suit was filed by a union rather than by the individual firemen.

Hofert and Gilbert Cornfield, the attorney representing the firemen's union, these are filed, a trial date will be set unless U. S. District Court Judge Bernard Decker decides to dismiss the case. are preparing briefs in the case. After

AN IRONIC MOMENT for orderly and conscientious objector Dave Zabler as he wheels a Vietnam War veteran through a hallway at Northwest

Community Hospital. Zabler is content with his decision not to leave the country. "They made their decision and I made mine," he said simply.

'Doing their duty'

Months of mandatory service get mixed reactions from 12 conscientious objectors in the suburbs

by MARILYN McDONALD

They didn't want to go to war. Instead, they chose 24 months of alternate service at Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights.

The 12 men are conscientious objectors who sought and received a waiver of military duty and now work as janitors and orderlies, supervisors and specialists. Theirs is the same service that will face draft-dodgers and deserters under President Ford's conditional amnesty plan.

Their months of mandatory duty have brought mixed reactions. They say their lives have been disrupted but not as dramatically as if they had been in the military. Some believe their careers have been stopped and they are already behind those who didn't have to serve at all. Others want to continue their hospital work after their obligations are completed.

Kent Prodie, 22, Woodstock, is now a sanitation specialist at the hospital, but originally applied for a job in a Head Start day-care center in Peoria. He lost the job when red tape tied up his application.

BRODIE HAS ONE month of service to go, but doesn't feel bitter about his two years because it was his choice. He said he had been in college with no particular direction when the draft seemed imminent. He decided to apply for his conscientious objector classification because he did not want to be in the military but "I felt I owed my country two years for the privilege of living here."

Scott Kimbell, 24, Rock Island, says he "scrambled" for his conscientious objector's status when his induction letter arrived the day after college graduation. Now left with "106 days, I counted on the calendar" as a storeroom assistant, Kimbell hopes to pursue his original intention of going to law school.

Mark Gonzalez, 22, Chicago, sought his military exemption for religious reasons (he is a member of the Jehovah's Witnesses). He left a job at Illinois Bell that he had held for 2½ years and now has until Nov. 10 to serve as a maintenance man at the hospital. He says that he can't understand how his job at the hospital is helping the country. "I'm making the same amount of money here that I was making there. If they didn't have me for the job, they'd get someone else," he said, shrugging his shoulders.

Dist. 59 wrapupNo towel service for junior highs

Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 board member Avis Wold has apparently lost in her attempt to provide towel service at the district's five junior high schools.

The board Monday night voted down a motion to provide towel service at a cost of $20,000 to $24,000 a year. The vote was 4 to 2, with Mrs. Wold and board member Judith Zanca dissenting.

District-paid towel service was discontinued several years ago to save money and students must now provide their own towels if they want to shower after gym class. Some schools provide an optional towel service for a fee, a plan which has met with little success, according to physical education teachers at the schools.

The board also voted down another motion by Mrs. Wold which would have provided the service at a fee of about $6 a year. The district is prohibited by law from making the fee mandatory and must give the student the option of bringing a towel from home.

Friendship contract OK'd

The board approved a contract with Meyer-Ross Construction Co., Lake Zurich to complete dozens of minor items at the district's newest school, Friendship Junior High School, 550 Elizabeth Ln., Des Plaines.

The original building contractor, A. E. Berg Co., has failed to complete the items although the school has been finished for nearly a year.

The board approved bids for stage partitions at Brentwood School, Des Plaines; Mark Hopkins School, Elk Grove Village, and Forest View School, Mount Prospect, totaling $10,960.

Also approved was a $3,000 bid for gym divider curtains at Holmes Junior High School, Mount Prospect, and Lively Junior High School, Elk Grove Village.

The board approved a request to bid on library shelving estimated to cost $3,200 for Dempster Junior High School, Mount Prospect.

A bid of $7,173 for installation of a background noise system at Friendship Junior High was tabled until the next board meeting, Oct. 7.

The board has authorized testing of the noise system as a solution to an unusual problem in the soundproof building. Regular classroom noise is louder at Friendship because of its design. Background noise may be piped into the building to make other noises less obvious.

Meyer-Ross, which is working on additions to two district junior high schools, is expected to prepare a cost estimate for the work.

The district is holding back $40,000 from Berg until the work is completed; the Meyer-Ross work will be paid for from those funds, said Arthur Perry, assistant superintendent for administrative services.

West boundary changed

Dist. 59 joined neighboring districts Monday by agreeing to change part of its western boundary from old Ill. Rte. 53, (Hohling Rd.) to Interstate 90.

The boundary change affects no children. No one lives in the area between the two roads, which will go from Dist. 59 to Schaumburg Township Dist. 54.

Sears lifts ban, but hikes cost

Sales Roebuck and Co., has lifted a furnace sales embargo for Elk Grove Village residents but is asking an extra $180 code compliance installation charge in addition to the normal furnace and installation costs. The total sales package could cost between $630 to $780 depending on the house model.

William Lea, installation manager for Sears, said he regretted the fact that some Elk Grove Village buyers were turned away by Sears salesmen.

"We certainly wanted to sell them furnaces, but didn't know what to charge for installations," he added.

"While our executives and village officials met to determine what we had to do to obtain permits necessary to install new units, some salesmen apparently discouraged purchases," said Lea.

Lea said Sears will now sell a complete new venting package with its furnaces, so that Sears can still offer a guarantee.

He added that this was the only solution in Elk Grove Village's case.

"THIS CORRECTIVE work includes replacing the chimney piping, the complete venting unit and putting in another air return in addition to the existing furnace door venting," said Lea.

Lea disputed Centex Homes Corp.'s claim that installation of a venting cap and replacing the present 12 inch by 12 inch grille opening with another same size grill would solve the furnace problem.

"What good will it do to put a new wind cap on a corroded venting system?" questioned Lea.

"Centex's solution won't solve the problem," he added.

"WE ARE DOING A complete job to protect the customer and will sell Elk Grove Village residents a complete new chimney package that we can guarantee," said Lea.

"This will in most Elk Grove Village homes entail extensive corrective work," said Lea.

Pistol team wins

The Elk Grove Village Police Dept. Pistol Team took second expert class trophy in the Elmwood Park police pistol competition invitational.

Elk Grove Village police who competed were Chief Harry Jenkins, Sgt. Jay Akely and Patrolmen Kenneth Krzywicki and William Cox. The team had an aggregate score of 1036 and scored 11 bulls' eyes.

The Elk Grove team placed ninth out of 70 teams entered by law enforcement agencies of local state and federal authorities. Sgt. Akely is rangemaster.

houses where furnace failures have occurred.

"Perhaps installing an Underwriters Laboratory-listed vent cap will bring some homes up to code, but in most cases it will be a worthless effort," he said. "Some models have an older model vent cap that was not UL approved and this is the only violation. However, others have too-short chimney stacks and several other violations that must be changed before a new furnace is installed," he added.

"There are so many different variables involved in each model home that heating contractors should make separate inspections before installation and must submit a drawing to show what work will be done before obtaining furnace roplacement permits," Rettenbacher said.

The commissioner also challenged Liebow's contention that the firm will provide homeowners with a replacement 12-by-12-inch air grill that will supply the furnace with adequate combustion air.

"UNLESS CENTEX has found a supplier that we couldn't find, or has designed a special grill with just a screen opening, a larger grill is the only answer," Rettenbacher said.

"This will involve cutting a larger opening in a wall or furnace room door and hardly should be considered a job a homeowner can accomplish with a screwdriver," he said.

The building department is making lists of suggested corrections to heating systems, to bring them into code compliance, available to heating contractors.

9 candidates seek 2 vacancies

Four more file for school board seats

Two former school board members, a former candidate and a Schaumburg housewife, became the last four candidates to apply for appointment to the Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 Board of Education.

Nine persons have applied for the two vacancies on the board. The board hopes to begin interviews next week and announce appointments Oct. 3.

Former board members Sherwood Saptz, Hanover Park, and Dianne Marks, Hoffman Estates, filed last-minute applications late Tuesday, the deadline for filing.

James Rogers, Schaumburg, an unsuccessful candidate for the Dist. 54 board in 1972, and JoAnn R. Wolf, Schaumburg, filed earlier in the day.

SPATZ WAS DEFEATED for reelection to the board last April. He was chairman of the education committee and the building and sites committee while in office from 1971-74. He could not be reached for comment Wednesday.

Miss Marks was an unsuccessful candidate for the High School Dist. 211 Board of Education in 1973. She applied for appointment to a vacancy on the Dist. 211 board last fall but was not chosen.

She was a Dist. 54 board member from 1970-73 and declined to comment on her reasons for seeking the new appointment, saying she would outline her reasons to board members when she interviews.

Rogers has been active in the Schaumburg Jaycees and was president of the organization last year. He has also served on the Jaycee drug-abuse study committee and was on the Dist. 54 policy committee two years ago.

ROGERS SAID HE will bring "new blood" to the board. Schools have a "tremendous influence on the total community through the children and the parents," he said, adding he has no conflict with the present board. "I think they're doing a good job."

Mrs. Wolf, a resident of Schaumburg for 11 months, picked that community because Dist. 54 had a good school curriculum and is a "very progressive school district."

She has two children attending Hoover Elementary School and is active in the Schaumburg Festival Theater and Schaumburg Friends of the Library.

Five other candidates have filed for the two positions on the board. They are Edward J. Bedard, Hoffman Estates, Dist. 54 school board member from 1966-70; Adam J. Jelen Jr., Hoffman Estates, a board member from 1971-74; Dr. Edgar Feldman, Schaumburg, a general surgeon; Mark Renfro, Hanover Park, an advocate of bus safety legislation; and Sherry Reynolds, Hoffman Estates, National Organization of Women Illinois state coordinator.

TWO CANDIDATES will be chosen to fill the vacancies created by Donnie Rudd and Bonnie Hannon, who resigned Sept. 7. Dist. 54 board members discussed the possibility of filling the vacancies by a special election, but the Illinois School Code requires that the positions be appointed.

If the board fails to fill the vacancies within 30 days of the resignation the county school superintendent can call for a special election.

Dist. 54 serves Hoffman Estates, Schaumburg and the western portion of Elk Grove Village.

Parents of fifth-grade students in Salt Creek, Byrd, and Dan Cook schools, interested in having their children join the beginners' band may meet at 7:30 p.m. Friday with John Hedberg, band director, in the Lively Junior High School cafeteria, 999 Leicester Rd., Elk Grove Village.

Development near Harper College

Officials ask 30% cut at Plum Grove Hills

Palatine officials have proposed reducing the size of the Plum Grove Hills development near Harper College by 30 percent. The proposal calls for 1,874 housing units, compared to the original plans for 2,800.

The new density was set by the Palatine Plan Commission Tuesday and will become part of an annexation agreement for the entire parcel if it is agreed to by L.F. Draper & Associates, Palatine, developers of the parcel, and the village board.

The major density reductions will be on the acres closest to existing single-family subdivisions and on parcels proposed for high density multi-family use. The maximum density for any acre on the parcel has been set at 15 units, a reduction of 5 units per acre.

THE NEW DENSITIES are designed to provide a transition between the developed subdivisions and proposed multi-family uses and also have less impact on village services and streets.

Draper's original proposal called for a mixture of 2,800 single-family homes, townhouses, condominium apartments and apartment units. A reduction of 400 dwelling units to 2,200 units had been agreed to by Draper, but the plan commissioners indicated they thought this was still too high a density.

Concern also was expressed by plan commissioners about the commercial development of 35 acres. Plan commissioners and Draper have been asked by the village board to draw up lists of what commercial use would be permitted on the land and what would be restricted.

Draper indicated he will be both the owner and developer of the commercial area and will be responsible for development of the entire parcel. This means the residential areas may be constructed by another firm, but Draper will be responsible for the esthetics, landscaping and possibly the architectural design of all 365 acres. The proposed timetable calls for the completion of the entire development in 10 years.

The commercial parcels, streets and green areas in the development will be discussed at the next plan commission hearing, Oct. 1.

THE LAND-USE PLANS for the 365-acre tract, which is between Hunting Ridge subdivision and Harper College, call for a 35-acre commercial development, 10-acre school site, 184-acre residential development, 95 acres of green area and 42 acres of streets and right-of-way.

Euclid Avenue and Quentin Road will provide the major access to the development with commercial use clustered at the intersection. Another five-acre commercial development is planned for the northeast corner of Roselle Road and Euclid.

The green area, which includes four lakes, has been offered to the Palatine Park District for development, but Fred Hall, director of the park district, has indicated he does not believe this would be sufficient to meet the recreational needs of the development and suggested that land other than that in a flood plain should be donated.

Several programs under way

Police department seeks to cut juvenile crimes

The Palatine Police Department has undertaken several programs aimed at stopping juvenile delinquency, which police view as the major community problem.

"When juveniles are responsible for 90 per cent of the criminal damage to property and vandalism, 70 per cent of all village burglaries, and the largest percentage of theft offenses and drug related problems, you know that your basic concern must be with them because they are causing most of the community problems," said Police Chief Jerry Bratcher.

Bratcher has started several programs to combat youth crime since he became chief in January. The department now has a youth services bureau with a youth officer coordinating the criminal prevention, apprehension and rehabilitation of Palatine juvenile delinquents. Two high school police counselors and a community relations officer work under the youth coordinator, William Cobb.

BRATCHER PLANS to incorporate a full-time social worker into the youth bureau next year who can work with juveniles after they have been arrested for a crime, to help them solve and cope with their internal problems.

Bratcher and his new youth officer are working with area service agencies to curb the juvenile delinquency that is "a definite problem in this community," Bratcher said.

Bratcher wants to see more of the juvenile delinquents in the community rehabilitated by people who work in area youth agencies. Bratcher cited his own department, The Bridge Youth Service, area schools and churches as being just a few of the agencies that could help juveniles to identify, cope with, and solve their problems.

"The police department's prime responsibility is law enforcement, not social work. But when it comes to juvenile cases, the police need to overlap a little. We just can't arrest a kid for a crime and prosecute him without finding out why he did it so that he won't do it again," Bratcher said.

THERE ARE juveniles who take someone's car and drive it only a few blocks "for kicks" and then leave it somewhere. If the police catch him, he can be charged for a felony offense. If a juvenile sets fire to a family cat just because he wants to see it burn, it's considered a misdemeanor, Bratcher said.

The future of the youth in Palatine and the amount of juvenile delinquency that the village continues to experience will partially depend upon the early instruction of children in crime prevention and control, Bratcher said.

"The village is growing, the kids are learning earlier about things. If we want to get at the root of the problem, we've got to talk to these kids when they are nine years old. Sixteen-year-olds are already set in their ways and you can only hope to help them with the problems they already have," Bratcher said.

"On the other hand, we are not going to coddle young hoodlums who become a

Glaucoma tests today at fire station

Free glaucoma testing will be available to Palatine residents today in a mobile unit stationed at the Slade Street Fire Station, 117 W. Slade St.

AN IRONIC MOMENT for orderly and conscientious objector Dave Zabler as he wheels a Vietnam War veteran through a hallway at Northwest

Community Hospital. Zabler is content with his decision not to leave the country. "They made their decision and I made mine," he said simply.

'Doing their duty'

by MARILYN McDONALD

They didn't want to go to war. Instead, they chose 24 months of alternate service at Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights.

The 12 men are conscientious objectors who sought and received a waiver of military duty and now work as janitors and orderlies, supervisors and specialists. Theirs is the same service that will face draft-dodgers and deserters under President Ford's conditional amnesty plan.

Their months of mandatory duty have brought mixed reactions. They say their lives have been disrupted but not as dramatically as if they had been in the military. Some believe their careers have been stopped and they are already behind those who didn't have to serve at all. Others want to continue their hospital work after their obligations are completed.

Kent Prodie, 22, Woodstock, is now a sanitation specialist at the hospital, but originally applied for a job in a Head Start day-care center in Peoria. He lost the job when red tape tied up his application.

BRODIE HAS ONE month of service to go, but doesn't feel bitter about his two years because it was his choice. He said he had been in college with no particular direction when the draft seemed imminent. He decided to apply for his conscientious objector classification because he did not want to be in the military but "I felt I owed my country two years for the privilege of living here."

Scott Kimbell, 24, Rock Island, says he "scrambled" for his conscientious objector's status when his induction letter arrived the day after college graduation. Now left with "106 days, I counted on the calendar" as a storeroom assistant, Kimbell hopes to pursue his original intention of going to law school.

Mark Gonzalez, 22, Chicago, sought his military exemption for religious reasons (he is a member of the Jehovah's Witnesses). He left a job at Illinois Bell that he had held for 2½ years and now has until Nov. 10 to serve as a maintenance man at the hospital. He says that he can't understand how his job at the hospital is helping the country. "I'm making the same amount of money here that I was making there. If they didn't have me for the job, they'd get someone else," he said, shrugging his shoulders.

$2,200 allocation granted to begin Outreach program

The Palatine Township Youth Committee has appropriated The Bridge Youth Service $2,200 to begin an Outreach program for youth in the township, scheduled to begin Oct. 15.

Bridge Director David Russell said the new program would take Bridge counselors to places where youths normally spend their time, "to talk with them about their feelings and problems in an environment that they feel comfortable in," he said.

The Bridge Youth Center, 434½ E. Northwest Hwy., is funded by Palatine Township through the township's youth committee.

The $2,200 appropriation will be available for the program until March 1, 1975, and will be used to pay part of the salary of two Bridge counselors who will institute the program in the community. Donald Johnston, a Bridge counselor, will coordinate the Outreach program.

The Bridge is presently accepting applications for the two part-time counseling jobs that will offer 15 hours of work each week and will pay $3 an hour.

BOTH COUNSELORS for the program will be trained in counseling, drug information, and basic information on other juvenile problems and crimes.

"Hopefully we will be able to reach a segment of the youth in this community who have problems but refuse to bring them into The Bridge so that we can help them," Russell said.

Russell said The Bridge conducted a similar Outreach program three years ago in Palatine. The program was not continued because The Bridge was "concentrating on developing other services like the hotline and health services," he said.

But now, this is a tremendously needed program that will certainly fill a void in our services," he said.

Then the Cook County courts and correction system are responsible for solving the problem, "hopefully in an effective way," Bratcher said.

Bratcher said that parents will ultimately "have to better the communication between themselves and their children to help curb the problem of delinquency."

Biannual ambulance checks slated

Ambulances and mobile intensive care units will have to pass biannual inspections to obtain a license to operate in the Village of Palatine if a proposed ordinance is passed by the village board.

Licensing and inspection fees have not been established but the health, safety and welfare committee has approved the ordinance and will recommend adoption to the village board.

The ordinance is designed to regulate ambulances and mobile intensive care units operating in the village. It stems from a recent situation where a private ambulance firm changed its name to the Palatine Intensive Care Unit. This caused confusion with the mobile intensive care units operated by the Palatine Fire Department, according to John Wagner, a member of the Palatine

Board of Health who helped draft the ordinance.

Under the proposed ordinance, in order to be licensed as a mobile intensive care unit the firm must provide 24-hour coverage, be staffed by one paramedic and one ambulance technician, be able to reach any location in the village within six minutes, carry specified equipment and have the approval of the Illinois Dept. of Public Health, Village Dept. of Health and medical coordinator of the paramedic program.

Only ambulances that are licensed by the village will be able to pick up patients within the village limits although ambulances without a village license will be able to transport persons into the village.

Village seeks action on 2 'dangerous' houses

Legal action is under way to rectify the condition of two houses in Palatine that have been sitting on blocks for more than a year.

The houses have been labeled "dangerous buildings" by the village. Village

Atty. Bradley Glass went to court Monday to get a court order to have the buildings fixed. Glass presented the village's case to Circuit Court Judge L. Sheldon Brown and asked the court to set a deadline for the owners of the buildings to fix them or give the village permission to raze both houses.

The court hearing was continued 10 days to Sept. 26 at 10 a.m. In Judge Brown's court in the Chicago Civic Center.

Both homes are owned by John Waters who purchased them from the state in an auction last year. The houses had to be moved from the vicinity of Palatine Road and Winston Drive to make way for the widening of Palatine Road.

A third house also was purchased by Waters but in the process of moving it caved in and was a total loss. There is now a lawsuit to recoup the money for the damaged house. This is the money that is needed to complete the work on the two existing houses, according to Glass.

High school vote registration to end Friday

Residents of High School Dist. 211 have until Friday to register to vote at local offices for the district's bond referendum Oct. 19.

The $22 million referendum will finance building projects at five high schools in the district. To vote a person must be 18 years old, a U.S. citizen and resident of Dist. 211 for 28 days prior to the election.

Through Friday residents may register at the Palatine Village Hall, 54 S. Brockway, Palatine; Palatine Township Office, 37 N. Plum Grove Rd., Palatine; Inverness village clerk's residence, 8150 Tweed Rd., Palatine; Hoffman Estates Village Hall, 1200 N. Gannon, Hoffman Estates; Schaumburg Township Buttery Office Building, 105 S. Roselle Rd., Schaumburg; Schaumburg Village Office, 101 S. Schaumburg Ct., Schaumburg, and Hanover Park Village Hall, 2121 Lake St., Hanover Park.

Residents may register until Sept. 30 at the Cook County Clerk's office, 118 N. Clark, Chicago.

Precinct polling places used for school board elections will be used in the referendum. Residents may apply for an absentee ballot through the Dist. 211 business office, 1750 S. Roselle Rd., Palatine. Applications may be made by mail from Sept. 19-Oct. 14 or in person through Oct. 16.

Teen injured; driver ticketed

A Chicago man was arrested early Wednesday on various traffic charges after two accidents in Schaumburg — one in which a Palatine youth was injured.

Martin Mostyn, 26, was charged with driving while intoxicated, leaving the scene of an accident, improper right turn and driving too fast for conditions.

The injured youth, Andrew Staubitz, 19, of 2123 Frost St., Palatine, was reported in good condition Wednesday at Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights.

The two accidents occurred on Roselle Road north of Golf Road about 1:10 a.m. Police said a car driven by Mary Nelson, 43, Roselle, was stopped in the southbound lane of Roselle Road for a red light when a car police identified as Mostyn's made a right turn from Golf Road and sideswiped her vehicle. The car continued north on Roselle in the southbound lane.

In the other accident, Mostyn attempted to turn left onto Valley Lake Drive when his vehicle collided with a motorcycle operated by Staubitz, police reported.

Mostyn was being held in county jail in lieu of $2,000 bond. He is to appear Sept. 23 in the Schaumburg branch of Circuit Court.

New sanitarian plans to make sure restaurant food 'as clean as home'

by NANCY COWGER

Bruno Manella's job is to make sure the food you eat in Rolling Meadows restaurants is as clean and fresh as meals you serve at home.

Manella is the new Rolling Meadows sanitarian and will inspect establishments dealing in food, whether it be fast-frozen and packaged for sale or brought piping hot to the table. Manella will see the places consumers don't, and says he will see to it they are as germ free as disinfectants can make them. He started work at a $14,000 salary last week.

He already has sent a catering truck back to Chicago with its cargo because refrigeration units were not keeping their cool.

MANELLA BELIEVES food handlers in the city — persons with stores, restaurants, cafeteria bars and even vending machines — are just as sanitation minded as he is, and will cooperate with him in his job.

One way they can do that is by responding to food handlers' classes he hopes to start in a few months. The classes may provide more frequent contacts for the food handlers with their colleagues in other towns, if a plan now germinating takes root. Manella has learned sanitarians from neighboring communities are talking over the prospects of floating classes, with sessions moving from town to town and attracting businessmen from each. While Manella could hold his own classes for Rolling Meadows, he believes the multiple community approach would be more beneficial for proprietors in the city and their patrons.

ONE AREA THE classes should concentrate on, to Manella's thinking, is training employees. "Good food handling is a big item here. Management has to bear its responsibility, must know how to train people and what they should do," he said. Employees should be schooled in such aspects of their work as the proper way to hold utensils — by the handle — and proper temperatures for dishwashers, which are not the same in wash and rinse cycles. Cleanliness of clothing, (Continued on Page 8)

BLUE MEANS BAD meat in Bruno Manella's sulfite detection test, which should ensure only the freshest in meat products on Rolling Meadows grocery shelves and in restaurant kitchens. Manella became city sanitarian last week.

Fears of delay diminish

Section of New Wilke Rd. to open in three weeks

New Wilke Road between Algonquin and Golf roads will be open to traffic in three weeks, state officials said Wednesday.

Rolling Meadows officials had feared a lengthy delay in opening the roadway because of possible problems with traffic control lights. However, Francine Stuart, county highway department spokeswoman, said the road will be in use in about three weeks. She said temporary traffic lights at Wilke and Algonquin installed as a joint project by the City of Rolling Meadows and Village of Arlington Heights will remain in use.

The controllers will activate the light to provide New Wilke traffic with a green signal only on demand, said Rolling Meadows City Engineer James Muldowney. Algonquin Road will have a constant green signal when no traffic is waiting on New Wilke.

AN IRONIC MOMENT for orderly and conscientious objector Dave Zabler as he wheels a Vietnam War veteran through a hallway at Northwest

Community Hospital. Zabler is content with his decision not to leave the country. "They made their decision and I made mine," he said simply.

'Doing their duty'

by MARILYN McDONALD

They didn't want to go to war. Instead, they chose 24 months of alternate service at Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights.

The 12 men are conscientious objectors who sought and received a waiver of military duty and now work as janitors and orderlies, supervisors and specialists. Theirs is the same service that will face draft-dodgers and deserters under President Ford's conditional amnesty plan.

Their months of mandatory duty have brought mixed reactions. They say their lives have been disrupted but not as dramatically as if they had been in the military. Some believe their careers have been stopped and they are already behind those who didn't have to serve at all. Others want to continue their hospital work after their obligations are completed.

Kent Prodie, 22, Woodstock, is now a sanitation specialist at the hospital, but originally applied for a job in a Head Start day-care center in Peoria. He lost the job when red tape tied up his application.

BRODIE HAS ONE month of service to go, but doesn't feel bitter about his two years because it was his choice. He said he had been in college with no particular direction when the draft seemed imminent. He decided to apply for his conscientious objector classification because he did not want to be in the military but "I felt I owed my country two years for the privilege of living here."

Scott Kimbell, 24, Rock Island, says he "scrambled" for his conscientious objector's status when his induction letter arrived the day after college graduation. Now left with "106 days, I counted on the calendar" as a storeroom assistant, Kimbell hopes to pursue his original intention of going to law school.

Mark Gonzalez, 22, Chicago, sought his military exemption for religious reasons (he is a member of the Jehovah's Witnesses). He left a job at Illinois Bell that he had held for 2½ years and now has until Nov. 10 to serve as a maintenance man at the hospital. He says that he can't understand how his job at the hospital is helping the country. "I'm making the same amount of money here that I was making there. If they didn't have me for the job, they'd get someone else," he said, shrugging his shoulders.

IMA asks change in Clean Air Act

by LEA TONKIN

Fuel and other energy-related shortages have hurt hundreds of Illinois manufacturers and caused layoffs, cutbacks in production and short shifts affecting thousands of workers, according to a report issued recently by the Illinois Manufacturers Assn. The figures, based on an IMA survey of its 5,000 members, indicated that more than 450 Illinois firms have initiated energy-conservation programs with energy savings of up to 10-15 per cent.

Criticizing faulty government policies for energy-related problems, the IMA called for a change in the U.S. Clean Air Act. The proposed change would allow the plants to burn coal and high-sulphur oil and to defer the installation of stack gas-cleaning systems until 1980.

Campaign law to be discussed

Discussion of Illinois new campaign-disclosure law will highlight the Illinois State Chamber of Commerce political action seminar next Tuesday, Sept. 24 at the Holiday Inn East, Springfield. The outlook for fall elections and issues to be considered by the fall session of the Illinois General Assembly will also be discussed.

Bankers plan golf outing

Annual golf outing is planned Sept. 25 by the Northern Cook County Federation, Illinois Bankers Assn. The event will be held at Nordic Hills Country Club, Itasca. For added information call 827-1191.

Personnel departments topic

Personnel department productivity and effectiveness were discussed by guest speaker Seldon Robinson at the Sept. 18 meeting of the Northwest Industrial council held Wednesday in Schaumburg. Robinson is head of the industrial relations for the University of Wisconsin.

Iran to be meeting topic

Working and Living in Iran, a business briefing, is slated for Sept. 24-25 in Chicago by Language House. Simulated business sessions and small group discussions will be featured at the session. For added information contact Language House, Chicago.

Catalytic converters 'no danger': UOP boss

Catalytic converters present no danger to the public health, said John O. Logan, president of Des Plaines-based Universal Oil Products Co., at a Monday press conference in Chicago.

"Catalytic converters add no more sulphur to the air than is already in the gasoline that cars burn," he said of the emission-control device installed on 1975-model autos.

"The fact is," Logan said, "that the only sulphur compounds that can come through the converters are those that already are in the gasoline being used.

Presently, sulphur compounds from gasoline today account for less than 1 per cent of the sulphur compounds emitted into the atmosphere from all sources."

Logan said that the use of the catalytic converter — coupled with recommended lead-free gasoline, higher compression engine ratios, engine tuning and octane ratings of 96 — should result in a total energy gain of 9.9 per cent as well as a cost savings to motorists of 3 to 5 cents per gallon due to improved mileage and reduced maintenance of engine and exhaust systems.

Pool attendance down, but higher rates hike profits

Fewer persons used the Rolling Meadows Park District pool this summer, but more money was made because of higher admission charges.

According to figures released by park officials, $27,060 was taken in at the pool between June 15 and Sept. 2. Park district director Steve Person said the figure was just under the $28,475 anticipated in this year's budget. But this year's revenue exceeded last year's, when the pool earned $23,067.

Rates went up this season for all pool activities. Family passes rose from $25 to $30 while individual passes went from $12 to $15. Individual general admission was 75 cents last year. This year, it rose to $1. Synchronized swimming rose $3 per participant; learn-to-swim, diving, and lifesaving classes all rose between $1 and $3 per class.

PATRICIA DEBISCH, a park district employee, said the rise in rates was the first in many years. Higher prices were necessary to cover the cost of pool chemicals, which shot up due to the fuel crisis earlier in the year, she said.

Total pool attendance was down this year following a year-to-year trend, according to Person. Some 435 family passes were sold this season as opposed to 450 passes last year. Only 139 individual passes were sold this year, while 350 were sold last year. Participation in synchronized swimming and the swim team was up this year over last, however.

Person said that pools never make money; breaking even is all a pool-owning district hopes to do. Earlier in the year, Person said that the Rolling Meadows pool has lost customers because the area's children are growing up and because many families now own backyard pools.

Algonquin Road restaurant to expand

The owner of Down the Hatch Restaurant, 1414 W. Algonquin Rd., has received permission to expand his business, but will have to forego a 16-foot sign on New Wilke Road.

The Arlington Heights Village Board approved the proposed restaurant expansion both east and west of the existing building, but rejected anything taller than a four-foot-high entrance sign at the restaurant's New Wilke Road driveway.

Kurt M. Weseman, owner of Down the Hatch, said a non-mountable median being constructed in front of his restaurant on Algonquin Road made the New Wilke Road sign necessary.

Approval of the addition also was made subject to a landscaping plan acceptable to Village Forester Irwin Page.

City to start work on 'Yule greeting'

The annual Christmas greeting to Rolling Meadows residents from the city council will start to take form after today's meeting at 8 p.m. of the public information and education committee.

The committee will review bids for the printing contract for the 1975 city calendar. Committee members may also begin detailed explanations to the apparent low bidder of just what pictures and written matter the calendar will include.

The meeting will be in City Hall, 3600 Kirchhoff Rd.

Overall summer program participation was down or about the same as last year, according to an enrollment report prepared by Mary Simons, recreation supervisor. Total participation in children's programs was down by 17; adult participation was up by 6. There were more programs offered this year, however, Mrs. Simons said.

Playground program attendance was down sharply by 149 participants.

$75 million village's share of Woodfield 76

by PAT GERLACH

Schaumburg Village Engineer Joseph E. Zgonina has estimated the village would have to invest at least $75 million in public improvements toward the Woodfield 76 development.

A review of plans for the $250 million "metro center" prepared by Zgonina pinpoints shortcomings in the developers' cost estimates for sanitary sewer and water distribution systems. Zgonina also points out discrepancies between square footage for recreational and commercial areas planned and numbers used in figuring supportive facilities the development would require.

Zgonina's seven-page report, released Wednesday, was not formally reviewed during zoning board hearings on Woodfield 76 but is expected to be analyzed by the village board during annexation discussions. The 237-acre development is being planned on Union Oil Co. property on Golf Road, north of the Woodfield Shopping Center.

THE OVERALL PROJECT, "in conceptual form has merit" and with "proper execution," Zgonina says, could provide benefits for the village.

Zgonina recommended limiting the development to the available capacity of the Metropolitan Sanitary District interceptor sewer in the project. The developers proposed that the village provide land and money for treatment plants, but Zgonina termed the suggestion "virtually improbable and highly uneconomical."

The report also questioned the village's role in design and construction of a sewer and water system.

Zgonina called a $240,000 cost estimate for the sanitary system "inadequate," noting the developers' estimates are based on current costs with no regard for inflation.

He said the proposed water distribution does not conform with a master water plan adopted by the village, and construction of the system according to current plans would be inadequate to serve the development. In addition, cost estimates for the system are "low," he said.

ZGONINA SUGGESTED widening and construction of village-owned roads serving Woodfield 76 be funded through special assessment.

He called developers' traffic projections inconsistent because more commercial, office and recreation space and hotel rooms are planned than studies recommended. Zgonina also noted that traffic projections estimated in plans are considerably lower than previous estimates made by Barton-Aschman Associates on other Schaumburg projects.

Zgonina called for supporting data to substantiate the need and cost of a "people mover" system inside Woodfield 76 and criticized the developers' suggestion that the village could begin operating an external transit system as early as three months after need is established.

He referred to Woodfield 76 a "monumental" project which would have significant impact on the village in both revenue and expenses but suggested controlled implementation of the plan.

Board of education posts sought by two ex-members

Two former members of the Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 Board of Education have filed last minute applications for appointment to the board.

Nine persons have applied for two vacancies on the board caused by the resignations of Donnie Rudd and Bonnie Hanson Sept. 7. The deadline for applications was Tuesday. The board hopes to begin interviews next week and announce the appointments Oct. 3.

Sherwood Spatz, 7875 Ramsgate Circle, Hanover Park, a board member from 1971 to 1974, and Dianne Marks, 359 Carlton Rd., Hoffman Estates, a board member from 1970 to 1973, filed applications late Tuesday.

SPATZ WAS DEFEATED for reelection to the Dist. 54 board last April. He was chairman of the education committee and the building and sites committee of the board. Spatz is president and owner of Home Systems. He could not be reached for comment Wednesday.

Miss Marks was an unsuccessful candidate for the High School Dist. 211 Board of Education in 1973. She applied for appointment to a vacancy on the Dist. 211 board last fall but was not chosen. Miss Marks has been a resident of Hoffman Estates since 1962 and is employed as a legal secretary.

Miss Marks declined to comment on her reasons for asking to be appointed to the Dist. 54 board, saying she would outline her reasons to board members when she is interviewed.

SEVEN OTHER PERSONS have filed for the two positions on the board. They are Dr. Edgar Feldman, Schaumburg, a general surgeon; Edward J. Bedard, Hoffman Estates, Dist. 54 board member from 1968 to 1970; Adam J. Jelen Jr., Hoffman Estates, a board member from 1971 to 1974; Mark Renfro, Hanover Park, an advocate of bus safety legislation; Sherry Reynolds, Hoffman Estates, National Organization of Women Illinois state coordinator; James Rogers, Schaumburg, an unsuccessful candidate

BRODIE HAS ONE month of service to go, but doesn't feel bitter about his two years because it was his choice. He said he had been in college with no particular direction when the draft seemed imminent. He decided to apply for his conscientious objector classification because he did not want to be in the military but "I felt I owed my country two years for the privilege of living here."

Scott Kimbell, 24, Rock Island, says he "scrambled" for his conscientious objector's status when his induction letter arrived the day after college graduation. Now left with "106 days, I counted on the calendar" as a storeroom assistant, Kimbell hopes to pursue his original intention of going to law school.

Mark Gonzalez, 22, Chicago, sought his military exemption for religious reasons (he is a member of the Jehovah's Witnesses). He left a job at Illinois Bell that he had held for 2½ years and now has until Nov. 10 to serve as a maintenance man at the hospital. He says that he can't understand how his job at the hospital is helping the country. "I'm making the same amount of money here that I was making there. If they didn't have me for the job, they'd get someone else," he said, shrugging his shoulders.

Fire trustees predict $240,000 deficit

Hoffman Estates Fire Protection District trustees predicted Wednesday night that the district will be about $240,000 in debt at the end of the 1974-75 fiscal year if the village does not assume fire-fighting services.

The figure was far below the $500,000 deficit predicted by a village trustee last week when the village passed a 5-cent-per-$1 utilities tax to fund a "bankrupt" fire system, which is planned to be transformed into a municipal department sometime this year.

William Brilliant, president of the HEFPD board, said in response to questions from newsmen that the district was $222,000 in the hole as of April 30, the end of the last fiscal year. He added if the municipal department was not created, an estimated $18,000 would be the deficit from hiring new personnel and for maintenance for the soon-to-be-opened third station.

Brilliant said the district is anticipating about $100,000 more this year in revenues than last year and that a total of $118,000 would be needed for maintenance ($30,000), radio operators ($35,000), and six new firemen starting in September ($53,000). He said increase in revenue was due to the announced increase in assessed valuation for the district.

GENERATION OF TAX monies from the Winston Knolls subdivision and other property north of the Northwest Tollway will not enter the district's financial picture until the next fiscal year although the area was annexed to the district in August.

Village Mgr. George Longmeyer, who is serving as the district's executive administrator during the transition period, declined to say how Trustee William Cowin arrived at the $500,000 figure, but indicated it was estimated for a two-year rather than a one-year period. An audit of HEFPD finances will be done in about two weeks, he said.

Brilliant said the debt had accrued over the past 16 years because the district has supplied ambulance service without direct tax support and the lack of an industrial, tax base.

Teen injured; driver ticketed

A Chicago man was arrested early Wednesday on various traffic charges after two accidents in Schaumburg — one in which a Palatine youth was injured.

Martin Mostyn, 26, was charged with driving while intoxicated, leaving the scene of an accident, improper right turn and driving too fast for conditions.

The injured youth, Andrew Staubitz, 19, of 2125 Frost St., Palatine, was reported in good condition Wednesday at Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights.

The two accidents occurred on Roselle Road north of Golf Road about 1:10 a.m. Police said a car driven by Mary Nelson, 43, Roselle, was stopped in the southbound lane of Roselle Road for a red light when a car police identified as Mostyn's made a right turn from Golf Road and sideswiped her vehicle. The car continued north on Roselle in the southbound lane.

In the other accident, Mostyn attempted to turn left onto Valley Lake Drive when his vehicle collided with a motorcycle operated by Staubitz, police reported.

Mostyn was being held in county jail lieu of $2,000 bond. He is to appear Sept. 25 in the Schaumburg branch of Circuit Court.

Correction

On Sept. 6 The Herald incorrectly reported that Calvin C. Keller, 20, of 147 Rohlfing Rd., Palatine, was charged with delivery of a controlled substance (cocaine) and with possession of PCP, barbiturates and marijuana.

The newspaper story was in connection with a drug raid conducted by agents of the Metropolitan Enforcement Group in a Schaumburg apartment.

Keller was charged with delivery of a controlled substance (cocaine) but was not charged with possession of PCP, barbiturates and marijuana. The Herald story also reported that Keller was out on bond at the time as a result of previous drug and assault and battery charges, according to MEG director John Hinchey. That information also is incorrect. Keller was first placed on bond following his Sept. 5 arrest for delivery of cocaine.

Motorcyclist, 19, killed in crash

A 19-year-old Schaumburg youth was fatally injured late Tuesday in Hanover Park when he was thrown from the motorcycle he was riding and struck by an oncoming car.

The victim was Todd Gardner, 105 W. Monterey. Illinois State Police said the youth was traveling in the eastbound lane of U. S. Rte. 20 about 8:45 p.m. when the car ahead of him apparently began to slow just east of Ill. Rte. 59.

Gardner failed to stop and struck the auto, driven by Larry Telander, 23, of Hanover Park. Police said the impact threw Gardner into the westbound lanes of traffic where he was struck and killed by an auto driven by Jonathan Kramka, 17, Elgin.

State police said no tickets were issued.

Despite nearby homeowners' objections

Zoners approve Country Lane project

Country Lane, a 710-unit townhouse-condominium apartment project on 60 acres of Roselle Road property, was approved Wednesday night by the Schaumburg Zoning Board of Appeals.

The board's action was taken over the objections of nearby single-family homeowners.

Malik Parkash, Lancer Park Homeowners Assn. president, urged zoners to deny zoning for the project proposed by G-S Builders of Arlington Heights. The development is planned on a site immediately south of the Lancer Park subdivision.

"Our big objection to six-story buildings still stands, but if only townhouses are built, I will be the first person to withdraw that objection," Parkash said.

THE PROJECT CALLS for 290 townhomes and 420 condominium apartments in five six-story buildings. Original plans presented in June called for 926 units including 11-story high-rises, but builders later agreed to reduce building heights and number of units in reaction to residents' objections.

Carol Johnson, 334 Hazel Dr., suggested the village establish a road fund and asked for voluntary contributions from developers for road improvements. Mrs. Johnson is president of Timbercrest Homeowners Assn. Citing congested traffic conditions on Roselle Road, Mrs. Johnson noted that homeowners have been repeatedly refused when they have asked the village for "road relief."

The development is to contain 124 townhomes that will include 18 three-bedroom units 106 two-bedroom units in Phase I. Phase II also is limited to townhomes, to contain 94 units of which 14 will have three bedrooms while the remaining 80 contain two bedrooms. Phase III is to be a mix of townhomes and the six-story buildings.

Condominium apartments are planned to sell for $27,500 to $36,000. Townhouse prices will range from $38,900 to $47,900. Also planned is a recreational facility that will include two tennis courts, a swimming pool and other amenities.

Citizens Utilities' users affected

Some residents urged to boil their water

Village plans action on water loss

Mount Prospect officials may take action against Citizens Utilities Co. because of problems caused by Wednesday's severe drop in water pressure in the New Town section of the village.

A complaint form from the Illinois Commerce Commission is being sent to the village. John Zimmermann, village attorney, said he will review the form to see if the matter should be pursued.

Village officials have long been unhappy with the service provided by Citizens Utilities, and a study has been proposed to determine the feasibility of purchasing the firm's sewer and water lines.

The ICC was contacted Wednesday by David Creamer, public works director, when he was unable to contact Public Utilities after residents began complaining about loss of water pressure. Creamer said the ICC provided him with needed information about the drop in water pressure, although a representative from Public Utilities called him later in the day.

AS A RESULT OF this contact, the ICC is sending the village the papers needed to file a complaint against the utility company. Both Zimmermann and Creamer said they were unfamiliar with the ICC complaint form.

The village could file the complaint since it is a customer of the utility company which provides water to one fire station. Village officials are upset about both the loss of water and the fact that the utility company could not be contacted for information on the problem.

Creamer said that he has previously asked the utility company to notify the village of any problems so that his department will know how to deal with it. "It's the not-knowing problem," he said.

by LYNN ASTINOF

Residents in the northeast section of Mount Prospect have been advised to boil all drinking water until 1 p.m. Friday because of possible contamination resulting from a severe drop in water pressure Wednesday morning.

The area affected is served by Citizens Utilities Co. The Mount Prospect Health Dept. issued the advisory Wednesday afternoon after the village received a flood of calls from residents who said they were without water.

William Kuzia, spokesman for Citizens Utilities, said the problem was caused by a failure in the communication system. The system should automatically have switched on booster pumps when the water pressure began to drop. He said the booster pumps did not kick on, leaving the area with minimal water pressure.

HEALTH DEPARTMENT officials said bacteria can enter the water system when water pressure drops to a minimal level. They said tests were taken to determine if there was any contamination, but said results will not be available for 24 to 48 hours.

On the advice of the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency, the health department is recommending that residents either drink bottled water or boil all drinking water for at least 10 minutes. These precautionary measures are not necessary for water that will be used for other purposes.

The health department issued its advisory at about 1 p.m., asking residents to boil all drinking water for the next 48 hours.

David Creamer, Mount Prospect director of public works, said he received the first complaint about lack of water at 9:40 a.m. He said at least 38 residents called shortly thereafter, with one woman reporting her home without water until about 2:30 p.m.

KUZIA, HOWEVER, SAID the problem lasted only 1 hour and 15 minutes before water pressure was fully restored.

Creamer said when he tried to reach Citizens Utilities about the problem, all lines were busy and the phone company reported the line was out of service.

Soo Line sued in crash that killed missionary

The Soo Line R.R. Co. has been sued for $1 million in connection with a fatal accident June 19, 1973 near Morrison Avenue in Wheeling Township. The suit was filed Tuesday in Circuit Court.

Killed in the accident was Margaret Rogers, 82, a widow and former missionary to Chad, Africa. She was killed when a freight train struck her car as the car was crossing the tracks at a private driveway crossing.

The train's engineer, Robert Acord, of Fond du Lac, Wis., said the car paused on the tracks for unknown reasons and he was unable to stop the train in time. Mrs. Rogers apparently was returning home after a visit with her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. David Wunsch, 150 Morrison Ave., sheriff's police said.

Mrs. Rogers was a linguist and, according to the suit, was translating the Bible from English into Mbal, a language of Chad, at the time she was killed. She had been a missionary in the country for 35 years.

Court summons delivered personally

Mount Prospect residents who have continually ignored village traffic and parking tickets are receiving a surprise visitor these days.

The police department has begun hand-delivering court summons to delinquent ticket payers. In addition, the original $5 traffic ticket and $3 parking-meter ticket cost $15 by the time a court appearance is arranged.

Last July, there were between 500 and 600 delinquent tickets, Lt. Fred Hedlund said. Since that time, many were paid since Hedlund is sending out notices in addition to policemen in efforts to collect the fines.

Randhurst security man arrested here

A Randhurst Shopping Center security patrolman was arrested Monday by Mount Prospect police. Andrew Gradowski, 22, 1150 W. River Rd., Des Plaines, was wanted on a warrant for a battery charge brought against him by a Des Plaines woman, for resisting arrest and assaulting an officer.

A court date has been set for Oct. 16 in Mount Prospect branch of Circuit Court.

AN IRONIC MOMENT for orderly and conscientious objector Dave Zablar as he wheels a Vietnam War veteran through a hallway at Northwest Community Hospital. Zablar is content with his decision not to leave the country. "They made their decision and I made mine," he said simply.

'Doing their duty'

by MARILYN McDONALD

They didn't want to go to war. Instead, they chose 24 months of alternate service at Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights.

The 12 men are conscientious objectors who sought and received a waiver of military duty and now work as janitors and orderlies, supervisors and specialists. Theirs is the same service that will face draft-dodgers and deserters under President Ford's conditional amnesty plan.

Their months of mandatory duty have brought mixed reactions. They say their lives have been disrupted but not as dramatically as if they had been in the military. Some believe their careers have been stopped and they are already behind those who didn't have to serve at all. Others want to continue their hospital work after their obligations are completed.

Kent Prodie, 22, Woodstock, is now a sanitation specialist at the hospital, but originally applied for a job in a Head Start day-care center in Peoria. He lost the job when red tape tied up his application.

BRODIE HAS ONE month of service to go, but doesn't feel bitter about his two years because it was his choice. He said he had been in college with no particular direction when the draft seemed imminent. He decided to apply for his conscientious objector classification because he did not want to be in the military but "I felt I owed my country two years for the privilege of living here."

Scott Kimbell, 24, Rock Island, says he "scrambled" for his conscientious objector's status when his induction letter arrived the day after college graduation. Now left with "106 days, I counted on the calendar" as a storeroom assistant, Kimbell hopes to pursue his original intention of going to law school.

Mark Gonzalez, 22, Chicago, sought his military exemption for religious reasons (he is a member of the Jehovah's Witnesses). He left a job at Illinois Bell that he had held for 2½ years and now has until Nov. 10 to serve as a maintenance man at the hospital. He says that he can't understand how his job at the hospital is helping the country. "I'm making the same amount of money here that I was making there. If they didn't have me for the job, they'd get someone else," he said, shrugging his shoulders.

Dist. 59 wrapup

No towel service for junior highs

Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 board member Avis Wold has apparently lost in her attempt to provide towel service at the district's five junior high schools.

The board Monday night voted down a motion to provide towel service at a cost of $20,000 to $24,000 a year. The vote was 4 to 2, with Mrs. Wold and board member Judith Zanca dissenting.

District-paid towel service was discontinued several years ago to save money and students must now provide their own towels if they want to shower after gym class. Some schools provide an optional towel service for a fee, a plan which has met with little success, according to physical education teachers at the schools.

The board also voted down another motion by Mrs. Wold which would have provided the service at a fee of about $6 a year. The district is prohibited by law from making the fee mandatory and must give the student the option of bringing a towel from home.

Friendship contract OK'd

The board approved a contract with Meyer-Ross Construction Co., Lake Zurich to complete dozens of minor items at the district's newest school, Friendship Junior High School, 550 Elizabeth Ln., Des Plaines.

The original building contractor, A. E. Berg Co., has failed to complete the items although the school has been finished for nearly a year.

The board approved bids for stage partitions at Brentwood School, Des Plaines; Mark Hopkins School, Elk Grove Village, and Forest View School, Mount Prospect, totaling $10,989.

Also approved was a $3,000 bid for gym divider curtains at Holmes Junior High School, Mount Prospect, and Lively Junior High School, Elk Grove Village.

The board approved a request to bid on library shelving estimated to cost $3,200 for Dempster Junior High School, Mount Prospect.

A bid of $7,173 for installation of a background noise system at Friendship Junior High was tabled until the next board meeting, Oct. 7.

The board has authorized testing of the noise system as a solution to an unusual problem in the soundproof building. Regular classroom noise is louder at Friendship because of its design. Background noise may be piped into the building to make other noises less obvious.

Meyer-Ross, which is working on additions to two district junior high schools, is expected to prepare a cost estimate for the work.

The district is holding back $40,000 from Berg until the work is completed; the Meyer-Ross work will be paid for from those funds, said Arthur Perry, assistant superintendent for administrative services.

West boundary changed

Dist. 59 joined neighboring districts Monday by agreeing to change part of its western boundary from old Ill. Rte. 53, (Bohling Rd.) to Interstate 90.

The boundary change affects no children. No one lives in the area between the two roads, which will go from Dist. 59 to Schaumburg Township Dist. 54.

It's Oktoberfest time in Prospect Heights

The third annual Prospect Heights Oktoberfest takes over the southwest corner of Camp McDonald and Elmhurst roads from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday.

There will be arts and crafts displays and sales, a used book sale and township, county and state officials. The politicians will be there to talk and will forego speeches, said Robert Poltzer, of the sponsoring Prospect Heights Improvement Assn.

For food, there will be bratwurst, soft drinks, cold beer and home-baked goods. Music, balloons and an open house at the nearby Prospect Heights fire station are scheduled.

Citizens Utilities users urged to boil water protection agency, the health department began notifying schools about the possible water contamination. Radio stations were contacted to notify residents in the area not to drink their tap water without boiling it.

Schools served by Citizens Utilities in the area ordered signs posted at the drinking fountains and notification was sent home with the students about the proper procedure to follow in boiling drinking water.

MOST OF THE SCHOOLS have distilled water on hand for such emergencies. At Indian Grove School, however, bottled water was purchased for students who needed it for medication.

The radio announcements brought a flood of calls into the village hall from worried residents. A health department representative said residents not affected by the water pressure drop also called because the radio stations did not specify what area of Mount Prospect was affected.

The area of unincorporated Wheeling Township also serviced by Citizens Utilities reportedly was not affected by the water pressure drop. A water main break at Leahy Circle and Dempster Street affected water service in that area Tuesday night. Apparently no boiling advisory was issued as a result of that break.

NW Municipal Conference backs S-curve upgrading

Plans to upgrade the S. Elmhurst Road S-curve in Mount Prospect to reduce the number of accidents have been endorsed by the Northwest Municipal Conference.

Officials of the conference disclosed at a meeting Wednesday night that the $600,000 project to install a traffic signal at Elmhurst and Lincoln Street and to grade the curve were approved in a vote of conference members by mail.

Municipal conference endorsement puts the project on the conference's "top priority" road improvement list, eligible for federal funding.

Federal funding is not assured, but would have been virtually impossible to obtain without the backing of the municipal conference.

The Des Plaines engineering firm of M/E Alstot, March and Guillou Inc. has been hired by Mount Prospect officials to draw plans for the roadway improvement.

Driver surrenders self after chase by police

A Wheeling Township man, 23, was arrested in Mount Prospect Wednesday, after Cook County Sheriff's Police chased the man's car through eight communities.

Arrested was Kenneth L. Routenberg, 918A Boxwood Dr., who was charged by Mount Prospect police with reckless driving and attempting to elude police. Police said the chase began about 4:45 p.m. on Golf Road in Skokie, when a sheriff's policeman in a nonpolice vehicle saw Routenberg driving in a reckless manner.

The chase, in which speeds went up to about 65 m.p.h., zigzagged through Skokie, Golf, Morton Grove, Niles, Glenview, Arlington Heights and Des Plaines before it ended in Mount Prospect. Mount Prospect police said they were told the fleeing car had almost struck several children at a school crossing in the New Town area of Mount Prospect. Police said Routenberg turned himself

S-curve speeder crackdown fails to cut crashes

by TOM VON MALDER

A crackdown on speeders on the S. Elmhurst Road S-curve in Mount Prospect since June has failed to cut the accident rate there appreciably, according to police reports.

Ten accidents, including one fatality, had occurred this year prior to the crackdown. Another five accidents took place in June, the first month of the increased patrol and ticket writing. In the 11 week since, there have been seven more accidents — all with property damage only.

While the accident rate is still close to three a month, about 100 tickets a month have been issued for speeding since June. Most of the tickets are held up in court, police said. Court results from Aug. 23 through Sept. 11 showed 64 convictions, five dismissals and 12 pending cases.

UNDER ORDERS FROM Police Chief Ralph J. Doney, policemen are not bothering to ticket drivers traveling 26 to 30 m.p.h. in the 25 m.p.h. zone. "I didn't feel we really had to when there were enough flagrant violations," he said after the crackdown started.

Policemen have issued some 312 speeding tickets between July 1 and Sept. 15. Most of the tickets (199) were for motorists clocked at 36 to 40 m.p.h. Another 77 tickets were issued for the 41 to 45 m.p.h. category, and 25 for 36 and 40 m.p.h. 9 drivers were stopped for allegedly going 46 to 50 m.p.h. and two were ticketed for doing 51 m.p.h. or over, including one allegedly doing 60 m.p.h. when he was stopped.

AS IN JUNE, when 236 tickets were written, the majority of speeders were headed south through the S-curve. Previous to the crackdown, 166 tickets had been issued through May of this year and 190 tickets had been written in all of 1973.

The crackdown on speeders was initiated at the insistence of area residents who complained on June 3 to village officials that numerous accidents and near-accidents had occurred because of speeding through the notorious stretch of road.

Building panel gets Rob Roy plan

A study of the proposal to build 2,350 townhouse and condominium units on the Rob Roy Golf Course has been referred to the building committee of the Mount Prospect Village Board.

The building committee will consider a recommendation from the zoning board of appeals to deny zoning for the project. The zoning board voted against the project, saying that there were too many unanswered questions.

As a result of the negative zoning board vote, the project will have to win the approval of five of the seven village board members in order to pass.

Zoning board member Norman Kozy said that Kenroy Inc., developers of the proposed project, should resolve several problems before the village board considers the matter.

These problems include a firm settlement with the River Trails Park District over ownership of part of the golf course for open space. Kozy also said Kenroy should present a written agreement on its assistance to River Trails Dist. 26 for development of schools for the project.

In addition, Kozy requested further information on whether the developer will assume the costs of traffic improvements and the enlargement of the water supply.

Sidyard variation OKd

The board has approved a sidyard variation that will allow the construction of an attached two-car garage at 1807 Maya Ln. Trustee Richard Hendricks voted against the variation.

Board members also directed that a requested frontyard variation at 1120 Greenfield Ln. be returned to the zoning board of appeals because of a change in request. Charles Jenks originally asked for a variation to build a two-story addition to his garage. He has now changed his request to build a second floor on his garage.

Three subdivisions were approved by the board, including a two-lot subdivision at the northwest corner of Central Road and N. Marcella Road. A second two-lot subdivision was approved for property further north on N. Marcella Road. Three lots were combined into one lot at the southeast corner of Hill and Prospect avenues.

Deadline set to solve furnace woes

by JERRY THOMAS

Centex Homes Corp. officials have until noon Monday to come up with a solution to Elk Grove Village furnace problems.

The deadline was agreed on late Tuesday night by village officials and Centex representatives after the village rejected the builder's offer of $6 do-it-yourself repair kits as a solution to widespread furnace defects.

WILLIAM LIEBOW, Centex vice president, acknowledged the firm has a moral responsibility, but argued its legal responsibility in the issue. Liebow said the firm will offer homeowners a $1.50 furnace door air vent and a $4.50 chimney stack vent cap that he said "a homeowner could install himself with a screwdriver."

THE FURNACE REPAIR kit is not available as yet.

Village Pres. Charles Zetsek rejected the do-it-yourself repair kit and is demanding instead complete furnace replacement and other corrective code compliance work where needed. He told Liebow the firm must offer a better solution than the parts it offered or it would never build in Elk Grove Village again.

Zetsek insisted that if the solution called for complete furnace replacement and reworking of heating systems "that's what Centex will do." When Liebow said he did not have the authority to commit Centex to furnace replacement or anything other than the cap and grill offer, the noon Monday deadline was set.

Building Comr. Thomas Rottenbacher disputes the builder's claim that the parts will end code violations at an estimated 1,700 homes where furnace failures are suspected.

HE SAID THE building department, after exhaustive research, compiled a list of six different code violations in at least 28 separate models of Centex-built houses where furnace failures have occurred.

"Perhaps installing an Underwriters Laboratory-listed vent cap will bring some homes up to code, but in most cases it will be a worthless effort," he said. "Some models have an older model vent cap that was not UL approved and this is the only violation. However, others have too-short chimney stacks and several other violations that must be changed before a new furnace is installed," he added.

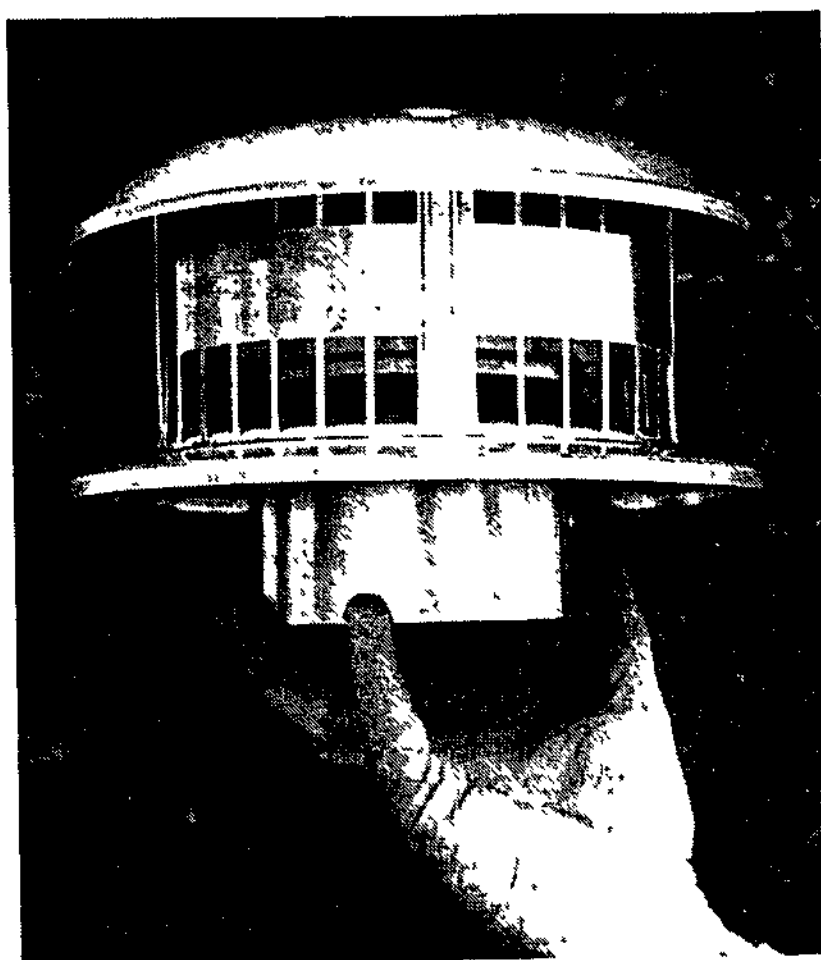

"There are so many different variables involved in each model home that heating contractors should make separate inspections before installation and must submit a drawing to show what work will be done before obtaining furnace replacement permits," Rottenbacher said.

The commissioner also challenged Liebow's contention that the firm will provide homeowners with a replacement 12-by-12-inch air grill that will supply the furnace with adequate combustion air.

"UNLESS CENTEX has found a supplier that we couldn't find, or has designed a special grill with just a screen opening, a larger grill is the only answer," Rottenbacher said.

"This will involve cutting a larger opening in a wall or furnace room door and hardly should be considered a job a homeowner can accomplish with a screwdriver," he said.

The building department is making lists of suggested corrections to heating systems, to bring them into code compliance, available to heating contractors.

A CHIMNEY STACK vent cap like this one and a replacement air intake grill with larger holes was offered by Centex Homes Corp. as the $6 solution to residents' furnace problems. The village has rejected the offer and is demanding furnace replacement and new venting systems in as many of the 1,700 homes suspected of extensive furnace defects.

Fire prevention trophy named for leukemia victim

Beginning this year, the Lowell J. Fell Fire Prevention Trophy will be given to the Mount Prospect Junior High school class with the best window painting during Fire Prevention Week.

The decision to name the previously unnamed award was made by the fire department and the Randhurst Corp., said Firefighter Lonnie Jackson. The award has been presented annually since 1963 and has been won by St. Emily School the past two years.

The window-painting contest, along with the annual school poster contest, will be held during Fire Prevention Week, Oct. 6 to 12.

Fell, who recently died of leukemia, had been the fire department's public relations man, in addition to being a firefighter. He helped set up the window-painting contest.

Doubt cast on annex extension

Race track may be source of new money

by KURT BAER

Frank Palmatter, chairman of the Arlington Heights Village Board's finance committee, has identified Arlington Park Race Track as an important future source of revenue for the village, and cast a new doubt on the race track's request to extend its annexation agreement with the village.

Replying Monday night to other trustees who said they were concerned about deficits in next year's village budget, Palmatter raised the possibility of a parking tax and a hotel tax, both of which would fall heavily on the race track-hotel complex.

"Other sources of revenue could be developed once the race track annexation agreement expires," he said, noting that the City of Chicago levies a daily parking tax of 15 cents per car.

ASSUMING AN identical tax were passed in Arlington Heights, the village could anticipate receiving some $96,000 in gross revenue based on an estimated 8,000 cars a day during an 80-day racing season.

The Village of Palatine collects 3 per cent tax on each local hotel and motel bill.

The potential for new taxes that would bring in money from the race track, including a village parimutuel tax, has been mentioned previously. But the likelihood of such measures being enacted is heightened by the impending Oct. 20 expiration of the five-year-old annexation agreement between Arlington Park and Arlington Heights.

That agreement restricts Arlington Heights to only those fees, taxes and other ordinances that were on the books in 1969 when the pact was signed by both parties.

"It is specifically agreed that the fees required for building permits, licenses, sewer and water charges, plan review, inspection fees, and any other regulatory fees . . . charges or impositions having to do with the construction or development or operation and use of the improvements on the subject property shall not be increased for a period of five years . . ." the agreement states.

THE ONLY EXCEPTION is an increased cost that would be accepted by both the race track and the village.

The race track has asked for an additional five-years shelter under the annexation agreement in order to complete plans for a 5,716-unit housing project west of the race track and north of the Arlington Park Towers Hotel.

As of Wednesday, village officials still had not received a list of benefits that supposedly would fall to the community if the annexation agreement were extended to 1979. The village board requested the list Sept. 9, and race track attorney, Richard Babcock, said at that time it would take about a week to prepare the document.

A public hearing on the question of extending the agreement will be held by the village board at 8 p.m. Monday, Sept. 30 at the municipal building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd. Residents interested in the matter will be given a chance to speak at the meeting.

SEVERAL homeowners associations, most notably the Westgate Civic Assn., are keenly concerned with the future development of the race track property and

Village releases account of land dedication fund

Arlington Heights Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson has released a project-by-project accounting of $357,098.90 that was contributed to the village's land dedication fund from 1967 to 1974.

The report was prepared at the request of Trustee Alice Harms in connection with a controversy over how much of the money contributed by builders for public land purchases has been passed on to park and school districts.

Both Mrs. Harms, and Arlington Heights Park Dist. Comr. Kay Muller, who has charged that the park district has been short-changed in cash contributions, said Wednesday they had not yet studied the figures in the report.

A REVIEW OF THE village's land dedication policy, along with a request from the park district for some $120,000 to buy additional park land in several different areas in pending with the village board's finance committee.

The report analyzes cash contributions negotiated with the developers of 47 different residential projects, both single- and multiple-family housing. It also shows where the money has been spent for public land purposes.

In only two instances, according to the report, was money paid directly from a developer to the park district. In the two cases where this was done, a total of $43,825 was contributed.

In 1965, the report indicated $1,375 was paid from the village fund to the park district, and in 1969, $500 was deducted from the village fund to the park district for Stolzer Park.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS ordinance requires a cash contribution from developers who, because of the nature of their project, cannot dedicate actual land for public use.

In seven instances, money was paid to an elementary school district, either Arlington Heights Dist. 25 or Prospect Heights Dist. 23, the report shows.

The report contains only the basic statistical facts for each cash contribution, such as the subdivision name, the builder, the number of lots or apartment units and the amount of cash received. It also shows who negotiated the contribution and to which public agency the money was actually paid.

It does not include any written statement of the village's policy or practice in disbursing the money.

Freight car switching stalls crossing gates

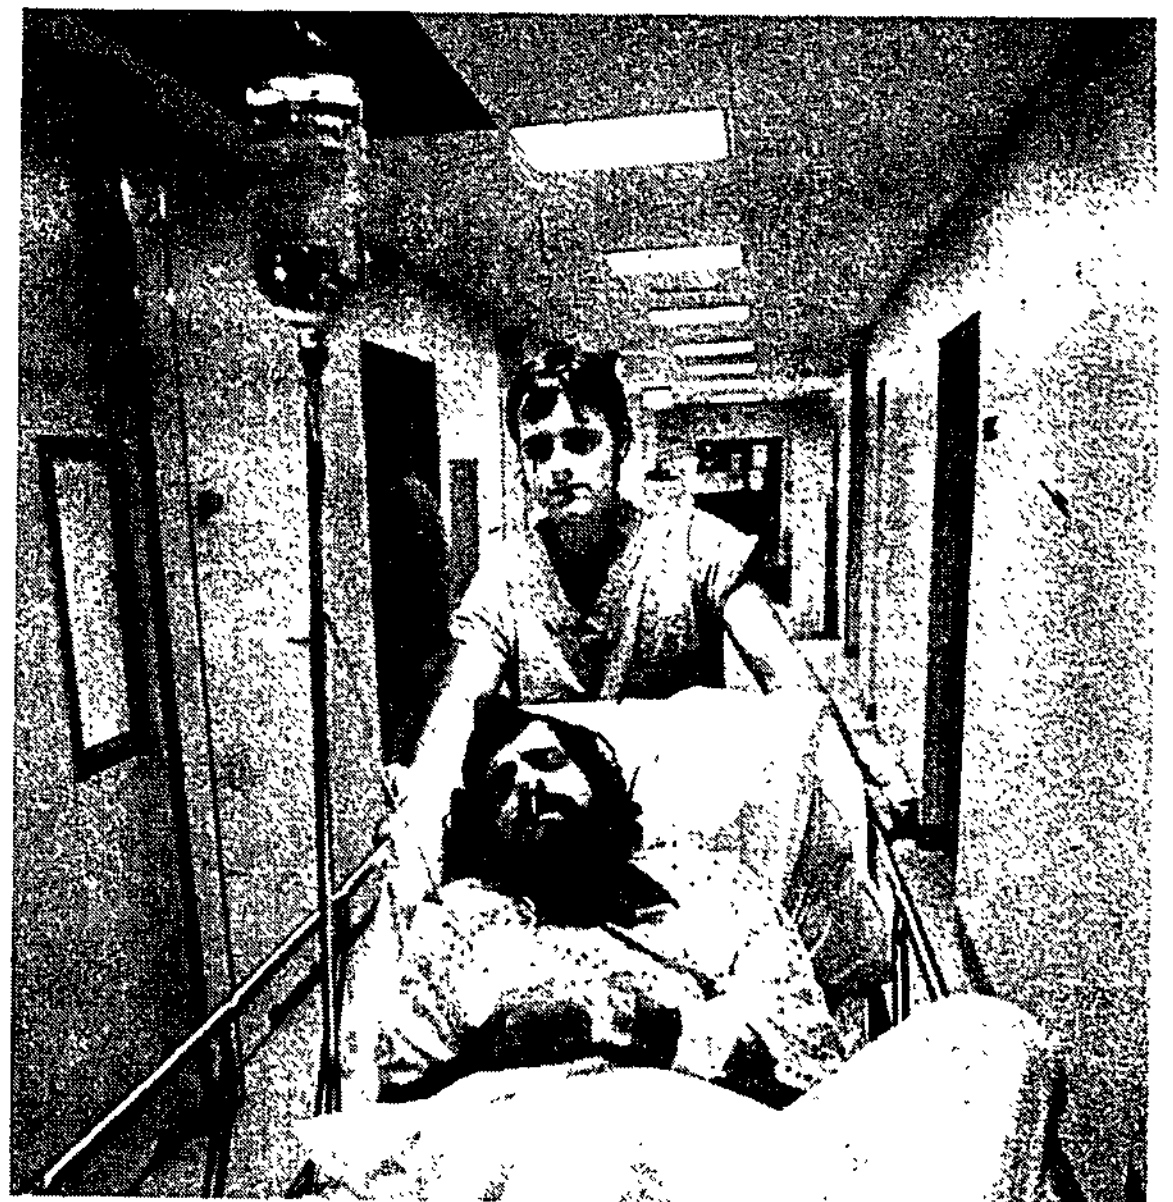

Railroad crossing gates in downtown Arlington Heights were in the down position for almost one hour Wednesday night while an engine was involved in switching 12 freight cars with merchandise for a new appliance store.

A spokesman with the Chicago & North Western Ry. operations department said supervisors in the Elk Grove yard had been advised against a recurrence of the situation.

The crossing gates were reported lowered at 7:40 p.m. and raised at 8:36 p.m., Arlington Heights police said.

AN IRONIC MOMENT for orderly and conscientious objector Dave Zabler as he wheels a Vietnam War veteran through a hallway at Northwest

Community Hospital. Zabler is content with his decision not to leave the country. "They made their decision and I made mine," he said simply.

'Doing their duty'

by MARILYN McDONALD

They didn't want to go to war. Instead, they chose 24 months of alternate service at Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights.

The 12 men are conscientious objectors who sought and received a waiver of military duty and now work as janitors and orderlies, supervisors and specialists. Theirs is the same service that will face draft-dodgers and deserters under President Ford's conditional amnesty plan.

Their months of mandatory duty have brought mixed reactions. They say their lives have been disrupted but not as dramatically as if they had been in the military. Some believe their careers have been stopped and they are already behind those who didn't have to serve at all. Others want to continue their hospital work after their obligations are completed.

Kent Prodie, 23, Woodstock, is now a sanitation specialist at the hospital, but originally applied for a job in a Head Start day-care center in Peoria. He lost the job when red tape tied up his application.

BRODIE HAS ONE month of service to go, but doesn't feel bitter about his two years because it was his choice. He said he had been in college with no particular direction when the draft seemed imminent. He decided to apply for his conscientious objector classification because he did not want to be in the military but "I felt I owed my country two years for the privilege of living here."

Scott Kimbell, 24, Rock Island, says he "scrambled" for his conscientious objector status when his induction letter arrived the day after college graduation. Now left with "106 days, I counted on the calendar" as a storeroom assistant, Kimbell hopes to pursue his original intention of going to law school.

Mark Gonzalez, 22, Chicago, sought his military exemption for religious reasons (he is a member of the Jehovah's Witnesses). He left a job at Illinois Bell that he had held for 2½ years and now has until Nov. 10 to serve as a maintenance man at the hospital. He says that he can't understand how his job at the hospital is helping the country. "I'm making the same amount of money here that I was making there. If they didn't have me for the job, they'd get someone else," he said, shrugging his shoulders.

Traffic a threat to unfenced playground

by KURT BAER

Supervisors at St. James Catholic School in Arlington Heights are searching for a way to solve what they see as a serious safety problem at their school.

The hazard arises every day between noon and 12:45 p.m. when some 400 St. James students empty out into the school playground in the 800 block of north Pine Street.

There is no fence around the play yard, and school officials fear the unwelcome interplay of cars and kids will someday result in a serious accident.

As a result, they have circulated a petition among residents living on the east side of Pine Street directly opposite the playground asking their help in solving the problem. They plan to present the petition to the village police and engineering departments.

But village officials say they see no easy solution that will remove the hazard. It would be illegal to barricade Pine Street north and south of the playground because there must be access to the homes on the east side of the street they say and partial barricade in the street would make the village liable for any accident that could be tied to the obstruction.

But if the Pine Street petition is presented, Village Engr. Allen Sander says the police and engineering departments will meet with school supervisors to try and remedy the situation.

KIDS AND CARS make for a dangerous situation on the playground of St. James Catholic School, Arlington Heights, and supervisors say they have been trying to slow down traffic on Pine Street. A petition signed by most of the residents in the area is expected to go to village officials.

Will select village board candidates

Caucus in first open meeting Oct. 20

The Arlington Heights Caucus, the dominant local political party for the last 15 years, has sent out letters to 50 civic associations notifying residents of its first open meeting scheduled for Oct. 20. Purpose of the meeting, open to all Arlington Heights registered voters, is to elect a 20-member candidate recommendation committee which will interview and ultimately recommend Caucus party candidates for the village board.

Four village trustee seats and the village president's office will be at stake in next April's election.

AT A SECOND Caucus meeting, normally held in January, candidates selected by the recommendation committee are presented and a final slate is voted upon. The second meeting also is open to all registered voters in the village.

At the Oct. 20 meeting residents can propose amendments to the Caucus platform, rules and bylaws. A majority vote of those attending the meeting is needed to ratify any proposed rule changes.

An executive committee, including the Caucus chairman, vice chairman, secretary and treasurer will be elected. The present Caucus chairman is Alfred Barboro Jr., 1543 Kennicott.

The statement of purpose for the Caucus includes nine specific objectives and goals, together they constitute the party platform. They are:

- Maintain maximum efficiency and economy in village government and keep taxes at the lowest practicable level.
- Promote civic pride and community spirit.
- Enforce the law fairly and justly.
- Conduct village affairs without favoritism.
- Appoint only qualified persons to the various boards and commissions.
- Support the village manager form of government, embodying a board of trustees elected from the village at large.
- Utilize sound planning and zoning principles in the promotion, control and development of desirable commercial and industrial growth in the village.
- Maintain the single-family residential nature of the community and protect residential areas by prohibiting the use of spot zoning for multiple-family units in these areas.
- Preserve the autonomy of village government.

Every Caucus-endorsed candidate must agree to support the platform when he or she runs for office.

Village seeking to buy seven pieces of property

The Village of Arlington Heights is preparing to get cost appraisals for seven pieces of property it is planning to buy.

Six of the properties are included in the village's flood-control program as sites for storm-water retention basins. They are:

• A 12-acre site east of the existing Wilke-Kirchoff retention basin between Kirchoff and Central roads. This basin will be used to hold storm water from the Pioneer Park neighborhood.

• Land at the northwest corner of Eastman and Walnut streets now occupied by an auto body shop. A storm water reservoir planned for this site will drain the Ridge Park-Sherwood area.

• A 5.5-acre site at the northwest corner of Arlington Heights Road and Cypress Street. The basin planned here will drain a 127-acre area bounded by Arlington Heights Road, Cedar Street, Fernandez Avenue and Magnolia Street.

• A pond site on the Arlington Heights Nike Base that will help control flooding in the southwest corner of the village along Salt Creek and also be part of a planned golf course.

• A block-long site between Belmont and Douglas at Marlon where a basin to hold storm water from the Hickory Meadows-Arlington Knolls neighborhood will be built.

• An 88-acre tract of land along McDonald Creek east of Windsor Drive, most of the proposed site for Lake Arlington. Twenty-five additional acres for use take are part of Harper College's planned second campus site at the northwest corner of Palatine and Schoenbeck Roads.

An eight-acre piece of land south of the existing Wilke-Kirchoff storm water basin also will be appraised. The village has designated this site for a deep-water well, pump house and four-story, six-million-gallon water reservoir.

Pricing the properties is a first step toward purchase. The appraised prices will be used in negotiations with the land owners and, if necessary, in court condemnation proceedings.

Dist. 59 wrapup

No towel service for junior highs

Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 board member Avis Wold has apparently lost in her attempt to provide towel service at the district's five junior high schools.

The board Monday night voted down a motion to provide towel service at a cost of $20,000 to $24,000 a year. The vote was 4 to 2, with Mrs. Wold and board member Judith Zanca dissenting.

District-paid towel service was discontinued several years ago to save money and students must now provide their own towels if they want to shower after gym class. Some schools provide an optional towel service for a fee, a plan which has met with little success, according to physical education teachers at the schools.

The board also voted down another motion by Mrs. Wold which would have provided the service at a fee of about $6 a year. The district is prohibited by law from making the fee mandatory and must give the student the option of bringing a towel from home.

Friendship contract OKd

The board approved a contract with Meyer-Ross Construction Co., Lake Zurich to complete dozens of minor items at the district's newest school, Friendship Junior High School, 550 Elizabeth Ln., Des Plaines.

The original building contractor, A. E. Berg Co., has failed to complete the items although the school has been finished for nearly a year.

The board approved bids for stage partitions at Brentwood School, Des Plaines; Mark Hopkins School, Elk Grove Village, and Forest View School, Mount Prospect, totaling $10,989.

Also approved was a $3,060 bid for gym divider curtains at Holmes Junior High School, Mount Prospect, and Lively Junior High School, Elk Grove Village.

The board approved a request to bid on library shelving estimated to cost $3,200 for Dempster Junior High School, Mount Prospect.

A bid of $7,173 for installation of a background noise system at Friendship Junior High was tabled until the next board meeting, Oct. 7.

The board has authorized testing of the noise system as a solution to an unusual problem in the soundproof building. Regular classroom noise is louder at Friendship because of its design. Background noise may be piped into the building to make other noises less obvious.

Meyer-Ross, which is working on additions to two district junior high schools, is expected to prepare a cost estimate for the work.

The district is holding back $40,000 from Berg until the work is completed; the Meyer-Ross work will be paid for from those funds, said Arthur Perry, assistant superintendent for administrative services.

West boundary changed

Dist. 59 joined neighboring districts Monday by agreeing to change part of its western boundary from old Ill. Rte. 53, (Rohlfing Rd.) to Interstate 90.

The boundary change affects no children. No one lives in the area between the two roads, which will go from Dist. 59 to Schaumburg Township Dist. 54.

Registrations must be sent before Saturday

Mailed forms get parks' preference

Arlington Heights residents who mail their registration for fall and winter park district programs, will be given first priority in program enrollment this year.

Arlington Heights Park District officials are hopeful that more residents will register by mail instead of in person because it makes program registration easier "on both the residents and our own personnel," said Ronald Dodd, superintendent of recreation.

Mail registration will be given first priority if mailed before Saturday to the parks where residents plan to participate in the programs. In-person registration for fall and winter programs will not begin until Monday and will be on a first-come, first-served basis.

Park district programs and classes begin as early as Saturday and extend to the end of March, depending upon the season registered for.

COMPLETE FEE AND program information is available in a fall-winter program brochure mailed to residents and distributed at the park district administration office, at the Forest View Tennis Club, 800 E. Falcon Dr.

The district will expand its play-center program to three days a week in the mornings and afternoons at neighborhood community centers. Activities such as crafts, storytelling, music and special events will be offered to children who will be at least 4 years old by Dec. 1.

The park district also will offer a terrarium-making workshop and a creative dramatics class for children in addition to more standard classes in crafts, cooking, bowling, guitar, baton and magic.

Floor hockey, gymnastics, softball and other athletic classes also will be offered to boys and girls.

CLASSES IN BELLYDANCING, yoga, exercise, guitar, crafts, furniture refinishing, bridge and flower arranging will continue to be offered for adults. Organized athletic activities for adults include women's competitive volleyball, men's volleyball, men's 16-inch softball, men's recreation night, and men's basketball league.

The park district is requiring that at least 60 per cent of the competitive adult teams be composed of residents of Arlington Heights this year to guard against an over participation of non-residents in team play, Dodd said.

Snow ski lessons will be offered at Holiday Park and Villa Olivia. One-day ski trips also will be organized to Villa Olivia and the Royal Valley slopes in Michigan by the park district.

A variety of instructional and recreational activities have been scheduled at the Olympic Park Indoor Pool during the autumn months. Registration forms and fees for instructional classes at the Olympic pool should be mailed to the Olympic Park Center. Family passes will be available to Arlington Heights residents for $40. Daily admission fees for swimming at the pool will be $1.25 for adults and $1 for children who are park district residents.

The Arlington Heights Park District has a new cooperative agreement this fall with the Mount Prospect and Buffalo Grove park districts, allowing residents of all three park districts to use their residential park district passes at pool facilities that are near their homes but not in their own park district. For example, Arlington Heights residents who have an annual pool pass to the Olympic Indoor Pool, can also use their pool passes at the Aquadome Indoor Pool, 1100 W. Dundee, Buffalo Grove, and the Kopp Indoor Pool, 420 W. Dempster, Mount Prospect.

THE ARLINGTON PARK District will continue its winter sports activities including ice skating, ice hockey, sledding and tobogganing at community parks, although near zero temperatures are required before the flooding of park areas can begin.

The park district will offer special-interest activities including an acting workshop and a stage make-up workshop at Olympic Park by area theater group specialists.

The district will continue offering Feminine trips, "Over 50 Club," and "Gold Key Club" activities which also will include sporting-event trips and social gatherings especially for men over 50 and 60 years old this fall.

Village Atty. Jack M. Siegel told the trustees Sept. 9 that if they want to lengthen the term of the annexation agreement, they must act before the Oct. 20 expiration date.

Up until recently, state law prohibited renewal of five-year land annexation agreements. However, amendments to state statutes now permit either initial 10-year agreements, or five-year extensions of existing contracts.

At the Sept. 9 meeting, Babcock said if the 10-year option had been available in 1969, the village and race track probably would have agreed on a 1979 expiration date.

Police called to break up brawl

Several police squads responded to break up a brawl among young persons early Thursday near Campbell Street and Vall Avenue in downtown Arlington Heights.

Witnesses said that at one point there were more than 25 persons in the intersection. Police said there were no arrests.

Board of Education to meet Tuesday

The Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 Board of Education will meet at 8:15 Tuesday, Sept. 24, in the district office, 999 W. Dundee Rd., Wheeling. A meeting will not be held on the regular date, Sept. 26, because of the Jewish holidays.
